>>Recapping?  My old DX 160 is still playing away nicely.  I bought it new around 1976 and haven't noticed its performance is degrading. <<

The reason I mention this is because my radio has a pretty good hum to it on certain freqs; maybe that's not a symptom of what I think it is (I know that a certian dimmer switch we have inserts a pretty good hum, too, unless it is turned all the way on).  If I could talk to someone with some firsthand practical knowledge, I might be able to sort it (maybe even here).  I do know that the thing needs alignment (no doubt I can get to and identify a frequency when I want to - I'd just like everything to be working right).

I like the radio - it's fun to play with when I'm not after any special weak station.  If I decide to use it for this, I may add a  frequency counter.

I have a remote control that I sometimes use with my R8B. It's a great accessory, so I use it a lot. However, I've noticed something strange. If I turn the receiver off with the remote and then turn it on using the front panel power button, the receiver powers up but the signal meter just sits there and the needle doesn't move. No other aspect of the receiver's functioning seems unusual--only the signal meter. Likewise, if I power the receiver off using the front panel button and then turn it on using the remote, the same thing happens.

On the other hand, if I use only the front panel button or remote to turn the receiver off and then on, there's no problem. The signal meter works as usual.

This makes zero sense to me. Any thoughts about what explains this weird phenomenon?

Thanks,

Steve

God has told His Prophet that He will allow His Prophet to continue to live for a few more years. At least, that's the story the Prophet is telling.

I didn't hear him say anything about it, don't listen to him that regularly.  However, Steve Quayle mentioned something about the fault that runs from about Newfoundland, I think, all the way to Antarctica. (? the longest fault in the world - about 8800 miles long? ) He mentioned  the possibility  of a tsunami occurring.  I don't know that he mentioned the speed, height, devastation or when it MIGHT occur.

I have yet to see an automated translation program that can cope with any technical topic. The results can be fun to view, but I feel sorry for anyone who attemtps to understand such a translation.
I was given a German WEFAX receiver, with all the manuals, in German. After a few funny attempts to run it through the translation services, I gave up and bought a good Geramn to English dictionary.
Then after about 6 weeks of frustration met a German ham who was at the university for a season. It took him 5 minutes to read the manaul, and another 5 minutes to translat it for me. The electronic part was a breeze to translat with a dictionary, but the meterology was a bear, because I know next to nothing about formal weather forcasting. While he didn't know anymore then me, he knew the idioms and was able to make sense of it.

What you really need is to find someone who is bilingual, who at least reads Italian and English. It wold be even better to if they were techs. I can now "read" technical German, but can speak none, and understand no(or so little as to equal none) spoken German. While I can speek and understand a little Spanish, I can read and understand a lot more. I fell in love with Cervantes works and while the translations are OK, reading them in the orignal

Spanish is much better. It is fairly easy to learn to read a another language, at least it is much easier then learning to speak another one!

Neil might find this whole thing rather odd. It's a good thing for the two parties here that Neil tends to keep to himself, otherwise he might come out and refute this.

I meant rights of others, not yourself. If you're invulnerable, then you don't need rights. But others do to protect them from you. If everyone's invulnerable, then someone needs to protect things that aren't invulnerable, like the environment. (I suppose you couldn't really call them "rights," since in a larger sense, it's not rights as thinking beings grant to each other.)

Nah, I may be an omnivore, but I don't believe in needless cruelty, either. I'm just not fond of PETA, who probably does more harm than good to it's cause.

I heard that the Mayo-ists only eat sandwiches. It's a different bunch of revolutionaries who do Salad dressing. And then there's the Mustardites...

WBCQ has a couple frequencies around 9330 or so, right at the bottom of the 31m band. Maybe this is who you heard talking about Mayo.

You could just buy another radio off eBay, and practice on it first.  That way, if something happens, you won't have lost your good model.

I should have done that with the old Sky Champion years ago, rather than play Dr. Frankenstein with it.

Islam has its various Jesus on a taco type beliefs, for example a Muslim in alt.atheism once said that the Arabic script for Allah appears on the human lung. Then there's the fish whose markings supposedly resembled said script...

It would be funny if the Muslims weren't trying to blow up anybody who thinks otherwise.

Yeah, apparently the endless praying gets to the circuits. After a certain point they can't take it anymore. Why this doesn't happen with mysteries.

Come on...the "science" in this is -so- bad that I can't help but think that it was produced by someone who merely wanted to make a certain group of people look really, really dumb. But then, a google search of the name Dr. Abd Al-Baset Al-Sayyed -did- turn up this same transcript on a Muslim site. So...

Maybe it was written to make them look stupid, but they really -are- so stupid that they couldn't see that fact, and posted it as if it were true. It's a funny thought.

For a few years I had a web site devoted to that stuff. It's presently being re-done...but I am -so- tempted to put up the old pages just so everyone can see what you're talking about. It's funny stuff!

Sometimes it just takes a little perseverance to figured it out.

This is a dx440, fairly decent except for the whine of the circuitry and a little drift on ssb.  I'd really like to have better selectivity, though.  If I tune in wwv on 10mhz, I can hear the station on 9.885 enough to be annoying.

Own a bunch of Halliburton stock do we?  The sad fact is they could still make a good living doing it right.  So, that means they're financing a bunch of "other" stuff with the grotesque profit margin as well.

Best regards,

John Halliburton-yes one of those Halliburtons, just too many branches over in the family tree.

You have a local noise problem. Something near you in your neighborhood or in your house is generating this noise. It might have something to do with a light or lamp controlled with a dimer switch.

It is typical that the noise gets worse at lower frequencies as electronic devices are allowed to generate more noise at lower frequencies.

In a cave in Afghanistan US troops found a copy of the Homemade H Bomb hoax that has been going around for years, you know the one where you turn an Electrolux into a WMD. Apparently the Al Qaeda blockheads thought it was real and were trying to assemble one. Also found were various weapons and bomb designs taken off the internet. I don't know if they had an Arabic translation of The Anarchist's Cookbook, but it wouldn't surprise me.

Drake advertises the R8 and R8A as having 'sideband selectable sync' but you have to use the passband offset to select one side or the other.  Certainly not as good as the R8B detector.  Interestingly the RX-350 (and some other receivers) give you the choice of both sides, lsb or usb.  I guess if there is no adjacent interference, the 'both' choice is OK but I still don't see what the benefit is over a choosing the sync with one sideband.

The R-5000 also emits a morse code beep for each key press.  This can be very handy for the sight impaired.  I think this receiver may be the best choice here.

Yep, everyone call the profit and ask these questions.

We especially like the ones about his activities with the young "colored girls" and the pope of Rome.

We wonder if Mr. Davies will be one of his callers, too.

Well,

It's the same IF_shift / NB pot as the old one except for the number of terminals. Let me get my ohm meter out.

it makes perfect sense now...the phrase

======================================
a regular, ordered arrangement of atoms over a large scale

may be applied to MORE than just mere dopey crystaline structures. <g>

I'd still take a nice Drake R7 that does not have sync any old day... I'd out dx you in most any situation!

Recapping?  My old DX 160 is still playing away nicely.  I bought it new around 1976 and haven't noticed its performance is degrading.

I am not a tech so I can't say for sure but I don't think that the caps in this radio are the kind that need replacing. They still look nice and shiny unlike the big waxy cardboard ones in the old Hallicrafters rig.

Experiment awhile with the fine tuning and main tuning.  You will reach a point where one or the other will show the correct freq. for the band you are on.  Note the "log " numbers on a piece of paper and you should be able to get pretty darn close to a freq. when you want to.  If you have a digital radio you can use that to help point the way.

Enjoy the radio.  They are a lot of fun.  I don't use it as my main radio but enjoy dragging it out and using it from time to time. I have been using it lately to listen to some 120 meter ham ragchews and setting the BFO pitch to certain levels can overcome some local noise. It is a bit like a poor man's passband tuning.

Regard,  Bob

This sounds to me like the DX-440 is misaligned on AM.

You are correct..............we need something like this radio to fill this niche. Up until now, I haven't seen any MW receivers that had what I would call "lab standard" performance. That is why I have been building my own MW receivers for the last ten years. I think that LW reception is a good bonus.
I was talking to Dale W4OP yesterday, and he suggested that an SSB detector would be better for the transcontinental DXers because they would be able to hear the hets better. I just am not sure yet.
So anyway.............this unit would have separate bass and treble controls, with a good quality audio section and a good internal speaker. It will have line level output, for those who would like to hook it up to their stereo system. It's that spectrum analyzer display that is slowing this whole project down.
As far as performance, it is the most amazing radio that I have ever played with. If only we could get it into production by the summer................

DX'ing aside I can't imagine buying a radio that does not have a sync detector. Conditions may be different elsewhere but here on the west coast where nighttime sky-wave competes with ground wave from BCB stations one to several hundred miles away sync detection makes listening possible on some nights. I have had the destructive interference last for a minute or two at a time.

I wish the car radio had sync detection after missing a 30 to 90 seconds of a talk program.

Even distant SW signals beamed here that are fairly strong usually have some periodic fading. I use the sync detector most of the time I'm listening to the radio either BCB or SW.

Being able to pick the sideband to lock to makes a big difference in eliminating adjacent channel interference. I traded my R8 for an R8B and it was a big improvement. This choice is not the same thing as adjusting the passband control. The R8B also allows you to listen to a ISB broadcast very effectively.

Yes, I start from italian language and translate it using altavista, the material is really too much and I'm not so good with english, so I can't improve the work, do you have in mind any online tool that produce better results ???

Many thanks in any case.

I'm happy also if my work produce a smile.

BAD,
This sort of Public 'Visible' Bidding is called Ladder Bidding.
[ Just How High Do You Want To Climb "The Ladder" With Me ? ]
It says that not only did I "Bid Up" the Item : but there are Several Bids so you can not come in at the Last Minute (or as little as 6 Seconds) and Steal the Auction {aka : Snipers} = A Form of Bidder Intimidation.
Some times the Series of Ladder Bids are a Bluff and some times they are a Series of Quantum Leeps.
A Last-Minute Mega "Hail Mary" Bid could Leap-Frog a Series of Ladder
Bids.  Example : $596(4X) Ladder Bid might be Leaped by a Last-Minute Mega "Hail Mary" Bid of $1357 !
Or a Bidder might try Nibbling :  A series of small Bids to find out what the first three bids of the four were without exceeding the four and last bid.  Nibbing is also used by some Bidders to find out the "Reserve Price" of an Auction.
and now you know ~ RHF
FOR ME THE QUESTION IS : WHY IS eBAY 'BETTER THAN' GAMBLING ?
http://groups-beta.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/0db1557fdbe77b70

http://groups-beta.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/5d81ab8f5c1d6063

[ Because Gambling is Win-&-Lose and eBay is Win-&-Win. ]
In Gambling - You Place Your Bet :
- Sometimes You Win The Money.
- - Then again many times You Lose Your Money.
On eBay Auctions - You Place Your Bid (Bet).
- Sometimes You Win Your eBay Item.
- - Then Again - You Never Lose Your Money.
NOTE: On eBay Auctions - You Always Get Something of Value
- - - The ITEM -or- Your MONEY !
When It Comes to 'Bidding' on eBay: To Me Its Like Playing Cards.
The Excitement can be Being-In-the-Game.
Peeking at the Sellers Hold Card (Reserve Price) and Calling the Other Guys Bluff.
However, If I Want the Item {I Can Taste the "BUY" Coming On} :
With Two Minutes to Go - Then It IS A Different Ball Game : Throw One Big Bomb (Hail Mary Pass)
- and Score a Touch Down
- - and Win the Game.
(If Not... Oh Well there is Always the Next Auction).
- - - Smell That BUY !
Maximum Bid Reality Check for eBAYers:
- If the Item is still available commercially.
- - Then the 70% of MSRP Rule should apply.
- - - It is Truly Sad to See Someone Bid More Than Retail.
- - - - For Non-Collectibles With NO Manufactures Warranty or Product Guaranty.
Zero (0) Bidders Warning and Low eBay Member's Score Caution for eBayers:  If you are Bidding in an eBay Auction Against a 'New' eBayer:

With -O^O- 30 Day Marker and a Zero (0) Score.
Be Advised and Warned - They Want to Make 'their' Mark and Win an Auction.  They Will Bid High and Often Over Bid an Item
To Bid Against Them Is a Fools Game [.]
This Caution generally Applies to eBayers with a Score Under Ten (10) Too !

I bought a brand new one from Gilfer, modified by them. I loved that BIG radio, but I could let it warm up for over an hour and it would still drift nearly 2 kHz in less than an hour. It was tough trying to record something unless I sat right with it.

It was a nice receiver, and it had decent audio. I'm not sure what you mean about my comment regarding the R7.

I have frineds who work in the IT universe who hold the individual from who the spam comes from responsable.
Their viewpoint, rather hars but with some logic, is that it is each users responsability to keep their PC patched and up to date, and to be aware neough to prevent such "hijackings".
I don't know if their viewpoint is reasoable, but I do know that the place I work hold each person completley responsable for their work computr. Several people have lost their network connection as a direct result of having their PC hacked. Makes me damn carefull about where I visist and what Emails I open.
And we have a interprise wide ban on IE and Outlook. And inspite of what Microsoft says, both can be removed from 98SE, ME, w000, and EX pro. The techs bring up "your" work computer, aplly patches to remove IE/Outlook and hand it over to to the end user.
Tough but we don't have many viri floating around our intranet. And they fired some clown who thought he was too cool for the rules when he installed a peer to peer client on his work PC.
Took them less then 20 minutes to nail him, another 20 to walk him trough the exit paper work and an addional 90 seconds to walk him to his car. And we don't let anyone else use or work PCs. Kind of strict, but we have very few problems.

If you don't donwload crap from the net, avoid bait sites, don't use ie or outlook, don't open
"stange" email, you as a rule, don't get hacked.

Hello all, I want to buy one of these two portables:
sony icf-sw11
panasonic rfb11
I have tried a lot to find a comparison between the two on the net.. but couldn't find. If any of you have experiences with either or both of these two radios.. please share it with me...
Thanks in advance.

Apparently, you aren't too familiar with how spammers "hijack" e-mail addresses.

When they "hijack" an e-mail address, it is just the address that they use and put as the sender and reply-to. They don't actually use your computer. If they were to be using your computer, then it would show up in the IP addresses that are in the message source. I have a couple of Yahoo accounts that happens to all the time. I receive a message stating that an e-mail was undeliverable, but obviously wasn't sent by me or from my actual account. When you look at the message source of the e-mail, it is often times originating in Korea or China. That is why a lot of spam blocking software, automatically block everything from those two countries.

ZCZC AP07
QST de W1AW
Propagation Forecast Bulletin 7  ARLP007
>From Tad Cook, K7RA
Seattle, WA  February 18, 2005
To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP007
ARLP007 Propagation de K7RA

Conditions improved this week over last. The average daily sunspot number rose nearly 34 points to 75.1, and the geomagnetic indices were down over the week. The geomagnetic field may become more active, and for February 18-20 the planetary A index is predicted at 20, 20 and 15. The major sunspot group affecting us this week will soon move off the visible solar disk, but there is a small sunspot group on the other side of the sun. Conditions should be fair to good for the ARRL International DX CW Contest this weekend.

Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA has an interesting and useful propagation column in the March 2005 issue of WorldRadio. With ionosonde data he demonstrates how daily variations in solar flux have little effect on the MUF. Instead, propagation is better predicted with a smoothed sunspot number applied to seasonal variations.

For instance, this afternoon when I wanted a feeling for when 15 and 17 meters would still be open toward various locations, it was better to use W6ELprop with an average of sunspot numbers for the previous five days rather than today's solar flux. You can get the recent sunspot numbers from http://www.sec.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DSD.txt, and download W6ELprop from http://www.qsl.net/w6elprop/.

This afternoon I went out to the car to do some 17 meter mobile work. Geomagnetic indices were low and the band was good. I had a nice CW chat with KG0TS in Des Moines, Iowa, and then worked 9Y4/YL2GM in Tobago on SSB. Juris was in the Caribbean getting ready for the DX contest from 9Y4W this weekend.

If you would like to comment or have a tip, email the author at, k7ra@arrl.net.

For more information concerning propagation and an explanation of the numbers used in this bulletin see the ARRL Technical Information Service propagation page at, http://www.arrl.org/tis/info/propagation.html.

This is absolutely correct.
I have 2 companies that hijackers have used to make it look as the email originates from us but that is not the case. In fact we have posted notices of this problem on our websites to let users know that we do not send out any email unsolicited.

This may seem obvious so I hope no one will snort at me <s>, but the mechanisms for starting the meter are diffierent. If you use the remote the programming responds differently to the action. It would appear that there is no connection between operations using the remote and a manual action. Evidently the operation is not complete if you switch between manual and remote modes, so the code does not run its usual course and therefor does not start up again because it was never finished.

I have a remote control that I sometimes use with my R8B. It's a great accessory, so I use it a lot. However, I've noticed something strange. If I turn the receiver off with the remote and then turn it on using the front panel power button, the receiver powers up but the signal meter just sits there and the needle doesn't move. No other aspect of the receiver's functioning seems unusual--only the signal meter. Likewise, if I power the receiver off using the front panel button and then turn it on using the remote, the same thing happens.

On the other hand, if I use only the front panel button or remote to turn the receiver off and then on, there's no problem. The signal meter works as usual.

This makes zero sense to me. Any thoughts about what explains this weird phenomenon?

Thanks,

Steve

You were saying that you'd out dx the person with an R7 in most situations, so I was curious if the R-5000 was worth it to hang onto for DXing for a long enough time considering you had an R7 and an R8 (and later, an R8B).

If it helps, you can find the ICF-SW11 service manual on the 'net. I used to think that the RF-B11 is the same as the Sangean SG-622 (given they're selling ATS-606s as RF-B55), but the dimensions, weight and speaker specs seem to differ. In any case, don't expect either to be a DX machine. Value for money is frequently not exactly outstanding either.

I might be worth replacing the power supply filter cap' but otherwise the caps' should be alright. I aligned mine without any test equipment other  than a voltmeter. Works fine.

Maybe there's nothing odd here...I don't have a lot of technical expertise. It just seemed funny that the "connection between operations" would be incomplete in so particular and well-defined a way, where the ONLY thing affected is the signal meter. But hey...maybe this happens all the time.

Plain ol' 1st mixer nonlinearity, leading to the generation of harmonics. (Quite the equivalent of audio harmonic distortion.) Signal levels on MW can be very high. BTW that is one reason why several Japanese tabletop receivers have reduced sensitivity on MW. For another interesting (but inflexible) solution, the Kenwood R-5000 has several MW frequencies belonging to strong Japanese stations (at least back in '87) notched out.

I assume you meant this vice versa (i.e. 1700 kHz highpass, 30 MHz lowpass)? Would make more sense that way.

Well, LW isn't really all that exciting. The band fits no more than a handful of stations, but propagation typically varies little and transmitter power ranges from high to gigantic, yielding good reception in distances of hundreds of kilometers and more. If you're hunting for utes in that area, MW images are pretty deadly of course... but the kind of receivers we're talking about isn't exactly suited for this purpose anyway. Personally, 49m images on 60m and 19m images on 20m have annoyed me more in the past (the AN-LP1 fixed the former but not the latter).

Similar ideas have led to the current Winradio receivers (e.g. G303i). However, what you've overlooked is that you cannot do everything in software. A receiver needs to be designed for the frequency ranges it's supposed to receive - from input filters, mixer concepts (shortwave with its higher natural noise levels allows mixer concepts that may be noisier but have better strong signal handling), oscillator frequencies ranges to IF filtering (you do need some bandpass filtering prior to A/D conversion). Really good receivers for both below and above 30 MHz aren't expensive for no reason. The pro way of expanding receiver capabilities, BTW, is going modular. I assume a VHF module would contain a separate frontend, synthesizer, �P and IF strip, with the signals being merged with the others at IF level (or even AF level). Not entirely trivial and certainly not cheap.

If the mainstream news providers have betrayed the people, then the people, sitting on their living room couches, will not be happy with the newscast they are now watching. And so they will simply pick up the handy clicker and change the channel !!

So not to worry, David, America is free to watch what we want, and free to give poor viewer ratings to any news outlet which we distrust. Which will cause their advertisers to start sponsoring other media channels whose excellent ratings indicate the people are well pleased with their content quality.

So really, David, thanks to capitalism and individual freedom, as opposed to Government ownership and control, the problem you report is (at least in America) automatically self correcting.

God bless America!.

Most radios have a bit higher distortion when using sync, plus there is always going to be a slight frequency offset.  Some radios will growl trying to get the sycn. Throw the audio out on a spectrum analyzer and you might spot a weak tone artifact due to the sync. Use it when it sounds better, otherwise leave it off.

Sometimes there is more noise "under" one sideband than the other, so you might use sync and pick the quieter sideband. Adjacent channel splatter would be a good example of noise under one sideband and not the other.

I probably use sync a few percent of the time.

Happen to have a little example with numbers? I still have difficulty imagining this.

Let's take a typical rx with 55.845 MHz 1st IF and 455 kHz 2nd IF, plus a desired frequency of 10.000 MHz. Furthermore, 1st IF filtering be perfect in suppressing 910 kHz images and a SW lowpass be present.
1st LO = 65.845 MHz.
2nd LO = 55.390 MHz = const.

Even if there is some 2nd LO leakage into the 1st mixer input, it should be treated exactly like any other ordinary signal (with a signal level much smaller than that of the 1st LO), i.e. mixed to an unexciting 10.455 MHz. Obviously for another signal to be observed as a +910 kHz image we need to have it on 54935 kHz, after the roofing filter, but I assumed this would be perfect. Alternatively, we'd need to generate a 10910 kHz signal in the 1st mixer and leak that back to the 1st mixer's input (but how likely is that?). I guess I'll grab a piece of paper now...

That was one of the most painful threads I have ever read.

I was excited to find out that the 1108 was going to become a reality. I am a big fan of Degen and I hope to place my order for this radio the very first day it goes on sale.

I was even more excited (or even awed) to see that the engineer who was responsible for two of the best radios this decade (Sat 800 and DE1103) was actually sharing his time and energy with us, and was even letting us, the listening and buying public, to help him design the best radio possible.

But then the xenophobic ranting started. I was shocked at first, but I hoped that it was just a poorly executed cute remark that fell flat. But the rantings continued. And there was definitely nothing cute about it. It was intentionally mean, and I was horrified to realize that a fellow American and dxer would stoop to such ignorant and mean-spirited rantings.

The thread then got too painful to read. I immediately blocked the offending poster, but the memory of his ignorant ranting still sticks in my craw. In fact, looking back, I can't even remember exactly who that hateful poster was. I think he was a regular here, but his postings no longer appear on my computer, so I can't be sure.

I hope that wonderful engineer is able to forgive that crude offender, and that he doesn't hold all of us responsible for such horrible and unacceptable behavior.

I guess all you'd have to do would be to look at your kill file to get an idea of who it was then. Seems pretty darn simple to me.

I still don't under why Lowe used even implemented double sideband sync in the HF-150 if it doesn't do anything over single sync. Why add this feature?
For what kind of scenerios??

In essence though, isn't it single sync anyway? Versus the selectable sideband sync that is in the R8B?

Can you choose which sideband you will use the sync in on the HF-150?

They're not necessarily getting paid for sending jobs overseas, they are generally being paid for generating income for the company.

If all you are doing is putting a screw into something all day long then perhaps that's all that job is worth, $8 per hour.

Maybe there's nothing odd here...I don't have a lot of technical expertise. It just seemed funny that the "connection between operations" would be incomplete in so particular and well-defined a way, where the ONLY thing affected is the signal meter. But hey...maybe this happens all the time.

Children starving? In the USA? Where? Last I heard all the darn kids are fat.

If anyone is indeed starving in the USA it is not the fault of some CEO, nor is it the fault of government.

MOST ORDINARY PEOPLE do not fit very neatly into any political category and may hold to a mix of views that include what would usually be seen as both Leftist and Rightist ideas. Among professional politicians and academics, however, there is generally a clearer polarization. So what is it that makes any given view "Rightist" or "Leftist"? In contemporary North American terms, what is it that makes one an archetypical "liberal" or an archetypical "conservative"? What is a Leftist or a Rightist position on any issue?

The division obviously is real and the demise of the great icon of Leftism -- the Soviet Union -- seems to have had little impact on its intensity. Leftists may no longer have Communism to point to as a possible alternative system but they remain Leftists all the same. The banner cause of Leftists since Karl Marx -- State ownership of the means of production or "socialism" no longer seems reasonable to all but a handful of diehards but Leftists are still Leftists and Rightists are still Rightists and never, it seems, the twain shall meet.

The great rubric of "conservative" long fastened on Rightists seems equally moribund. "Conservative" is generally amplified as meaning "opposed to change" or "favoring the status quo" but from the Reagan/Thatcher years onward, Rightists have been the great advocates and practitioners of social and political change. Rightists have been almost revolutionary in tearing down the proud edifices of the Left -- with privatization, deregulation, welfare cutbacks, tax reductions etc. Judging by the politics of the last 20 years, Rightists love change! Certainly, they have clearly and energetically changed what was once the status quo.

So what is going on? What is Leftism/liberalism and why are people Leftist/liberal? What, if anything, do people have in common who describe themselves (and are described by others) as "Leftists", "socialists", "social democrats", "Communists" and (in North America) "liberals"?...

Not in double sideband mode. But you can choose between USB and LSB sync separately.

Shocked you were?  And your memory is too painful for you?
Hmmm, perhaps you should read more, or better yet, live in China for a while.

Then and only then will you understand the "horror" that the WWII generation that can no longer pass on to your memory.  Perhaps Tianamen Square will refresh your ailing synapses.  No?  Well, here is something very recent for you to be shocked about:

http://www.geocities.com/china_e_lobby/24November2004.html
http://www.geocities.com/china_e_lobby/01December2004.html

Keep up to date about your engineer Komrade here:
http://english.epochtimes.com/category.asp?id=92
Especially noteworthy today: http://china-e-lobby.blogspot.com/

By the way let me give you a bit of advice.  If your email to the Degen engineer doesn't bounce these days it is a sure bet he is very well connected with the Chinese Communist Party.  The CCP are currently in the Blocking All Foreign Email mode!  They tend to do this during times when they feel threatened by "unsanitary information" penetrating their bamboo curtain.

Now, if you heard this on Radio Havana, it MIGHT be considered at least tangentially shortwave related. But this is just an internet article with your opinion tacked on. You're as bad as David.

By the way, Radio Havana had a "news item" a couple months ago that compared the number of hungry children in the US to the number of people who are obese. They made it sound like the rich were porking out while the poor were starving (unlike Cuba where EVERYBODY is starving except Fidel) when in reality the poor are more likely to be fat than the rich because the only food the poor can afford is junk and fast food.

A lot of old Dxers use R-5000s including me. You won't be disapointed. Some have complained about key bounce on the newmeric pads but I've never seen it in the three I've owned. The one I have now has seen service daily for three years. There one of the best radios ever made. Theres alot of good radios out there now days. I like the NRD-525 too with an extension speaker of good quality and the Icom R-75 is a good bang for the buck. Some R-8s are out there for around four bills that are great performers. All these radios I've mentioned are under $500. Good luck.

If this is directed at me, you've misunderstood me. I should have been more clear, and I'll take the blame for the misunderstanding. My machine wasn't compromised in any way. Someone merely used my e-mail address for their entry in the "from" field. Nothing came from my machine; the headers were spoofed.

Unreal. A web hoax that hasn't hit my inbox yet. I haven't heard about this one.

Yeah, that's what the page says. And I know that's what Memri does. But it's -so- wrong! But then when I think of it, it sounds an awful lot like Christian creationism, and so I really shouldn't be so surprised when some other religion's fundamentalists (with an emphasis on the "mental") come up with zingers like these.

Hello,

I know most of the regulars in this are very partial to large rigs, but also a lot of people bought small cheap portables off of E-Bay.  Anyways, the Degen DE-1103 is know for having some stability problems.  I've found out that the batteries supplied with it (at least with mine) are about 0.7 mm too short each.  Since they are used in pairs, this is 1.4 mm per battery chamber.  The springs look kind of weak, so I wouldn't be surprised if poor contact because of the shorter length leads to instability, lock-ups, etc.  So, try longer batteries, it worked for me.

At the mid-atlantic ridge, the plates are moving apart and new crust is being created.  This is different from, say, the San Andreas fault, where plates are scraping each other in a shearing motion and creating many earthquakes, or the thrust faults around the Indian subcontinent, where where mountains are slowly being uplifted due to the collision of two plates (and generating many earthquakes).  I believe since there is not much stress at the mid-Atlantic ridge (relatively) the change of major earthquakes is small.

Get this straight. Buying a Degen or Tecsun or any other Chinese made product does NOT constitute de facto endorsement of the Chinese Communist Party! You, apparently, are too dense to grasp this simple fact. Listening to CRI, and/or receiving a QSL from them, does NOT constitute endorsement of the CCP. I listen to Radio Havana all the time, but I'm no fan of Fidel or his regime. I enjoy Cuba's perspective on events, especially the Israeli-Palestinian war-they're the only SW station that I can regularly receive that reports the Palestinian side, a useful counterbalance to American domestic news, which reports the Israeli side, when they report on it at all. Anyway, listening to a certain SW station or buying products from a certain country does not endorse that country's regime. All the Degen engineer was trying to do was get feedback on his designs, and YOU GUYS turned it into a political battle, when it shouldn't have been. Your blind hatred of all things Chinese is as bad as Roedy Green's blind hatred of all things US, and dxAce's blind hatred of, well, everything. Get a clue already!

Yes, he is a nuisance, and I think that even though I agree with some of the stuff he posts. But it's still off topic. I don't think I've EVER seen David post something SW related. He says that his views are more important than SW, which is fine for him to think that, but then he should go to talk.politics.misc and leave us alone.

" There are 2 major geological faults in southwestern Newfoundland. The Cape Ray Fault is about 1 km wide and crosses the Trans-Canada Highway (TCH) between the entrance to John T Cheeseman Provincial Park and Barachois Brook. This fault extends for about 100kms (60 miles) and eventually crosses the Burgeo Highway.

The largest and most important fault in the area is the Long Range Fault (Cabot Fault) which runs from the bridge crossing the TCH at McDougall's Brook to the northeast coast of Newfoundland at the Baie Verte Peninsula. This fault also runs through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The Long Range Fault once marked the boundary between North America and Europe before the two continents separated about 200 million years ago.

Neither one of these faults is active. "

Chris:
The R-5000 is just as sensitive as any of the newer receivers. It has a very good notch filter and a very good noise blanker. It doesn not have a sync detector but it is very stable so it does ECSS well. The audio is flat but clear.

The RX-320D is the best radio out there for the price: very sensitive, stable but also lack a sycn detector. It does have the 12 Khz IF output so you can use it for DRM reception. There are many excellent software programs available. Several are free. The audio is as good as your computer sound system.

Although I use a R-75 now, the KW 5000 I used to have was wonderful.

Glorious audio, stable, sensitive, fewer images and BCB interference than even the R75.

It also had an excellent working NB, its adjustable too. The notch filter worked OK but only manual and single. But you could take out WEAK tones which were barely above the desired program level, something autonotches apparently can't do.

The standard 6 KHz filter was too wide, but the optional 6KHz filter (same bandwidth but steeper skirts) was as fine a SW AM filter I ever heard, or ever will, perfect fidelity.

I also used an 1.8 KHz filter (for crowded HAM SSB bands) and 500 Hz for CW, RTTY.

Prices aren't bad for the filters because they are at the 9MHz IF, instead of the lower IF, so they are smaller in size and thus cheaper...

Somewhere in QST mag back issue was a mod for making a spinner for the main knob, and that worked very well...

The sad part is that it was a group with such a narrow view of the world that different cultures are threatening. Someone told me the trolls have morphed into gangs on some of the news groups. This news group is not there yet, but it is getting closer. That was probably the first and last time someone from the radio manufacturing industry will ask this group for their opinions on the design of a new radio. It was truly a unique opportunity to actually have some input into the features we would like to see on a radio. And we collectively blew it because of the immature behavior and xenophobic attitude of a few.

Congratulations guys. You accomplished something that I'm sure you are proud of and will take home and brag about to your family.

Dear Chris,

Piece of advice based on many, many years of experience:

DON'T BUY USED! Repeat: DON'T BUY USED!

Why is the seller getting rid of the unit? NOT BECAUSE HE LIKES IT!

It is ALWAYS better to buy a relatively inexpensive NEW item rather than some dude's cast-off finery!

I have no experience with the Ten-Tec RX-320D. However it does get a very nice review in the new PASSPORT, which I recommend you buy if you haven't already.

Best,

Joe

I put up a new antenna and again tuned to the Mecca short wave frequency, but co-channel interference from Venus made reception impossible.

Dear Brian,

There's nothing wrong with someone trying to sell an unwanted radio (or any other unwanted item). eBay and similar places are excellent for collectors trying to buy a missing piece of their collection, or for a person who wants to re-buy a radio he/she had years ago.

But a person looking to buy a primary receiver for daily use should, in my opinion, ALWAYS buy NEW, even if the new unit is of a somewhat lesser "caliber" than a used unit. A reputable dealer will offer a US warranty and will show interest in your satisfaction with your purchase.

"The bitterness of poor quality lasts far longer than the sweetness of low price."

Best,

Joe

P.S. Why WOULD you sell a perfectly good radio? I have never sold ANY of mine. I wouldn't even CONSIDER selling a poorly-performing or broken unit. I have, indeed, thrown them out!

Didn't I read somewhere about gravity waves travelling a little faster than light?

I'm just thinking about those big geological events on 25 and 26
December.

Ah, yes.  <http://physics.about.com/cs/gravity/a/speedofgravity.htm>

1.06 c.

Well, that tears the idea of that association, as the associated gravity wave would have passed through some 2,830 years ago.

Ventura county is experiencing similar weather to LA county with an abundance of rain, flooding and mud slide alerts with more on the way this weekend. Last two days a little over 2 inches with 4 inches in places like Ojai. At least we have not have any tornados like San Diego has had today.

We have had very rare thunder storms so the antennas were disconnected last night.

I'm about 100 yards from the beach and the previous storms had water halfway up the driveway due to some plugged storm drains but these last rains were no problem because they were cleared this time around.

what you want to build is a bandpass/reject tunable filter.you can tune it to notch out the offending bcb station while letting everything else through

No portable can compete with a NRD-525.
I hardly use my Sony ICF-2001D (=2010) since I have my NRD-525.

Remember, the NEW WRNO will NOT be in anyway related to the WRNO-FM that is still on the air in New Orleans.  The shortwave will be a Religious station.
The new owners have another FM station in N.O., but I do not know which one, of it will be a simulcast.

The IRA are terrorists. They've killed hundreds of innocent civilians, including children. They've been known to associate and align themselves with communists, South American drug dealers and Islamic terrorists. And again we see you rooting for them. Why don't you do a little research on the net about these people, and then get back to us. I'd sure like to hear if about it if your position changes.

He's being a bit misleading, but not untruthful when you read his text.
The 2002 and the 7600d were the same, the 2003 came out a bit later but I don't know if it was any different from the 2002.
Although they're good radios, they are not in the same catagory as the 2010.
For one thing, they're 1/4 the size.

As far as I'm concerned, the SW7600 series is the direct descendent of the 2002/3; same size, same general features.

It will probably be just under 300 dollars...........I know, quite a bit of money, but it will be the best ever made. I am working on the enclosure design right now. I still have to work out the mechanicals for the active antenna. If any of you ever get in the Chicago area, give me a shout and I can demonstrate the engineering unit for you.
I really did want to make a 150 dollar version and do a fancy version later > and you have a very good comparison of your ignorant logic.

If we ever go to war with China, then your comparison will be valid. Otherwise, it's not trading with the enemy, and therefore is not an endorsement of a regime hostile to the US. Many US companies did business with Nazi Germany before war was declared in 1941, and it was not illegal nor an endorsement of Nazi policies or the Nazi regime's existence. It was just business. Capitalists do business with everybody as long as they have money, unless their government forbids them from doing so with a certain country.

| That's one really nice thing about Sirius Satellite.  They have the

Actually, a relatively insignificant correction: As It Happens as cleared by PRI on Sirius 108 is already 1-1/2 hours later than when it aired, live, to the Maritimes.  You can get As It Happens on the Atlantic zone feed at www.cbc.ca/audio.html, starting at 5:30pm ET.  Further, PRI only clears the first hour of AIH.  AIH is well aware of what airs in the U-S, and, while I wouldn't say it's deliberate, that last segment has a certain status, as such it's quite a treat to listen to the last 30 minutes, using whatever other means you might have.  The most recent piece I heard in that last segment was that the Pentagon had, a number of years ago, commissioned some research to see if Viagra could be used to create a "gay bomb", whichwould be used on the enemy to so thouroughly distract them with the rapture of coitus with others in their platoon.  So you can see, the folks who run the Pentagon really are homophobic. You'll find it in the last 6 minutes of this archive (http://cbc.ca/asithappens/media/dailyshow/2005-01-14-aih3.ram) if you're interested.

| Once you get the International News habit, you realize that the masses
| are being brainwashed by the US commercial media.  No other word for
| it.

Long convinced of that, here.  I don't take any of my news anymore unless I get it "vetted" by seeing a similar report from outside the country.  We're really in trouble when (and not to make it seem that I'm too paranoid, I should probably amend that to "if") filters go up to prohibit the masses from listening to outside sources.  It's already been shown that the northern border states are, by virtue of their exposure to Canadian media outlets, better informed and more tolerant than those in the central and southern U-S.  Not that it's a primary reason, but the effects are certainly measureable.  You have to wonder, though, how it can be that people who listen to shortwave (as the cross-post'ed newsgroup suggests...I'm looking at alt.radio.broadcast myself) don't get a wiff of what's happening outside their own little worlds, where the U-S is best, because they live in it.

It stopped raining 15 minutes ago but the bottom is about to fall out again. They say we are going to have snow in the mountains behind me tonight down to 5,000 ft.

I've been home from Monday night and we got a lot of yard work done but is was between showers. Today I have stayed in with the radios, not a lot on SW but the scanner has been very active.

I think I am going to rewrite my scanner program for both north and south. I would like to add a lot of MilAir. That's what rainy days are for.

Wrapping the antenna wire back on itself as you do with "Frankenstein" or forming the G5RV into a quasi-rectangle is liable to result in an antenna that performs no better than a single wire as long as the maximum dimension, especially in directions in the plane of the shape and perpendicular to the longest side. However, I have heard people extol the virtues of a bedspring as an antenna - an extreme example of winding on itself. Of course, the more wrapping about you do, the more the wire approaches a solid, the limiting condition. Looking at Frankenstein, I'm reminded of a fat dipole, something like the "butterfly" antenna element frequently used at UHF. If you connect the free end and all the criss-crosses to the feed point, it certainly would be. With an overall length of 82 ft per the diagram, it would probably have a major lobe pointing straight up around 6 MHz. Height above ground will control the gain at lower elevation angles while the slight inverted Vee shape will broaden the lobe towards the narrow ends. At higher frequencies, the major lobe will divide into smaller lobes at lower elevations. The fatness factor will moderate the impedance range of the antenna around its 6 MHz resonant frequency.

I rather doubt that either your G5RV or the Frankenstein are great DX antennas, the way they are laid out. Both are liable to favour short to medium distances below 10MHz and are unlikely to provide the necessary low elevation angle sensitivity for really long DX in all desired directions at any frequency. I think you would be better off with less wire, laid out straight to take advantage of directional properties. Three mutually orthogonal antennas with a switch would be great. Attach a vertical antenna, say a CB whip or longer, to your chimney, as high as possible, for one. Run two independent dipoles in a cross pattern, even an X like you have would be a good compromise, from the chimney. Then you can switch among them for best reception - often one will stand out above the others because of direction, polarisation, frequency, and arrival angle of the incoming signal will best match one antenna.

Regards,
Tom

Wow.  Serially-clueless, and offensively so.  It's one thing to disagree, but quite another to make analogies which are patently false, and inconsistent with arguments (if you could call them that) that you've made in the past.  Makes you

Following the same philosophy, I suggest Doctors be banned from giving any bad news to their patients. Meteorologists would only be allowed to report GOOD weather.

It will be a better, happier world.

I shudder to think what the US will be like with them in power, 30 or so years from now. I suppose that Americans will have an approved list of conversation topics, with an all seeing nationwide surveillance system monitoring for compliance. One slip of the tongue, and you disappear. Or else we will all have a computer chip implanted in our brains, monitoring our thoughts constantly and continuously reporting back to the secret police. One unapproved thought from you, and boy, you're in trouble-with a few keystrokes or a spoken command, the secret police command your brain and heart to shut down, and you suddenly keel over dead while working the checkout counter at Wal Mart (the only remaining employer). Or it could be the reverse-the computer chip is in control of the wetware, and feeds us a continuous stream of government approved thoughts and feelings. The human brain will be used only for controlling body function, actual thinking will be done by the computer chip which will be directly connected to the Ministry of Truth. Imagine the possibilities! No more terrible twos, no more teenage rebellion, no more bitching about how bad your job is. You will only think government approved thoughts, only talk government approved topics of conversation, they will decide when and what you feel.

Actually, it was posted yesterday as a 1-5 day forecast and includes Earthquake, Volcanic or Storm Activity.

http://standeyo.com/Reports/041222.EQ.warning/050218.Deyo.EQs.html

If you'll scroll down to the two maps at the bottom both indicate a bright blue adjacent to a bright yellow just about the center of the map.  The colors indicate temperatures with the blues and yellows being extremes from the norm.

There are actually three that could affect America.  LA area, the one referenced above and one on the NW of South America where South and Central America join.

Be sure to read his caveat.  As much as 30% error because of clouds and false signals from buoys.

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

You can be saved right now and on your way to Heaven if you will open your heart to Jesus and pray the following prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

Your Grundig and Telefunken were probably made in the 50s, especially if they have tubes. Yes, those were the world's best radios in their day. Many American tube radios of the period had cheap plastic cabinets and tinny sound, and after 1955 or so Americans started phasing out tube radio production in favor of transistor radios, so tube radios got even worse in America as design quickly shifted to transistor portables and transistorized "hi fi" stereo equipment. The Europeans (Dutch and British as well as Germans) kept making quality tube table radios for a while after 1955, and when they shifted to transistors those had excellent quality and sound as well, unlike the cheap plastic four transistor shirtpocket portables that were being sold in America. I have a British transistor portable from about 1970 that I bought off ebay.uk, and it's made in Britain (unlike stuff sold in America which was made in Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan and other Asian nations) and has very good sound quality despite being an off brand the name of which I can't remember at the moment. It also has REAL teakwood endpieces. I've always wanted a German transistor portable from the same period, but I don't speak German (necessary for corresponding with Germans on ebay.de) and the weak dollar puts buying one out of reach. IMO the Americans haven't made a decent radio in 60+ years-I have a 1939 black dial Zenith that is VERY beautiful and has excellent sound, with bass, altobass, and treble controls. It's definitely in the same league as the German tube radios of the 50s. OTOH, I have a 1965 Arvin tube table radio that is made of cheap plastic, has a circuit board that the tubes plug into, and sounds like an American transistor portable of the same era. How the mighty fell!

I was speaking to Al Arduengo on a finer point of Usenet etiquette. I also brought up cuhulin. I'm not familiar with Arduengo's military background, if he has one. I'm familiar with cuhulin's, though...and he was in the Army IIRC. So I can only assume that you think I'm addressing you, although I'm not sure why. I haven't addressed you in this thread. As a matter of fact, I may have never addressed you at all, ever. So, if you're the Marine in question, let me assure you that I wasn't speaking to you. Besides that, nothing in my post could be considered critical of you in any way, since you never came up. How you got yourself involved in this I don't know. Am I'm mistaken about cuhulin, and he was in fact in the Corps? As for someone pinching my head off, keep your empty threats to yourself. The last thing that impresses me is some one making threats from behind his keyboard. Does that apply to you? I don't know...that's for you to decide.

> Don't forget.

Don't forget what?

> Burr
> PS: Use your real name, if your a man.

Come threaten me to my face, if you're a man.

See how easy that was? Hollow threats impress no one. I could post using the name Burr Patterson and you'd have no way of knowing if it was true or not. Anyone on the net can call themselves whatever they want to. Does it bother you that I don't use my real name? Great! That's one of the reasons that I don't do it. Not only that, Honus is a real surname. If I hadn't told you that Honus wasn't my name, you'd just look like an ass for accusing me of using a nym because I could easily claim (and "prove") that it -was- my real name. ( www.whitepages.com ) It's all kind of funny, coming from a guy named Burr. Until someone that I trust about vouches for you, or until I investigate it for myself (which I have no plans on doing) I've no assurance that that's your real name. I'm sure it is, but it doesn't matter whether it is or not. I'm not going to come looking for you. I'm not going to call you at home. I'm not going to send you a mail bomb. Were you planning on coming looking for me? I'm sure that's not the case. So get over it. It means -nothing-, and I'm not about to start using my real name because you want me to, or because you think less of me since I don't.

Oh, wait...was that use your real name directed at cuhulin, and not me? Or one of the other guys here that don't use their real names? No...I didn't think so.

You're too predictable, and boring and the epitome of why America is going downhill.  You are also say you are in favor of limiting freeedom, much like facist and communists do.  Sorry, but you go in the killfile.

Alright...I've reposted the old pages, just for you. (Mostly.)  They weren't the best; I was teaching myself html, and that was a fun way to do it. Some of the text is pretty rough too...in more ways than one. Don't go there if you're thin-skinned. I'm having it professionally redone by the company that registered the domain name for me. They're also providing hosting. They're really good, and I'm looking forward to the final product. Problem is, I have to tell them what I want it to look like, and I'm drawing a -total- blank. That's also the condition of the check that I haven't sent them yet, for the design. <gbg> Just kidding...they'll get them both at the same time. Anyway, I've disabled the guestbook and send me e-mail functions. The section that you're specifically looking for is called "Tomato Allah". It has some fish with the script for Allah on their sides. The rest of it is worth a look too, though. Burr might especially get a kick out of the section on how I got stuck with this silly nym. ;) Just remember...this is the rough draft. <gbg> Don't judge me too harshly.

Is AIH on RCI shortwave? My internet connection isn't all that great...

The "gay bomb" idea is too funny, even if it is homophobic. Imagine a drug that can be sprayed on an enemy, and suddenly the attacked feel an overwhelming urge to assfuck each other, and they do so until the assfuck-free American troops rush in and force them to surrender in less time than it takes for them to pull their cocks out of each other's butts. Of course, the drug would work both ways, and spraying it on American troops would produce an even more extreme result. Now imagine it sprayed by terrorists from a crop duster over San Francisco... :)

The guys at the Pentagon have some really weird ideas.

I have no idea. I'm reading from the shortwave group, and I can say for myself that I TRY to listen to the BBC every night-that is when local interference isn't playing havoc with the reception. I also like listening to Radio Havana Cuba-they're not so strident in their anti-American rhetoric anymore, and their perspective is truly unique. For example, the latest prisoner abuse scandal that was reported by America's ABC-TV as simply being "guns pointed at the heads of detainees" was reported by the Cubans to involve quite a bit more, including physical abuse (punching and kicking, but no sexual stuff this time). Who's right? Who knows? As for the Canadians, The World At Six comes on at 5 pm my local time, and I choose to watch the local news instead (gotta get the weather report). But As It Happens is earlier, although I'll probably miss that too since my upcoming new job will likely require me to work early afternoons.

I figure that the majority of shortwave listeners in the US listen to DOMESTIC shortwave, which is why rec.radio.shortwave is so full of loonies.

PS: Seems your idea wasn't that far off the mark after all:
http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/commrxvr/0014.html
That thing converts the whole 0-30 MHz range to digital with a sample rate of 66.67 MHz and a 14 bit resolution (dynamic range ~84 dB). You can then grab approx. 160 kHz wide pieces from the spectrum and send them to the PC for analysis (including demodulation in whatever mode) via USB. Spectrum analysis is the primary target application for the thing, which sounds reasonable since the dynamic range wouldn't be suitable for a DX rig. I guess things would become yet more interesting with a USB 2.0 or Firewire interface, which would allow up to 20 times wider spectral windows.

I assume that in several years it'll be possible to sample the whole 0-30 MHz range with 16, later with 18 and yet later with 20 bits, at which point a full-featured communications receiver covering signals from .1 �V to 100 mV should be possible. Distortion, however, will probably be a matter for itself. I bet the strong signal handling of good pro rigs will not be reached by direct-A/D based receivers any time soon. But interesting niche solutions they are for sure...

I don't own an audio spectrum analyzer so I'll have to stick to my ears. Using my ears I don't notice any additional distortion from using the sync. I own four different makes of radios that have sync and have not noticed the additional distortion of which you speak. The default for me is to leave it on. Usually I only turn it off for band scanning or seeking because I don't want to wait for it to lock.

Sounds like your radio needs adjustment or you are just hearing an interfering signals heterodyne made apparent by the injected carrier.

Absolutely right.  It no more makes a radio consumer an endorser or support of communism than the companies who are outsourcing their production to China and elsewhere while making contributions to both political parties.

What are you guys talking about? I read this news group almost every day and didn't see this. Maybe that because I use a kill file and already had the guy Plonked.

There is always at least one whack job around spoiling things for other people.

I'm not even a little bit worried about hackers. ;)

I'll see if I can get the old version uploaded...the new one isn't ready yet. I'll keep you posted!

Anyone remember what propagation was like on 27 December?

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/science/nature/4278005.stm

Huge 'star-quake' rocks Milky Way

Astronomers say they have been stunned by the amount of energy released in a star explosion on the far side of our galaxy, 50,000 light-years away.

The flash of radiation on 27 December was so powerful that it bounced off the Moon and lit up the Earth's atmosphere.

The initial burst of high-energy radiation subsided quickly but there continues to be an afterglow at longer radio wavelengths.

Juhani Niinisto, head of Radio Finland, has contacted Radio Netherlands to correct a story about possible cuts in the mediumwave/shortwave services published on the web site of the Finnish national newspaper Helsingin Sanomat on 10 February. The information in the newspaper report, which was also published on BBC Monitoring's Media File on 10 February, was in fact based on an old story from June 2004, Mr Niinisto pointed out.

He provided the following new details:

"Since June 2004 there has been public discussion about the future of international free-to-air radio in Finland. The major organization representing Finnish nationals abroad (Suomi-Seura, Finland Society) has underlined the view that reception of free-to-air radio from Finland is a "subjective" right of the expats. The organization, headed by former foreign minister and Labour Party chairman, Mr Pertti Paasio, has worked intensely on the matter. For example, they had some 30,000 copies of a leaflet printed focusing on the cost to the consumer of a) SW b) mobile phone internet and c) satellite services.

"Last week, Finland Society handed in a petition representing some 15,000 Finnish expatriates, to the chairman of the parliamentary controllers of YLE, MP Mika Lintila. In public, the issue has become mainly a discussion of the high cost to the consumer of the use of mobile internet. Commenting on the matter on air (YLE Radio News, in Finnish, 8 Feb 2005, 1400 gmt) Mr Lintila said that mobile phone internet, in its present form, probably cannot replace radio via shortwave.

"YLE has taken so far no decisions about the future of its SW. The current agreement concerning distribution with Digita/TDF runs out at the end of 2006. The popularity of Radio Finland amongst expats may be attributed to the fact that in the early 90 Radio Finland broke away from the traditional international broadcasting formats and introduced continuous all-day flows of programming. Live domestic and international sports is a key attraction.

"Within YLE, the future of SW and MW is an issue at the corporate level, and not a matter handled within the external broadcasting branch only. As stated, no decisions have so far been taken.

"In 2002 YLE closed all foreign language external services, except Russian and some small languages spoken in Russia. The closures did not arouse much protest, except to some extent from the German area. The reaction to the possibility of closing now Finnish and Swedish has been suprisingly vast and intense, and may be unique in recent expatriate media discussions, internationally. Radio Finland has not, repeat, not, been involved in these campaigns."

Let me remind you that no one has 'stopped' anyone from posting here regarding radio, the design of a radio, etc.

If the fellow from China wants to post here (or not) and read responses (or not) that apparently is his choice (or his governments choice).

Please bear that in mind.

Wouldn't that be possibly true also if the liberals had won and gotten their way?

Something to think about? Or are you just incredibly as stupid as I think you are?

Here's the irony....the "winners" here are the real losers, for you'll be getting exactly the opposite of what you've been told is coming your way. The fact that you don't even see it coming is what makes it all the more hilarious.  Sortof like the sitcom, where we in the audience know what's in store, but the Clueless Dad walks right into it.

Interestingly, the KWM-1 transceiver, not exactly cheap in its day either, has the reputation of being rather noisy.

That would be a "Transistor 6001". The 5000 was the Sat 205, the 6000 the 208.

Not too surprising considering the '2010 does not have front-end tuning.

The dynamic range even of a balanced FET mixer is finite after all.

If I ever get into the position to do something about the audio quality issue, I'll see what I can do. It's a shame when a newfangled Sony ICF-M60SRDS cannot keep up with a 30 year old Grundig Signal 700 sound wise and is somewhat but not dramatically better than a Philips D1835 with a much smaller speaker (8 cm vs. 12 cm). (BTW, Philips is a Dutch company. They had their '80s portables made in Hong Kong (e.g. D1835, D29xx) or China (e.g. AE3405), but then Grundig's Yacht Boys of the time like the 700 were made in Singapore, too. Grundig( Europe)'s later portables usually came from the factory in Portugal.)

Ohhhh!  Wow!  A real question, a string of words which suggests that there's a brain behind the submitter, that went to the trouble to formulate an invitation to discuss ideas, concepts and outcomes.....but, then there's...

| Something to think about? Or are you just incredibly as stupid as I think you

An insult.  And, to make matters worse....

| Damn, this hobby is filled with 'tard boys.

The "witty" retort.  Still fresh.  After I got back up off the floor, I had to change my shorts, you made me laugh so hard I wet myself.  You know, you're not doing a lot of DXing here, bub.  So what your hobby's filled with is of your own doing.

And you never did answer my reply last time....could it be that you only look at rec.radio.shortwave?  I tried to answer your email, but it bounced.  So, just to let you know....sure, I'll go for some anonymous sex, but I suggest that we meet in Windsor, where you're much less likely to get busted for prostitution.

I own a Grundig radio that has shortwave bands and AM/FM bands and it has a phonograph/record player in the top of the radio which has a lid that is hinged at the back and folds down to cover the phonograph/record player.The radio does work but it needs some repair work to make it work like it is suppose to work properly,seems that it doesn't put out much sound/audio.The phonograph/record player works too.The radio has a wood cabinet.I bought the radio for $14.00 at a Goodwill thrift store about seven years ago.Right now I am useing the radio as a tv stand for a tv set I don't use anymore and my stupid webtv set top box is sitting on top of that old tv set.The owners manual is in the top of the radio where the phonograph/record player is and I am not going to the trouble to get it out to see what model of radio it is till I damn well feel like it.I think the radio dates back to the 1950's but I don't remember exactly.If some of y'all will throw up some websites with some pictures/thumbnails (I like them thumb nail pics of them pretty naked wimmins too) of those old radios,maybe there might be a picture of the make and model radio I own.I also own a big Telefunken shortwave AM/FM wooden case table model (good "yum yum" is called Table Grade) radio that I bought at a Goodwill thrifstore about six years ago but that radio does not work because some of the tubes are missing and I don't know whatever else/work it needs to get it working.There is NO such thing nowdays as new radios of any kind that comes anywhere near looking as good as those old radios of many years ago,I don't care what anybody says.Damn F..King cheap ass plastic radios nowdays look like shit!

Yep I'll be setting up a dumpster over there in the corner----->

Please put all your trashy used radios in it and I will arrange for diposal of them.

Only reason I'm considering it is because a dealer is selling it and they guarantee it'll work.  If it does work well, I can probably resell it without taking near as much of a hit if I grow tired of it.

I've bought and sold many radios over the years, and there was only one that I sold was due to problems, I traded it in on a new one.

Of all the SW receivers I have bought, only one had any problems, and it turned out the seller was famous for this.

I have sold radio because:

I just wanted a better one.
I didn't like something about it.
I didn't like the audio.
I wanted to buy something else (needed the $$$
I had too many and wasn't using it much...

I would always recommend going with a decent used radio, like a NRD 525 over a POS portable like a lot of people do..

Wow, this thread is almost on-topic!

But the flag-waver needs a reality check.  Unless he's a frequent listener of news sources outside of the U-S (my favourite is the CBC, but the Beeb will do) the idea that market forces will "correct" this oversight fails to realise that market forces have created this problem in the first place.

The first thing I'd do, if I were running things, is oblige licencees to run a minimum amount of news sustaining (although I'm not sure what I'd do with all-news stations) as a condition of licence.  By taking out the financial segment of the equation we might get the real news once again.  As with everything else in America, the money has corrupted the process to the point where it's unrecognisable from the industry of the past, where true investigative journalism overturned administrations, corrected social imbalances and played a role in making the U-S the beacon of freedom it once was.  But of course, it's the flag-wavers who don't really want it that way, anyway, just so long as things stay the same for them.  And (it's worth noting, not that you don't already know) there are plenty of countries where government "ownership" does not come with government control....often, in truly free societies, it's the government-owned media that is the biggest critic of its government.  But the flag-wavers don't know that, either.

I got this about a month ago and was so excited I threw the box away.
Everything else is like new - receiver, carrying case, external antenna, nimh batteries, earbuds, adapter and charger. This also comes with an English manual. The only reason I'm selling is financial difficulty. $45 shipped anywhere in the US. Please contact bluemind@gmail.com for more info. Thanks.

Weren't you experimenting with crystal radios a year or two ago?  Generally, repair is easier than homebrew.

Nearly all single conversion superhets align using the same simple procedures.  I think the DX-160 service manual is online, and the ARRL handbooks have some good straightforward alignment instructions.

You can even do excellent alignments without a signal generator, if you have digital readout receiver to read the radio's local oscillator frequency.

However, the radio may be aligned about as well as it can be.  Generally, the dial readout is exactly correct at two or three points on the dial, at best.  There are usually areas in which the dial readout doesn't perfectly track with the received frequency probably because the tuning capacitor/ coils don't exactly match the prototype they developed the original dial from.

Anyway, if you want to give it a try, I'm sure you can get some help here.

And according to something I heard on the radio in the last day or two, a lot of that money was funds from the "Oil for Food" program that were turned over to the Coalition Provisional Authority after the takeover.

So those guys are no better than Saddam.

I think this was around 9.8 - 9.9 MHz, and I think the word "Power" was in the program name.

Note that the MAP on Ebay right now is missing the direct pickup attachment, AC adapter, and manual, and has some cosmetic flaws.

FYI, I will soon be auctioning a MAP unit for a friend of mine. It has the manual, the pickup, the AC adapter, and is in very nice shape. Watch Ebay for this one... I'll post the Ebay item number here, too.

I might be selling my own Kiwa MAP sometime, as my current main receiver (IC-756Pro) is all DSP and a 455 kHz I.F. hookup is not possible.

24 November 2004 - Voice of America News
China's Sichuan Province Tense in Aftermath of Violent Anti-Dam Protests
By Luis Ramirez
Hanyuan, China
This man, who did not want his name used, saw the confrontation and says it is impossible to know exactly how many people were killed. "People died," he said. "Maybe more than 10,000 died. It cannot be estimated."

Others in Hanyuan give accounts of staggering death tolls. But it is impossible to independently verify. The government promptly sealed off the entire region surrounding the dam, and banned all news media from entering. Witnesses cautioned that if journalists were discovered in the area, authorities would detain and expel them.

In a car with tinted windows, this reporter anonymously slipped into the gorge along the Dadu River - past heavily armed soldiers and police, to catch a glimpse of the gigantic dam project and the towns of villages that are to be flooded.

Nov 10, 2004 - COMMUNIST POLICE BEAT SICHUAN PROTESTERS

Tens of thousands marched in Hanyuan County to protest a forced relocation that included "tearing down their homes under orders issued by corrupt officials" who lied about the compensation value of the land seized. In response to the protest, the cadres sent in the police, who "injured several dozen people and beat one man to death."

Nov 17, 2004 - SICHUAN PROTESTS ENDS WITH COMMUNIST POLICE SHOOTING

The farmers and others protesting a mass forced relocation in Hanyuan County, Sichuan Province, were met with a hail of bullets from Communist police. An activist in communication with the farmers during the shooting told the Epoch Times that the police killed seventeen protestors and wounded at least forty others.

Luo Gan, head of security for the People's Republic of China, flew in himself to supervise the crackdown. Luo, a prot�g� of Tiananmen Square butcher Li Peng, may have been driven to follow in Li's bloody footsteps by the recent reports tallying the number of protests in Communist China at more than three million.

Nov 24, 2004 - SICHUAN DAM HALTED, CADRE FIRED AFTER PROTEST
BUT THE KILLING CONTINUES AS MORE COMMUNIST MILITARY IS SENT IN

The massive protests against relocation forced by cadres building a dam in Sichuan has led the Communists to fire one unnamed cadre and promise suspension of construction. Left unmentioned by the BBC report of the "riot" was the fact that Communist police shot at least seventeen protestors dead.

In fact, the PRC has sent in the military to "put down the 'rebellion' of the unarmed peasants", through, among other things, the use of tear gas - "many people have been wounded and some killed." Of course, local cadres are insisting "there is no gathering of armed forces and no conflict between the government and local residents."
http://www.geocities.com/china_e_lobby/24November2004.html

Dec 1, 2004 - DEATH TOLL IN HANYUAN COUNTY "CANNOT BE ESTIMATED"
"STAGGERING" SLAUGHTER BY MILITARY TERRORIZES ANTI-DAM LOCALS INTO SILENCE; CONSTURCTION OF DAM CONTINUES DESPITE PRC PLEDGE TO SUSPEND IT

The Epoch Times managed to get Luis Ramirez (VOA) into Hanyuan County, where the military forces of the People's Republic crushed a massive protest against land seizures by local cadres to build a power dam. One local, who wisely "did not want his name used," guessed the number of protestors killed by the Communist military to be "more than 10,000".

While such a number - or any number - was "impossible to independently verify," other locals gave "accounts of staggering death tolls." If the number is even remotely accurate, it would be three times the estimated number killed in Tiananmen Square in 1989; as on that fateful June 4, "troops fired on the unarmed demonstrators."

The dam "will force 100,000 people from their homes." A roughly equal number of protestors filled the streets of Hanyuan County and tried to shut down dam construction. The Communists pledged to halt said construction, but according to this report, "it is apparent that work on the dam has in fact continued."

It should be noted that the decision to send in the military was made by "both the central government and the Sichuan provincial authorities," meaning that the Hanyuan November massacre can be laid at the feet of "reformer" Hu Jintao.

You must be new to Usenet. When a thread goes off on such a tangent that it has nothing to do with the original post, the polite thing to do is rename the thread...preferably with a Was: in front of the old name. That way people who want to follow the original, on-topic discussion can do so without wading through all of the other, unrelated crap. Let's say we're discussing images, and cuhulin chimes in that his dog Blueberry www.cattledog.com just farted in his open mouth. That leads off to a thread of discussion that has nothing to do with images, like why is his open mouth so close to Blueberry's ass in the first place? Anyone who wants to follow the images conversation has to wade through the farting cattledog replies. Not good.

So then someone renames the thread "Cuhulin sucks dog farts Was: images".

That's good. See, when the replies aren't to the original thread, they don't belong in the thread they originated in. ;)

When did you get out of therapy? I'm guessing you went there after Kerry lost.

You did disappear for quite a while. Was that the reason?

That's one really nice thing about Sirius Satellite.  They have the BBC World Service News 24/7, along with the CBC on World Radio Network on PRI which carries ''As It Happens'' live.

Once you get the International News habit, you realize that the masses are being brainwashed by the US commercial media.  No other word for it.

Actually I am not new to usenet. And I made the invalid assumption that those reading would know to only create a new thread when the actual subject of the discussion changed. Most of the violaters here start a new thread everytime they reply to a post. That is what I am complaining about.

OK I've humored you for a while now either stop responding to him or you are joining David in the kill file. I'm tired of seeing his crap because you regurgitate it.

He is a nut case. Plonk him or be Plonked yourself.

That fart was probably the most intelligent thing anybody on WebTV has ever said.

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

You can be saved right now and on your way to Heaven if you will open your heart to Jesus and pray the following prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

Look around on eBay and buy yourself a Philiips plus webtv box or a Sony or an RCA or Samsung webtv plus webtv box.You can get on the msntv one plan thingy for about $21.00 per month subscription fee for your dumb computer and then webtv is free and if you have broadband DSL for your dumb computer,you can use stupid webtv on regular dial up and your dumb computer on DSL at the same time.My computer is on Road Runner www.twcjam.com broadband and my stupid Philips plus model 976 webtv box is on regular Bell South dial up.Don't be a dumnass,get webtv.You just might like it.Seee,I am not a laggard,I have the best of both Worlds.I hear tell most computer users who use only computers are a bunch of shitasses.For your information,most webtv users are very nice folks.Don't judge them all by me,Dummy.Philips company still repairs Philips webtv tv boxes is the reason I say look for a Philips webtv box.Hey,webtv does not get any viruses either,you never have to spend any time with any anti virus updates with webtv.y'all dumb computer users look down on webtv,y'all don't know what y'all are missing.I have been useing webtv since October 1999 and my webtv box is the best thing I have spent any money on. cuhulin

Radio Guangdong provided us with a special CD called "Sentimental String". This is a disc for pure music enjoyment with the violin as the key instrument and multi-accompaniment of various human sounds. With its gentle, smooth and stretching style, the string expresses affectionate feeling and communicates with audients by humanized musical language. If you want to be part of that beautiful experience, you will have to answer a simple question:

According to Chinese calendar, which animal represents 2005? (Answer: Chinese Chicken )

In addition to our main prize, you will also receive some other exciting merchandise from our partner broadcasters!

You will easily give us the right answer if you read carefully our newsletter and listen to Radio Guangdong programme this weekend on WRN ( http://www.wrn.org/ ).

So, we are looking forward to your answers which you can send until Thursday, February 24 to mail@wrn.org. Please put "WRN English Newsletter" into the subject line, and don't forget your name and address.

$69.97 + shipping (which I didn't check for cost)
If your entire purchase is $99 or more you can get $10 off by using this Coupon Code: SPG1335
There are errors in the radio's description... like "digital tuning" (it has a digital readout but is analog tuned) and major broadcasters like Germany targeting North America.
I've purchased there once before and got a great set of binocs.
But haven't bought any electronics from them.

Kids Say the Darndest, Most Stalinist Things
By Bill Maher
Bill Maher is the host of HBO's "Real Time With Bill Maher."

February 18, 2005

A new survey found that a majority of high schoolers think newspapers should not be allowed to publish without government approval. And almost one in five said that Americans should be prohibited from expressing unpopular opinions.

Lemme tell you little darlings something: This is my livelihood you're messing with, so either learn the Bill of Rights or you don't deserve Social Security.

Now, to those of you who think I'm overreacting: Yes, I understand that when you're in high school you're still very young and that no one really cares what kids say anyway � it's not like priests are dating them for their brains.

But the younger generation is supposed to rage against the machine, not for it; they're supposed to question authority, not question those who question authority.

And what's so frightening is that we're seeing the beginnings of the first post-9/11 generation � the kids who first became aware of the news under an "Americans need to watch what they say" administration, the kids who've been told that dissent is un-American and therefore justifiably punished by a fine, imprisonment � or the loss of your show on ABC.

President Bush once asked, "Is our children learning?" No � they isn't. A more appropriate question might be, "Is our teachers teaching?" In four years, you can teach a gorilla sign language. Is it too much to ask that in the same amount of time a kid be taught what those crazy hippies who founded this country had in mind?

I know the Morals & Values folks want us to take time out of the school day for prayer and the Ten Commandments and abstinence training and at least two theories of evolution � the one agreed upon by every scientist in the world and the one that involves naked ladies and snakes � but, lest we forget, last month the people of Iraq risked death and danger to send a simple, inspiring message: America, get out of our country. But also, we want the freedoms you take for granted.

Now, I didn't mind being on the losing side of the last election. But as a loser, I guess I have some "unpopular" opinions � and I'd like to keep them. I'd even like to continue to say them right out loud on TV, because if I just get up there every Friday night and spout the Bush administration's approved talking points, that's not freedom or entertainment. It's Fox News.

I was always under the impression that that the ICF 2001 and the ICF 2001D led to the 2010. Anyhow, my 2001 (no D) appears to be twice the radio of that 7600D. I have a 7600a, nice little radio (as far as little radios go) but no match for the 2001. RM~

Another totally wrong statement from the DXing idiot savant. Canada is about as fascist as a grapefruit is like an asparagus.

What's this thing with Canada, eh?

Did you run across the border thinking you could get cheap meds without a prescription, and get turned down?

Speaking of which, you might check your current dosages and consult a doctor. When someone calls Canada "fascist" I have to think they are either crazy or drugged, or both.

Two words: global warming. I heard on the BBC that scientists have proved that the warming of the earth is due to human meddling. I've also heard that the earth could warm up to 11 degrees over the next 50-100 years. The ice sheet over the Arctic has ALREADY lost an area equal to the size of Texas AND Arizona. The Sacramento River delta in California-the source for most of the agricultural water in the central valley, and of SoCal's drinking water-is going to change from fresh water to salt water over the next few decades, making it unusable for any human use. Hang on folks, there's more coming...

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

You can be saved right now and on your way to Heaven if you will open your heart to Jesus and pray the following prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

This is a great "pro" quality recorder that usually goes for $200 to $300.
it would be a great recorder for radio listeners.
you can learn more about it here:
http://www.d-mpro.com/users/getdownload.asp?DownloadID=108

the built in mic doesn't seem to do anything but the recordings using the LINE-IN  are great at both speeds !
price is $50 plus $12 for shipping

I have the PMD201 and it has been a great additon to my equipment. I bought mine at a surplus auction about 10 years ago and use it daily.
My only complaint is that the pause button does not kill the motor, andit is only mono. I wish I had a stereo, but beggers can't be too choosy.

can bet that anything coming out of anyone associated with the Chavez than to quote from one of Fidel Castro's rump wranglin' butt-buddies you'd better give up.

We use the term "dxAce"..it means drugged, crazy AND drunk all at once. It's a HUGE saving of bandwidth.

An example of proper usage:

"Fred was pissed last night..he was a real dxAce"

You really do need to read this:

http://www.crichton-official.com/speeches/speeches_quote04.html

It's lengthy and requires some concentration, but don't let that scare you off. There's more to science (and reality) than what you hear on your favorite radio program .. or than what matches your media driven preconceptions.

The 2001D was the international version of the 2010. The former came in various versions with blocked coverage and no SSB for certain countries such as Saudi Arabia. The latter was sold only in North America with full HF coverage and SSB.

Matthew 10:34 - "Do not think that I came to bring peace on the earth; I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. 35 "For I came to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; 36 and a man�s enemies will be the members of his household."

Luke 12:51 - "Do you suppose that I came to grant peace on earth? I tell you, no, but rather division; 52 for from now on five members in one household will be divided, three against two, and two against three..."

Take photos. Put it on E-Bay. Offer it as-is.
Make the buyers pay for shipping and handling.
Worst thing you can do is sell it in bulk to the local hams as they most likely know what it's worth and will try to pay you pennies-on-the-dollar for stuff you can make reasonable $$$ for on e-Bay.
I've seen hams show up at the widow's door a day after the ham has been planted under 6' of dry earth. Don't let em snocker you out of what may be big $$$.  Find a local honest ham (NOT a Dealer!) who will broker the stuff for you for a fair price. There's alot of vultures in the radio hobby that will rob you blind in a heartbeat if you let em.

Pete,

I've been curious about your technical background, particularly your formal education. Where did you learn the subject matter which you implement so well with radio receivers?

Thanks

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

You can be saved right now and on your way to Heaven if you will open your heart to Jesus and pray the following prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

| (Can't handle it, can you, 'tard boy?)

God, you are dense!  He said YOU GO IN THE KILLFILE.  So, after you're done playing with yourself, you bother to answer, further cluttering up these newsgroups.  And as you've quite worn out your welcome with me, you can keep yourself warm in mine, too.

You can't polish a turd.  Yes, I said turd.  The stuff you brain's made out of. Wanker.  On your best days, you're a waste of tissue.

WOKY  920 in Milwaukee, WI is currently conducting a DX test until 2 AM EST.

Currently playing standards and AC. Heard an ID in CW a few minutes ago.

An easy one here, but then I'm just across the lake from them.

Christian Vision is beginning a series of tests in DRM to the United Kingdom. Having declared its intention to run significant regular transmissions to UK and Europe later in the year, the tests in partnership with transmission providers in Europe are a prelude to this. With the cooperation of T-Systems International, Media&Broadcast in Germany, Christian Vision will be using the J�lich site for shortwave transmissions in English as follows:

21st-27th February:
1600-1800 UTC on 7200kHz
Antenna: log periodic - (equivalent to HR1/2/0/.5)
Bearing: 285 deg
Power: 40kW

No, the only agreement around here is that you are an idiot.

"Third world" includes many of America�s inner cities and poor rural areas.
Parts of Bolivia are more prosperous than most of West Virginia! So cut your stereotypical crap, and quit offending other nations. You may have DXed many countries, but you know nothing about them.

How do you know that, 'tard boy?

You don't have a clue as to what I know, do you? But you'll act like a jackass thinking that you do.

LMAO at the obvious 'tard.

They are very rare. I have only heard of them occurring in the last few years. I heard a report that there were three tornados today and at least one of them caused damage. That is a first in California I think.

Alex Jones is #1.  Most of the other political kooks are AJ imitators.  Alex
Jones is the Elvis of paranoid kookiness.

However, the peak value of SW weirdness has been achieved by both George W.

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

You can be saved right now and on your way to Heaven if you will open your heart to Jesus and pray the following prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

I've written this down so I'll know how to avoid it.

Excellent - did you send an electronic report? Less stations send cards now but an email "QSL" is so uninspiring.

Are you talkink about the actuall noise figure, or the high amount of I.F.

Still, a properly designed mixer of this type should have an IP3 of at least +10dBm. The Palstar R30 uses this type of mixer, and has an IP3 of +18dBm.
The only other radio that had a balanced JFET mixer that had that kind of 2nd order IM problem was an AOR3030. That had to be one of the worst receivers I ever owned. That company was even too cheap to put a bandpass filter in the MW range...........instead, they inserted a 10dB attenuator. I ended up putting a MW bandpass filter of my own design. After changing all of the front end filter diodes, I.F. filter switching diodes, and AGC diodes to 1N5767 PIN diodes the receiver had some semblance of a real receiver (note, only a semblance).
All in all, the '2010 isn't a bad receiver, considering everything it does.

I do remember Philips being a Dutch company.........I just threw them into the mix. It sounds like you have been "around the block" as far as radios are concerned. I love those European radios!

You would think that it would be the case, but it just isn't.............my first dual conversion receiver had a 1st I.F. of 10.7MHz and a 2nd I.F. of 455kHz. Low-side injection of the 10.245MHz 2nd LO at a level of +7dBm into a diode ring mixer.

Upper sideband = 10.7MHz................lower sideband = 9.79MHz. I had a 910kHz rejection of only 35dB, which is pretty bad for this type of design. I went through all of the calculations and had the folks at Piezo Technology stuck. They never heard of such a thing. I tried different filter termination impedance, tuned circits at 10.7MHz, atteunator pads to provide a resistive termination for the crystal filter. It was out of desperation one day that I tried a copper shield around the 2nd LO and the image dropped down below the noise floor of the system. The offending culprit was WOPA 1490 interfering with WILL 580. WOPA was in Oak Park, Illinois, while WILL is in Champaign, Illinois, at the University of Illinois.

Once I went to lower power 2nd LOs the problem hasn't shown up. Also, with the selective diplexer I am using after the 1st mixer (BW =13kHz @ 6dB), the additional selectivity helps out quite a bit.

When I told some of my co-workers at Collins Radio Co. about it, they hadn't heard of this mechanism either.

Alex Jones wasn't the only kook at WGTG, either. The guy who ran the station at the turn of the century (and whom I hate to have to admit was a fellow ham) IMO holds the record for irresponsibility in SW broadcasting. Note that I refer to the real WGTG in Georgia, not the pirate station that used the same call letters.

Good News!

Do you know how simple it is to go to Heaven after this life has ended?

The good news is that God came from Heaven to earth in the person of Jesus Christ over 2000 years ago and died for our past, present and future sins(misdeeds). He was born in the land of Israel supernaturally to a virgin Jewish woman named Mary. He lived a sinless life for thirty-three years and then sacrificed His sinless blood and died on a cross to pay the death penalty for our sins.

After Jesus died He rose from the dead three days later as He said He would. The Holy Bible also tells us that Jesus Christ ascended into Heaven and that all who accept Him as their Lord and Saviour will live forever with Him in Heaven where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness and pain.

The Holy Bible very clearly explains how simple it is to be saved and on your way to Heaven, "For if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you WILL BE SAVED." (Romans 10:9)

Dear Jesus Christ, I want to be saved so that I can have a home in Heaven when I die. I agree with You that I am a sinner. I believe You love me and want to save me. I believe that You bled and died on the cross to pay the penalty for my sins. I believe that You rose from the dead. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart and be my Lord and Saviour. Thank You Lord Jesus Christ for forgiving me and saving me through Your merciful grace. Amen.

You are now a Christian if you said the prayer and allowed

God to save you. Welcome to the family of God.

If you decide to wait till later you may die before you get another chance to be saved because none of us knows exactly when we will die.

This means that if we die without trusting in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour we will be forever separated from the love of God in a place called Hell. This place called Hell is a place of eternal torment, suffering, pain and agony for all those who reject Jesus Christ.

Choose Jesus Christ today and you will have peace in your life now and forever.

Have a great day!

Lost what credibility he had left when he started selling his "911 In Plane Site" video. These two also tie in with the Gulf War Illness debacle (Jackie Patru, mentioned in Michael's post). Then there is the issue of Riley's involvement with the Southern Poverty Law Center, a notorious front organization with close links to the FBI. There is also a link between Riley and Dr. Garth Nicholson, a key figure in secret US biowarfare programs, and Linda Kennedy, a lawyer who once worked for Riley and von Kleist as a personal assistant but later split with them, alleges that Riley and von Kleist have had direct contacts with FBI and Military Intelligence. Bottom line - since we really don't know who these people are, it's entirely possible that Von Kleist and Riley are not what they seem to be and would have you believe they are. But if I proceed further I will begin to sound like some of the shortwave kooks this thread is about, so I end here. :-)

One of many nutcases who've also appeared on Coast-To-Coast AM over the years. Why not just lump them all under Art Bell and get it over with? Then this might get my vote.

>Brother Stair

See comments below.

>John Stadtmiller

One of Ted Anderson's "Genesis" puppets. Fits right in with Alex Jones and numerous other zealots. See comments below.
>Jeff Rense

Another UFO nutcase. How can you mention him and not Sherry Shriner and her Bible codes? Yeah, these people - really off the deep end IMO.

>Radio Moscow (prior to Soviet break-up)

You have to bear in mind that this was a part of the Soviet propaganda machine...a throwback to the roots of SWBC as part of the Nazi propaganda machine during WWII. This, when SWBC began, was what SWBC was all about. In that sense, Radio Moscow can hardly be considered a SW kook unless you want to also list propaganda stations from the other side such as VOA, Radio Free Europe, and the like in the same category. These stations were telling their side of a political dispute. That's a far cry from watching flying saucers land.

>Jack Blood

Nah. Just a fill-in for Stadtmiller.

>Voice Of Korea

Fits in with my comments about Radio Moscow.

>Hal Turner

No worse than Limbaugh.

>Radio Havana

This used to be one of my most hated stations on the airwaves due to its vicious anti-American propaganda...but again, refer back to my comments on Radio Moscow.

>HAARP

Huh? This was bona fide scientific research conducted jointly by USAF and the US Navy. Its roots go back to things most people have forgotten about, like Project Argus and Project Starfish, products of post-WWII attempts to use nukes to disturb the Van Allen belt and assess the effect this had on radio communications. Before HAARP there was also something called HIPAS conducted by the Navy. I won't post all the details, but Google up some of these projects and familiarize yourselves with the background on HAARP, and I think you'll get the sense that this isn't shortwave kookism so much as it is an indication of the fact that there is simply no limit to the degree to which the military will attempt to use science to gain an advantage over an enemy. If the military implications of these projects is troubling to you, well, perhaps it ought to be, but again, there is a world of difference between this and watching flying saucers land.

>Pastor Peters

He and Brother Stare and a few others like him are icons for the right-wing religious zealots who have overrun shortwave broadcasting in the US. Whether or not you consider them to be kooks depends, I suppose, on your own religious beliefs. Personally, I tend to avoid listening to the likes of these.

>Jackie Patru

What, you're gonna mention her and not Dave Riley? ;-)

>VOIRA

Another propaganda outlet. Once again, this is what SW broadcasting was invented for in the first place.

>WWCR in general

WWCR, WNQM, WMQM, WITA, WVOG, and others. See my comments under Pastor Peters.

>The Liberty Net

This group is a black eye on the face of ham radio, and as a licensed ham myself, I deplore their presence on our part of the radio spectrum. 'Nuff said.

>The Licolnshire Poacher

Lincolnshire Poacher was originally a cold war spy station that used a male voice in A.M. to send messages over a tune played non-electronically. Some of the early transmissions originated from HMGCC Gawcott in Buckinghamshire. The L.P. we hear today is not the same as the one which was around in the 1970s. The BBC have always distanced themselves from the idea of involvement with number stations, but I will remind everyone that staff at BBC relay stations outside the UK (now operated by Merlin Communications, the privatized World Service Programme Delivery Services department of the BBC) are not in fact employed by the BBC - they work for the British Foreign Office, and always have! Think about it...

>Radio Marti

The US response to Radio Havana, basically.

>Radio Marti's jammers

The Cuban response to the US response to Radio Havana. again, this isn't kookism, it's what SWBC was invented for in the first place, the distribution of propaganda by mass media.

>Alex Jones

Covered above.

>Respectfully,
>Michael

Some of the names above I had forgotten about, Michael - thanks for the trip down memory lane, here.

This is the case in which eleven Christians, including 17-year-old Lauren Murch, were arrested and charged with three felonies and five misdemeanors for peacefully witnessing at OutFest, a homosexual block party, sponsored by the city of Philadelphia, PA.

They "could" have gotten up to 47 years each.  Check it out at:

If it really is WWII era, I would have to imagine there are collectors who would be interested in this stuff. Tube receivers if in good condition tend to be rather sought after. I would imagine you would get better prices putting it on eBay, though. Maybe you can find someone to do the listing for you?

It might help a bit if you could give some model numbers from the ID tags on the equipment.

Who thinks the thoughts doesn't matter. The fact that they are Stalinist would still apply.  And yes, it's damn scary that our young people are not being taught the basis of our system of government or the ideals upon which the country was founded, freedom of speech, the press, peaceable assembly and religion being important enough that they made them the first issue in the Bill of Rights.

Please don't "toss it," even the "dooo-dads."
Many restorations of historic equipments are going begging because people toss the little parts.
It would help if we knew where you were located.

The average public is not going to have an interest in the items, but there are collectors all over the country who would pay a reasonable amount for the old tube equipment.
The loose parts won't fetch much- a few bucks-because there's no way to know exactly what's included- the buyer takes that risk.

He's hoping for that one knob or one resistor that completes a set he's restoring.  And sometimes, several people can find parts for their projects from one small parts box.

If we can found out where you are and some information on your estate sale, we'll send along the information to collectors in your area.  You can be sure that some of them will show up to make a reasonable offer on the equipment (will depend on model and condition, of course).

Thanks for letting us in the collector community know about your items.
Kindly,
David S.

I've never gotten familiar with e-bay and wouldn't know where to start on that, but we're going to have a garage/estate sale in a week and I just wonder if I should devote any display space for this stuff.  I imagine the average person wouldn't have any use for it.

Check this out

http://www.rotten.com/library/sex/homosexuality/

Better still, do a google search for [homosexuals disrupt church

Now, the question -- Does the same admonition apply to the queers or is it intended only for the straights?

This is the greatest coup of any president.  I next uspect that Hussein was never captured, but that they put an actor in there to fake the role.

This president talks a great deal of moral values, but in action none of those values are present.

> No one is laughing now, because Gannon was far from being a harmless distraction. He was writing under a false name and working for a Republican front organisation. Suddenly, his 'softball' questions to White House officials looked less like eccentricities and more like plotting by an administration which has frequently displayed a dark mastery of the arts of press control.
> When it emerged that Gannon was also linked to gay prostitution websites and might be a gay prostitute himself, the scandal as to how he was allowed daily access to the White House grew even murkier. The American media is now being forced to confront the possibility that Gannon, whose real name is James Guckert, was simply a Republican plant, used by officials, including President George W Bush, to ask easy questions in difficult press conferences. 'The idea of having a mole in the White House press corp is amazing, but that's what it looks like,' said Jack Lule, a journalism professor at Lehigh University.
> But the Gannon affair, which has shocked much of America's political establishment, is just the latest scandal in the media establishment. Newspapers including the New York Times and USA Today have been hit by plagiarism and forgery scandals. Other papers and television stations have been consumed with a soul-searching inquest into how they were misled about non-existent Iraqi weapons programmes. Added to that is growing evidence of a White House campaign to bypass or control the media in its everyday presentation of government policy , which included paying one journalist hundreds of thousands of dollars to promote its policies.
> Last week a federal watchdog warned the Bush administration that any video news releases must state that the government is the source. Twice in two years, government departments have been accused of distributing fake news packages, using actors as journalists.
> On the internet, the mainstream media is derided and scorned. One question is dominating US newsrooms and television studios: ignored, scandalised and now corrupted, just what is America's mainstream media for anymore?
> The extent of the Bush White House's command and control of the press corps is often revealed in the seemingly innocuous White House pool reports. These are dispatches dutifully filed by a correspondent assigned to travel with Bush and contain little but lists of endless meetings, meals eaten and clothes worn. But no detail is too small to be ignored by Bush's ever-watchful press handlers. One report, on 13 August 2004, contained a remark from Bush that it was a 'good question' as to who to support if Iraq's soccer team played the United States in the Olympics. Officials scurried to 'correct' it. 'To clear up any possible misconception ... the president would of course > support the American soccer team in any hypothetical game with Iraq,' a new report said. 'The initial report should have done more to reflect the exchange was mainly in jest.'

> Such micromanagement has been a hallmark of the Bush White House and its all-powerful policy guru, Karl Rove. Added to that has been what appears to be a concerted effort to subvert the mainstream media.
> Administration officials were recently revealed to have paid three senior journalists to promote or design policies. More than $240,000 of taxpayers' cash was paid to black pundit Armstrong Williams to push the agenda of Bush's education department. Critics were blunt in their assessment of what Armstrong's contract with the government meant. 'It is propaganda,' said Melanie Sloan of watchdog group Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics.
> At the same time, Bush has held fewer Washington press conferences than any of his modern predecessors, while courting local media, such as small city newspapers, which are perceived as easier to steamroll. During last year's election campaign Bush avoided interviews with leading newspapers, such as the Washington Post , but frequently invited reporters from smaller swing state publications to speak with him on Air Force One. Vice-president Dick Cheney took the strategy one step further and banned New York Times reporters from travelling with him.
> The media has not helped its own case. First, New York Times reporter Jayson Blair was found to have plagiarised numerous stories. The incident cost Blair his job, forced the editor to resign and was the subject of fevered Manhattan dinner party chatter for months. Then USA Today 's top foreign reporter, Jack Kelley, was discovered to have fabricated stories from around the world and invented interviews and witnesses from Cuba to Jerusalem.
> Right-wing media ratcheted up the long-standing conservative complaint that the media is dominated by liberal publications. Though many journalism experts deny that is the case, the image has settled in the American consciousness, forcing newspapers, magazines and television stations to go out of their way to prove they are not liberal. 'We have a conservative media and also a mainstream media, which is also now fairly conservative because it has been forced to deny being liberal,' said Lule.
> The Gannon case is a prime illustration. If, during the Clinton administration, a fake reporter from a Democrat front organisation, using a false name, had been exposed as attending White House press conferences it would have been a national scandal. If he had then been shown to be a gay prostitute, the scandal could have threatened a Democrat presidency. With 'Gannon' and Bush there has been no such outcry. The mainstream media has approached the story warily, while right-wing organisations such as Fox News have largely ignored it.

There is nothing in your resume that I can see that actually indicated that you received your degree. The only thing I can see is that you 'enrolled' at Arizona State University.

Can you provide a graduation date?  School you graduated from? What degree(s) did you receive?

Just curious.

Fascism is when corporations and government are so chummy they conspire against the people.  It usually manifests in a personality cult, excessive religion and lots of war and fear.

It can't happen here.

You can thank your local public Leftist/"Progressive" = Socialist/Communist school board and teacher's(?) union for that!
Which should explain why school vouchers are so heavily opposed.  The money from your property tax is the power for the Leftist school board's "agenda".

The best thing you can do for your children is scrimp and save every damn penny you can to send them to a private grammar and high school.  Check out the Coverdell savings account to pay for private K1, private H.S. and public/private college tuition expenses as well as other savings vehicles:
http://www.savingforcollege.com/coverdell_esas/

Keep your children as far away from the Leftist agenda as possible lest your children end up as Maoist robots.

I wouldn't even give him that, David.  As I've said before, people like him are the reason I'm leaving. I'll miss people like you (although I may visit) but the U-S is far too filled with these know-nothing, do-nothing examples of what happens when you let the marketplace set standards for social issues. (I haven't forgotten, btw, that I owe you a response to a question you posed. With no intent for insult...yes, I suspect you might be the frog....)

School is a waste of time, unless you're there to learn something technical.

''In an article in the 1932 Enciclopedia Italiana, written by Giovanni

Gentile and attributed to Benito Mussolini, fascism is described as a system in which "The State not only is authority which governs and molds individual wills with laws and values of spiritual life, but it is also power which makes its will prevail abroad.... For the Fascist, everything is within the State and... neither individuals nor groups are outside the State.... For Fascism, the State is an absolute, before which individuals or groups are only relative...."

Mussolini, in a speech delivered on October 28, 1925, stated the following maxim that encapsulates the fascist philosophy: "Tutto nello Stato, niente al di fuori dello Stato, nulla contro lo Stato." ("Everything in the State, nothing outside the State, nothing against the State".) Therefore, he reasoned, all individuals' business is the state's business, and the state's existence is the sole duty of the individual.

Besides totalitarianism, a key distinguishing feature of fascism is that it uses a mass movement to attack the organizations of the working class: parties of the left and trade unions. Thus Fritzsche and others describe fascism as a militant form of right-wing populism. This mobilization strategy involves Corporatism, Corporativism, or the Corporative State [2] (http://www.infoplease.com/ce6/bus/A0813636.html), all terms that refer to state action to partner with key business leaders, often in ways chosen to minimize the power of labor unions. Mussolini, for example, capitalized on fear of an imminent Socialist revolution [3] (http://www.thecorner.org/hists/total/f-italy.htm), finding ways to unite Labor and Capital, to Labor's ultimate detriment. In 1926 he created the National Council of Corporations, divided into guilds of employers and employees, tasked with managing 22 sectors of the economy. The guilds subsumed both labor unions and management, but were heavily weighted in favor of the corporations and their owners. The moneyed classes in return helped him change the country's laws to raise his stature from a coalition leader to a supreme commander. The movement was supported by small capitalists, low-level bureaucrats, and the middle classes, who had all felt threatened by the rise in power of the Socialists. Fascism also met with great success in rural areas, especially among farmers, peasants, and in the city, the lumpenproletariat.

Unlike the pre-World War II period, when many groups openly and proudly proclaimed themselves fascist, since World War II the term has taken on an extremely pejorative meaning, largely in reaction to the crimes against humanity committed by the Nazis, who were allied with Mussolini during the war.''

I mean every reporter with access to the White House dare not say anything damaging to the administration.  They will lose their access and their jobs.

The personal beliefs of good reporters don't affect their journalistic objectivity.

Hey, they're kids.  It's almost a baseline defination of "unthinking and ignorant".  Give them a few years of being told what to do by 'the man' when they think they know it all, and they'll change positions faster than a politician trying to stay in office.

Your displays of ignorance are endemic to these boards. Just take the recent suggestion that Canada is fascist as an example of a totally absurd, totally off the track comment, and you have a small idea of how ignorant you are. You seem to know many facts, but are totally unable to assemble them into reasonable ideas.

Indeed I did. I received 117 credits there, too. And was on the Biz School Dean�s list the entire time. I also have an assortment of credits from the Universidad Central del Ecuador, the Pontificia Universidad Cat�lica del Ecuador, the Colegio Universitario del Sagrado Coraz�n in San Juan and a bunch of online creadit-bearing stuff. I also have 6 home-study degrees from CEI and NRI in electronics, broadcast engineering and electronics design & theory.

Since I spent most of my college time nearly a decade years after being a radio station owner and manager, I selected courses that would do me good, not get a degree. So I had need for the knowlege, not the degree. the nice thing about not needing a degree to be employed is that you can sample disciplines, which I did.

Unfortunately, I was given a job offer before graduating... to run the broadcast division of a major retailer. Since my credits would not have given me a degree, anyway, since they were too widely spread, I moved over to Puerto Rico.

Now it's your turn. What are your credentials? Somehow, I suspect this to be the preamble to a pissing contest, in which I will post facts and you will ramble and insult with vague references to reality.

The mole, the US media and a White House coup

The reporter who wasn't is part of a wider press scandal, writes Paul Harris in New York

Sunday February 20, 2005
The Observer

For two years Jeff Gannon cut an unobtrusive figure at White House press conferences. The shaven-headed, craggily handsome man worked for an obscure news agency called Talon News, known for its conservative sympathies. He was often the subject of jokes by colleagues on weightier news organisations.

No one is laughing now, because Gannon was far from being a harmless distraction. He was writing under a false name and working for a Republican front organisation. Suddenly, his 'softball' questions to White House officials looked less like eccentricities and more like plotting by an administration which has frequently displayed a dark mastery of the arts of press control.

When it emerged that Gannon was also linked to gay prostitution websites and might be a gay prostitute himself, the scandal as to how he was allowed daily access to the White House grew even murkier. The American media is now being forced to confront the possibility that Gannon, whose real name is James Guckert, was simply a Republican plant, used by officials, including President George W Bush, to ask easy questions in difficult press conferences. 'The idea of having a mole in the White House press corp is amazing, but that's what it looks like,' said Jack Lule, a journalism professor at Lehigh University.

But the Gannon affair, which has shocked much of America's political establishment, is just the latest scandal in the media establishment. Newspapers including the New York Times and USA Today have been hit by plagiarism and forgery scandals. Other papers and television stations have been consumed with a soul-searching inquest into how they were misled about non-existent Iraqi weapons programmes. Added to that is growing evidence of a White House campaign to bypass or control the media in its everyday presentation of government policy , which included paying one journalist hundreds of thousands of dollars to promote its policies.

Last week a federal watchdog warned the Bush administration that any video news releases must state that the government is the source. Twice in two years, government departments have been accused of distributing fake news packages, using actors as journalists.

On the internet, the mainstream media is derided and scorned. One question is dominating US newsrooms and television studios: ignored, scandalised and now corrupted, just what is America's mainstream media for anymore?

The extent of the Bush White House's command and control of the press corps is often revealed in the seemingly innocuous White House pool reports. These are dispatches dutifully filed by a correspondent assigned to travel with Bush and contain little but lists of endless meetings, meals eaten and clothes worn. But no detail is too small to be ignored by Bush's ever-watchful press handlers. One report, on 13 August 2004, contained a remark from Bush that it was a 'good question' as to who to support if Iraq's soccer team played the United States in the Olympics. Officials scurried to 'correct' it. 'To clear up any possible misconception ... the president would of course support the American soccer team in any hypothetical game with Iraq,' a new report said. 'The initial report should have done more to reflect the exchange was mainly in jest.'

Such micromanagement has been a hallmark of the Bush White House and its all-powerful policy guru, Karl Rove. Added to that has been what appears to be a concerted effort to subvert the mainstream media.

Administration officials were recently revealed to have paid three senior journalists to promote or design policies. More than $240,000 of taxpayers' cash was paid to black pundit Armstrong Williams to push the agenda of Bush's education department. Critics were blunt in their assessment of what Armstrong's contract with the government meant. 'It is propaganda,' said Melanie Sloan of watchdog group Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics.

At the same time, Bush has held fewer Washington press conferences than any of his modern predecessors, while courting local media, such as small city newspapers, which are perceived as easier to steamroll. During last year's election campaign Bush avoided interviews with leading newspapers, such as the Washington Post , but frequently invited reporters from smaller swing state publications to speak with him on Air Force One. Vice-president Dick Cheney took the strategy one step further and banned New York Times reporters from travelling with him.

The media has not helped its own case. First, New York Times reporter Jayson Blair was found to have plagiarised numerous stories. The incident cost Blair his job, forced the editor to resign and was the subject of fevered Manhattan dinner party chatter for months. Then USA Today 's top foreign reporter, Jack Kelley, was discovered to have fabricated stories from around the world and invented interviews and witnesses from Cuba to Jerusalem.

Right-wing media ratcheted up the long-standing conservative complaint that the media is dominated by liberal publications. Though many journalism experts deny that is the case, the image has settled in the American consciousness, forcing newspapers, magazines and television stations to go out of their way to prove they are not liberal. 'We have a conservative media and also a mainstream media, which is also now fairly conservative because it has been forced to deny being liberal,' said Lule.

The Gannon case is a prime illustration. If, during the Clinton administration, a fake reporter from a Democrat front organisation, using a false name, had been exposed as attending White House press conferences it would have been a national scandal. If he had then been shown to be a gay prostitute, the scandal could have threatened a Democrat presidency. With 'Gannon' and Bush there has been no such outcry. The mainstream media has approached the story warily, while right-wing organisations such as Fox News have largely ignored it.

That has created a vacuum in the US media. It is a space being filled by 'bloggers' from both left and right who write personal journals, or weblogs, on the internet. It is here that the real media battles are now being fought. The internet has become a sort of Fifth Estate as the Fourth Estate of the mainstream media has slid toward irrelevance. The groundwork was done mainly by the right. Internet gossip hound Matt Drudge, whose Drudge Report is a key source for every American political journalist, struck the first blow with his breaking of the Monica Lewinsky affair.

Since then a plethora of right wing blogs have sprung up. Unlike Britain, where political blogs are barely part of the debate, internet sites in America are seen as a vital political tool. Conservative bloggers have taken two big scalps recently. Last year bloggers questioned the veracity of a CBS news report on Bush's National Guard service. They dumped enough doubt on the story to cause four CBS reporters to lose their jobs, tarnish the reputation of legendary anchor Dan Rather and insure that the substance of the CBS story - whether Bush fulfilled his service - never emerged as an election issue.

Last week, CNN's chief news executive, Eason Jordan, resigned after an internet campaign prompted by his claim that American soldiers targeted journalists in Iraq. Though Jordan said that his remarks had been misinterpreted, the bloggers' revenge was so vehement he ended his 23-year CNN career. One anti-Jordan website, Easongate.com, crowed openly when he quit: 'To every reader, commentator, e-mailer and blogger that committed to this cause, thank you.'

The left has also had victories. It was not the mainstream media that exposed Gannon, but left-wing website Media Matters for America which enlisted other liberal bloggers to help. All the significant breaks in the story emerged online, forcing Gannon to resign, reveal his real name and go into hiding.

Some commentators see the emergence of blogging as a media force as a liberating phenomenon. Unlike the mainstream media, blogging is cheap, easy and open to anyone regardless of qualification or background or money. 'Blogging gives a voice to those who were previously silent,' said Ananda Mitra, a communications professor at Wake Forest University.

Others see it as part of the trend towards partisan journalism. Spearheaded by the nakedly right-wing Fox News, journalism in America has come to resemble a political shouting match rather than any form of debate of the issues. But with soaring viewership, Fox has emerged as one of the most powerful forces in the media landscape. Other networks, such as CNN and MSNBC, have sought to copy Fox's personality-led and opinion-based news.

The media is in the midst of a transformation which the Bush administration is keen to foster. They have discovered that a partisan and atomised media can be controlled, manipulated and used to an unprecedented degree.

It is a lesson that liberals are also learning. In answer to the talk radio of Rush Limbaugh - one of America's most popular and conservative commentators - liberal groups have set up Air America. Defying the critics, it has established itself as a left-wing radio network every bit as ruthless in skewering its opponents' points of view as its right-wing equivalents. In answer to right-wing television, former presidential candidate Al Gore is rumoured to be seeking backers to finance a liberal television network. Now both sides are equally ready and willing to use any means necessary to tear the other apart. The old-fashioned mainstream media is disappearing. 'Once that pattern is put in place, it is going to be hard to break,' said Lule.

How the media shot themselves in the foot

A series of scandals have not helped the American media's reputation and its struggle for independence.

New York Times

Reporter Jayson Blair was fired and the newspaper's editor forced to resign after Blair was found to have plagiarised numerous stories.

USA Today

Foreign reporter Jack Kelly was discovered to have invented stories, interviews and witnesses from around the world.

CBS

Four reporters lost their jobs and the reputation of legendary anchor Dan Rather was tarnished after doubts were cast on a news report of Bush's National Guard Service.

CNN

Chief news executive Eason Jordan resigned his 23-year career after he claimed that American soldiers had deliberately targeted journalists in Iraq.

Actually, David, I think he's pretty much got the definition right, if you look at the Fascism of Nazi Germany.  But I also think he's being sarcastic, so far as it "can't happen here."  Because it is happening here.  The thing about these extreme forms of government is that their claims and their methods rarely agree....the big-brother doublespeak:  Freedom is Slavery, Good is Evil, stuff like that.  The bottom line is that both Russian-style communism (Marx/Leninism) and German-style fascism (as Nazism is a distinct branch of fascism) there are the haves and the have-nots.  What attracts you to capitalism, if I can presume, is that, ostensibly, the difference between these classes can be quite small, and in the recent past, it was.  But seeing as the U-S has one of  the greatest gaps between the wealthy and poor, considering the overall wealth of the nation, we may well be sliding towards one of these (guess which one) in fairly short order.

BAD,
Is this 'perceived' failing theirs ?
Or - Is It the Failing of 'our' Public Schools and Education System ?
Are We Teaching 'our' Young Future American Citizens :
*  To Love American
*  To Respect America's History, Culture and Traditions
*  To Understand and Respect 'our' Form of Government
*  To Be Proud To Be An American
Or - Are we 'indoctrinating' these Children in our Public Schools to be Citizens of the World and Feel Bad about Being an American and to Hate America ?
America Teach Your Children Well - amen, Amen. and AMEN !

I disagree with the "cronyism" aspect of fascism DX posted. true fascism, and not the embelished cult of naziism, is a tad more complex, and is based mostly in right wing authoritarianism. The Peron administration of Argentina was closer to fascism than the German, Italian or Spanish manifestations, but was also bound by a personality cult which made it deviate from the text definition.

I see a world "slide" (using your term) towards a change in the middle class... a reduction of sorts. The byproduct is an increasingly economically active lower or working class. As this grows, a new middle class will emerge. This is all being created by multinational capital, as nations do not have the trans-national power to create change. Of course, none of the corporate execs are elected by the people, so we have an oligarchy on a world scale.

You didn't love English class I guess.

Is that the role of schools?  Sounds like propoganda instead.  School should be about facts and learning, not about being cheerleaders.

All you did was name the ZOG mouthpieces, but that's what makes monitoring what they say important.

They tell us exactly what to expect from the global state, but if you believe that none of what these stooges talk about is true, then you're more of a "kook" than they are.

I mean, biometrics, chemtrails, the gun grab, the legal hatred of White people, the outlawing of morality, the evil of jews, the drugging of children, schools for gay kids, the wide-open borders, and the Chinese products on our store shelves are just silly illusions right?

After all, you didn't list any SW voice that has already been silenced, murdered, or smeared in effigy on America's Most Wanted, because they represented THE RESISTANCE.

A lot of the technical things folks talk about that some radios have and or what some radios should have,I don't know much about what it all means.If that new radio turns out to be a real super radio and the price you talk about,I think it is a resonable price.I would be interested in buying such a radio.

I like www.dogpile.com www.vivisimo.com and www.devilfinder.com search engines.However,whatever search engines y'all prefer is fine.Do a search for World War Two Jeeps and look for Brian's Military Jeeps website.Brian French,I believe he lives in the Lake Forest,California area.(greater San Diego area,I think) There are many folks who restore Military Jeeps who will be very interested in buying that WW II era Military equipment,Radios and related things.Brian French also collects Art Glass.Get in touch with him.I own a 1942 Willys WW II Willys Jeep and a 1948 Willys Civilian Jeep. www.willystech.com has a parts for sale section and some of those folks there might be interested in buying Military Radios too.

Looking at the schematic, it's got a ceramic/xtal/mechanical(?) filter for the first IF, so you can't really screw up the tracking by shifting the IF like you could with an all LC tuned IF.

What I'd look for first is to see if the dial pointers haven't shifted on the cord(s).

The good solution is a small audio mixer with as many inputs/channels as your number of receivers.

Radio Shack (which we all love to hate) has a 6 position rotary switch, get that, a project box, some wire and make one, it's quite simple.  You could either direct wire to the speakers or mount 1/8 inch phone jacks on the box if you want to be fancy.   Shouldn't be any safey issues for either the speaker or radios.

LOL, you should have been on the list "wholebean". You surely qualify as a full blown kook. Have you been on SW, a guest on the Liberty Net, or other low life group??

Look, up in the sky, it's a bird, no, it's a plane, no, it's a chemtrail spraying black ops plane!! What are they spraying today?? LOL.

Why shouldn't white people get hated, just like all the other colors have been hated by white types like you? LOL.
You're just a whining white boy..

What's the problem with a school for gay kids?? Oh, you're just angry that you can't beat them up anymore without getting in trouble...

Talk about mouthpieces..sheesh.

BDK, Non whining white boy...at present, anyway..

I wondered about that comment myself.  The post before was talking about noise in synthesizers, and of course, the KWM-1 didn't have one of those. So either he was claiming a noisy local oscillator, or he was talking about something else in the radio that was noisy, which is comparing apples to oranges.

According to your logic the U.S. should have allowed business to employ more

The idea that close economic ties with a murderous communist dictatorship in China, which is completly against moral and ethical Western values, will bring that regime to callapse is a historically proven fallacy.

> Many US companies did > business with Nazi Germany before war was declared in 1941, and it was

And you condone this!?  Much like the Socialist government of the EU is pulling to permit EU countries to sell arms to China?  Even after the recent murders of thousands of Chinese citizens by the PLA?  The tally of which is greater than the Tiananmen massacre of 1989!
Which was the reason for the arms sales ban in the first place.

Does the actions of big business and government make their laws morally right?  Or is it society and its individual that make it so?  Do you know the difference?
Apparently not!

Your morals are misguided as are your leaders and politics.  If you support a communist regime in China you need to write your congressman and voice your opinion as such and join the Party.
Instead of sitting ideally and knowingly doing nothing for the cause AGAINST "individual" liberty which you very much enjoy at the cost of your ancestors lives.  Pay back will be a real pain and soon.

Keep your eye on Taiwan.

I am looking to feed the 3v DC into a Sony SW100 from a third party PSU.
I don't seem to be able to fix up the plug?
I have tried all the common power plugs that were supplied with the adaptor and others but they are all a little large or small?
Is it and unusual size?
Do I have to go through Sony?
Thanks
Garry

Montreal
February 17 2005

On February 25, 2005, Radio Canada International will be celebrating its 60th anniversary. RCI's history is one of remarkable successes and rich anecdotes. It's a history worth discovering... and rediscovering. Did you know that Radio Canada International has attracted some of the leading lights in Canadian journalism over the years, including future Quebec premier Ren� L�vesque and legendary CBC host Peter Gzowski?

Some might recall that Prime Minister W.L. Mackenzie King set up a shortwave service during the Second World War to inform and entertain our troops overseas with programming from Canada. But few people are aware that RCI also played a key role in promoting Canadian music. After making its debut on the international scene in 1945, RCI quickly became an ambassador for homegrown artists. Many famous names in Canadian music, including Oscar Peterson and Glenn Gould, made some of their first recordings in RCI studios.

RCI Today

- RCI produces programming in nine languages.

- More than 300 hours of programming are broadcast each week via shortwave, satellite and www.RCInet.ca .

- RCI programs are rebroadcast in over 75 countries through its 300 partner stations.

- RCI airs special programming for listeners in Florida and the Caribbean, featuring the best of CBC Radio One and Radio-Canada's Premi�re Cha�ne.

- Listeners from all over the world participate in RCI phone-in shows.

- RCI broadcasts language courses for the whole family.

- The daily Cyberjournal provides a roundup of the key news stories.

- RCI oversees the Canadian Institute for Training in Public Broadcasting, which offers radio, television and new-media training to journalists, managers and technicians in emerging democracies.

- Internet users can listen to live and archived programs in nine languages at www.RCInet.ca and explore a brand-new databank containing over 20,000 links pointing to nearly 200 countries.

A Special 60th Anniversary Contest for 18 - to 30-Year-Olds Who Want to Build a Better World...

International Development Week (January 30 to February 5) and the UN-sponsored International Year of Microcredit 2005 will be marked in an original way by D�veloppement international Desjardins (DID) and Radio Canada International... the two have teamed up to launch Building the Future Now!, a major worldwide contest for 18- to 30-year-olds.

What can we do in 2005 to build a fairer, more prosperous, more equitable world? Young people around the world will be challenged to answer this ambitious question in a short essay or illustration, giving them a chance to win one of two international development education missions organized by DID in partnership with the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). Prizes are valued at $15,000, and contestants can enter by visiting www.RCInet.ca .

RCI has also produced a series of short radio features, consisting of two-to three-minute interviews with young adults whose lives have benefited from microcredit. They hail from Africa, Latin America and Asia, and can be heard on RCI's international airwaves throughout the year.

Relive the best of RCI on CD and on the Web...

We also invite you to visit a special 60th anniversary section of the RCI website, jointly produced by the CBC Archives team and RCI staff. It contains a wealth of radio and TV clips-with different selections in English and French-that look back at the landmark events of the past 60 years on RCI. Judith Jasmin, Maurice Chevalier and Ren� L�vesque are just a few of the stars of yesteryear you'll be able to see and hear again. # 12 Steps for Reformed Leftists

The first step in any successful recovery program, such as Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous, is to admit that there is a problem. For a leftist, then, stepping out of denial is the beginning of a journey toward clearer thinking and political sanity. I approach this topic with only a hint of humor, because I myself am a recovered leftist, with over 25 years of sobriety. Was I drunk on left-wing propaganda? Yes, and I became a user at a very tender age � as a child, in fact, in the home of my parents, who schooled me in the ways of communism and socialism.

I believe this topic is extremely important at this juncture, because the far left is finding itself on the wrong side of history yet again and many of its members are lost at sea. I try to imagine myself, had I not awakened to the wrongness of my ideology, trying to survive both the re-election of George W. Bush and the successful Iraqi election. I would be beside myself with anger and disappointment. My index fingers would be in utter fatigue from non-stop pointing to assign blame. I might even threaten to move out of the country, as my brother and his wife are doing!

I feel sad for leftists because they are stuck in their addiction. Strong wording? I think not, because I was there. Leftist ideology is a powerful and cunning potion, and if it gets into the mind at a young enough age, it can be extremely difficult to kick. Let me explain.

I was brought up in the 1950s and �60s in a suburb of New York City by two World War II veterans whose own parents were immigrants from Eastern Europe. My mother�s father took her to Communist Party meetings when she was a youngster, and my parents attended camps in upstate New York where young �reds� congregated, and where they met. As a child I read the works of Howard Fast and the periodical entitled The National Guardian. By the age of twelve, I was completely indoctrinated into the Communist mind-set and openly debated my seventh-grade social studies teacher on U.S. policy during the Cuban Missile Crisis.

I was convinced of the evils of capitalism and believed that if the West would just not interfere, the Soviet Union would become a workers� paradise (an old rant still mouthed today by many, including my mother and my son�s college history professor). My mother took me to various demonstrations before I left for college, at which time I involved myself in activist work against the Vietnam War, to my everlasting shame.

There is no way for a �cradle� conservative to imagine the pain that a recovering leftist goes through when the veil is finally lifted. The second step in official 12-step programs is belief in a higher power, believing that your higher power can restore you. In recovering from leftist thinking, this step is not a requirement, but for me it was essential. In fact, during my 30th year I experienced a spiritual awakening that initiated many changes in values, which in turn brought me to my first conservative action step: voting for Ronald Reagan in 1980. To borrow Michael Medved�s term, I had become a �theo-con.�

Belief in a higher power is not always the starting place for a leftist in recovery. For some, it is intellectual honesty. Most recently, the Iraqi election came under attack from the far left in the United States and abroad. British Prime Minister Tony Blair rightly opined that anyone believing in liberty and self-rule could not possibly oppose the election. But leftists were able to do so because of intellectual dishonesty and their belief in ends-justify-the-means politics. Since a successful election in Iraq means a victory for the hated Bush and a vindication of the military, the left must oppose it.

But in opposing Iraqi self-rule, the left must abandon one of its core positions: freedom from tyranny for the oppressed. Those on the left cannot have it both ways, and in continually trying to do so, they expose themselves as the intellectually bankrupt people they really are. Leftists ready to recover must use what recovering alcoholics call rigorous honesty to rid themselves of the habit of �dual think.� The fourth step in AA is a fearless moral inventory, and the folks on the far left who dare to take a fearless intellectual inventory will realize that their dual-think positions are untenable.

It can be frightening for a person to walk away from a lifetime of strongly held beliefs and into new ways of thinking. Family and close friends may misunderstand and even reject you. This happens. It is similar in many respects to what happens to individuals who leave a cult; they find themselves ostracized, ridiculed or marginalized. It is best not to engage in too many political discussions until you are sure of what you now stand for, how to defend your new positions, and who you can trust. Reading magazine articles and books to develop a knowledge base is essential.

I was in recovery for over 20 years when I read David Horowitz�s �Radical

Son,� which documents his life journey from �red diaper baby� to leftist activist to highly regarded conservative scholar. It was not until I read this book that I realized that I was not alone in my �conversion� and how deeply angry I was at having been so brainwashed as a child. I now regard the politicizing of young children as a form of child abuse. This realization enabled me to deal with my anger and to begin to grow beyond it.

The 12th step in the AA program is to carry the message of recovery to others. It is a marvelous step because in doing so, you cement the fact that you have finally arrived at some place of clarity and are strong enough to spread the message. To all those whose beliefs have been shaken by recent events, to all those whose ideological houses have been built on sand: Take heart, because there is hope if you will bravely admit that you were in the wrong and move to the right. As Dennis Prager says, it is okay to be wrong; it is not okay to stay that way.

You make it sound like a 12-step cult.

I'd rather be a knee-jerk Liberal than a circle-jerk Republican.

If you leave the volume up it would indeed.  I used a two position switch in the past but only had one radio on at a time so that wasn't a consideration.  Including some 8 ohm resistors (1 - 5 watt) and the associated switching scheme would make a pre-built more attractive for those not inclined to tinker.

Not for a Japanese device. The outer diameter should be 2.35 mm, possibly color coded yellow. + inside, - outside.

> Do I have to go through Sony?

No, certainly not. Possibly you've got an adapter (how old?) that does not include these "newfangled" (early '90s) plugs yet.

Wow. YOU need to be on domestic SW. If you can't get a broadcasting license, get a ham license and get on one of the far right nets. You'd fit right in.

The only SW voice that has been killed off is Bill Cooper, and the only one that has been jailed is Steve Anderson. I don't know if those two guys were any more "right" (in more than one way) than any of the other far right kooks on SW who are still around, and it's arguable that both of those guys drew police into a deliberate confrontation, so they're not exactly innocent.

I was asking about this antenna just a little while ago. Via some good friends I acquired two of these antennas from this source. He is one excellent provider.

Well, the Soviets weren't capitalists. Their economy was state controlled. In China, the old state run businesses are gradually going away, while privately owned business (albeit with a close connection to the state) is thriving. The Chinese are interested in doing business with America on capitalist terms. That's why there are so many Chinese made products on store shelves in America. They were acquired through legit trade.

I didn't say that. Stop putting words in my mouth. I said that as long as we're not at war, and as long as it's trade based on accepted principles of capitalism, it's not the capitalist businessman's job to make moral or ethical judgements.

You call yourself a capitalist, a "reformed leftist", yet you want to tell businesses who to do business with based on politics. It is NOT the capitalist's business to make moral judgements, it is not his business to make political judgements, it is his business to make money. Whether this is correct or not is not at issue, it is the way things are, and the true capitalist will seek to minimize cost and maximize profit in any way that he can. That is the driving force behind capitalism. Trying to cherrypick who capitalists should and shouldn't do business with is essentially anticapitalist.

You see, I'm a reformed leftist too, but I seem to understand my newfound ideology of capitalism better than you do. Perhaps you should educate yourself about capitalist theory as you once did about communist theory.

You keep accusing people who trade with China, or who buy Chinese products because they are well made and serve their purpose well, of being supporters of the CCP when we have told you that this is not the case. In fact, most consumers and capitalists are truly acting in their own self interest just as Adam Smith said they would. They don't make moral/political judgements on whether the stuff they buy is somehow morally wrong because the government it is produced under is not perfect (even the US has massive human rights violations), they simply look at whether the stuff in question serves their needs. This is the invisible hand Smith talked about. Sometimes the invisible hand does things that some people may have objections to, but the hand is more powerful than any one individual's influence on it.

> Keep your eye on Taiwan.

If China attacks, and we then go to war against them because of that, I expect Chinese products to disappear from store shelves. It will be a rude awakening to CEOs who put the world's manufacturing capacity in a single country which is not stable. But until then, since Chinese products are virtually impossible to avoid, I will continue to buy on whether the product is right for me.

Frank,

Do you think the sync' mod really makes it work properly or just acceptably?

What kind of radio and antenna do you have?

I'm down to about 6 below 10 here right now..

The signal keeps getting weaker but its still audible..

I doubt you could find any professional radio repair service that would work on the 2600 since it's about 25-years old and there are no factory parts available for it. Even so, the labor cost could easily exceed the value of the radio. See if you can find an electronics 'wizard' in your area that would be willing to check it out for a nominal fee or maybe for free.

I havent heard where there broadcasting from yet, Rob...

Most of the guys I hear are around NY or Conn...

I think they just announced that Sally Field has passed away..

Good question, but based on my experiences with the DSB sync detectors in the Drake R8 and the Lowe HF-225, I would have to say that the modified R-75 worked as well as the 225 and definitely maintained better lock on signal fades than the R8.  So, I would have to say that it worked properly, at least on the one I modified.  The best sync detectors I've seen are in the Drake SW2 and the Lowe HF-150. They are SSB selectable.

If you're a tinkerer, you can buy a used ham radio HF transmitter off one of the hamfest websites and hook it up to a car battery. If it's AC powered (120v) you can buy an inverter that will hook up to the terminals of the 12v car battery and give you 120v AC power. You'll need a pretty heavy duty inverter if you're running a tube rig though, and it will run down the battery quickly, for those reasons you'll want to consider an early transistorized transmitter. Last I checked, some could be had for a couple hundred bucks if you knew where to look, but that was a while ago, ebay might have inflated prices across the board by now. It also depends on what you're going to use it for. If it's for use at home when an ice storm wipes out power for a week you can rig your already existing home setup to run off car batteries. If it's for out in the woods a tabletop transmitter might be too much to lug around, you'll want to look into used mobile rigs.

cheapest parts source, but they won't have all you need is:

Dans Small Parts

ttp://www.fix.net/dans.html

Most complete parts source is Mouser Electronics, they have it all, so much its hard to navigate to their page which has your part, their huge free paper catalogue helps to find stuff online

http://www.mouser.com

Best site for plans and advice on which tiny equipment you want is norcal qrp club, no matter where you live in the usa

http://www.fix.net/norcal.html

Best site to learn about liscensing info publications :/ is ARRL.

http://www.arrl.org

Best site to get those ARRL books quickly to you is unversal radio:

WHAT A WHACK JOB!!!!!!!!!!!  BAAAHAHAHAHAHA!!!

"A human being cannot be created out of 23 chromosomes.
It needs 46. Sperm and egg must get together - and they frequently do. Sperm and eggs are created by a special kind of cell division called meiosis. Meiosis separates partner chromosomes. As a result, sperm and eggs contain just one copy of each chromosome - that's 23 in total.
The Human Genome has been described as the 'autobiography of the species', because our combination of 3 billion DNA 'letters' is what makes us human.
But humans share a lot, in DNA terms, with other species. 51% of our sequence is shared with the humble Yeast Cell. 57% is shared with the common Garden Cabbage. And a whopping 98% is shared with the Chimpanzee....."

First is the (unfortunatly now defunct) Jeremiah 33.3 guy who used to be on WBCQ. He was a one hundred percent free range/grain fed/gluten free/no dyes or perfumes Omega Class Solar Flare Kook if there ever was one!!
If you missed J - 33.3 (Doug) when he was on the air, you missed a real treat. His greatest claim-to-fame was his insistence that David Rockefeller and Ailen Greys from The Motherships (!) were currently orbiting planet Earth in a secret NASA spacestation and controlling the activities of the "New World Order" leaders via electronic microchip brain implants.....---> : ) whee!! : )

A close second has to be James Lloyd of christianmediadaily.com
An ex-rock musician that 'found jeebzus' and now broadcasts from a studio someplace in Oregon.  Predicted the end of the USA and gave dates for it a few times. [his predictions bombed out every time as expected]   Has several others on his network that shill or echo their version of blather. (currently on shortwave)

Third is Elizabeth Border of The Divided Kingdom on 5.085 M-F at 10 PM Central time (11 PM EST) Here is a RARE female Kookette that occasionally talks with a SOCK PUPPET (!!) named Barbie on world affairs. Has to be heard to be believed. This gal has to be on a heavy regimine of Luvox or Lithium or the Brown Acid from 1969.

Fourth has to be Texe Marrs of World of Prophecy. A guy who puts out outrageous and humorous conspiracy theories. Catch him Sunday nights on WWCR.  Been in the religion business for 30+ years and is a consistent screwball. Very amusing listening.

Here is some shortwave trivia for you......

Below is one of the first posts ever to this newsgroup.  The first post I could find was dated November 17th, 1989.

I wonder what Ralph Brandi and Richard Shapiro are up to today? One should thank them for creating this group a long time ago.

Welcome to the rec.radio.shortwave newsgroup. This group was created late in 1989 after a suggestion by Richard Shapiro, in order for those of us who are interested in the hobby of monitoring radio communications to have a friendly place to exchange messages, tips, and opinions. If you are interested in this sort of hobby, then we think that you will be at home here.

This is a set of monthly postings put together to answer some of the more commonly asked basic questions about the hobby. There is a posting explaining some of the basics of shortwave (HF) radio, and one covering scanning the higher frequencies (VHF and up). If you find that you have other questions, either following up items mentioned here, or other questions, please post.
There are a number of people here with varying degrees of expertise and experience who are more than willing to help. We hope we've anticipated many of the questions the beginner will have. And so, without further ado....

o What is rec.radio.shortwave for?

As stated above this group was created for USENETers to have a place to discuss the radio monitoring hobby. This group is not moderated, however 'serious' arguments and any kind of flame wars are strongly discouraged. That is not to say that genuine disagreement and discussion of differing opinions is not welcome. We only ask that you keep the tone friendly, and in the spirit of international cooperation upon which the hobby is founded.

This group is intended to be a place where ANY radio monitoring topic can and should be discussed. We are happy to hear from posters who listen to any part of the radio or microwave spectrum, from DC to daylight. We discuss topics of almost any kind, ranging from (but not limited to) shortwave broadcasting, scanning of all kinds, clandestine and pirate broadcasts, DXing small or distant shortwave stations, utility and teletype monitoring, military eavesdropping, the ECPA, station schedules, QSLing sw broadcasters, spectrum usage, equipment design and modifications, antennas, receiver reviews and recommendations, and many more.

Despite what the newsgroup name might imply, we definitely DO NOT limit discussions to shortwave only. Those of you who are interested in scanners and VHF/UHF/etc. will find that you fit right in.

For more in-depth answers to questions you may have, we direct your attention to the postings entitled "Welcome to rec.radio.shortwave (Shortwave)" and "Welcome to rec.radio.shortwave (Scanning)", depending on where your interests lie.

Why would the Americans want to do a terror attack on our dams?
Oh..yeah..like Iraq, eh?

I'm trying to decide what to buy for my first SW radio. I'm considering the Sony 7600GR or the Sangean AT-909. Can anyone give some pros or cons of each? Or suggest another? Maybe just personal preferences. Also, I will probably buy from Amazon(by far the lowest prices I've found), are there any fair warnings I should know about.

The Sony has a syncronous detector. This is a coveted feature that helps very much with selective fading.

My first radio was a 909.

I wish it would have been the 7600GR. With it's synch, it is better for broadcast listening, which was the reason I got into shortwave in the first place.

Thanks for the information.I had been wondering if our American Troops during WW II had made any simple transmitters from whatever odds and ends parts they could scrounge up.Sort of similar to the radios they made from oatmeal boxes,razor blades,wire,thumb tacks,paper clips,pencils and field head phones.I like to read about things like that.

Hiya... I have a Sony 7600gr and I love it.  It is a good performer in general and it has a ssb selectable sync detector.  That feature really helps out for broadcast listening.  It is also VERY good to use for medium wave (AM broadcast) DX'ing.

The 909 has a lot of great features too, but it does not have a sync detector and it is very well known for being a weak performer using only its whip antenna.  If you can hook it up to a good external antenna, its performance is quite good to excellent.  Given that it has so many other features, I think it may be a better radio in a lot of cases if you want to use it like a table top base receiver.

So... If you plan to use your new radio as a "portable" off the whip for broadcast listening, I'd choose the 7600gr.  If you want to set up a nice external antenna and use a radio for dx'ing, I'd get the 909.

Still, that is not to say that you cant use the 909 as a portable off the whip or use the 7600gr as a table top base with an external antenna.  The 7600gr is just better to use as a portable for broadcast off the whip and the 909 has more features that would make it the better choice to set up as a base receiver.

Low on the credibility scale. And nearly everyone realizes a business degree that is not an MBA is pretty worthless.

Well, it sure beats having to write a dissertation on the reasons why you don't have a degree!

Pete, Philips made some very bad shortwave radios (in the '80s). RNW reviewd them very negative.

The only reason I have no degree is that I was approached by a headhunter before graduation with a unique opportunity. Since going to college was a lark, I skipped out. I was, in case you did not notice, a radio station owner at age 17. Unlike many, I went to college to get exposure to disciplines not normally taught in biz school or broadcast school... things like cultural anthropology, sociology, music, etc.

Alas, its seemingly getting to be more and more to only apply to straight

OK, according to the chart there were two, one each in the years 1982 and 1992. They both caused no damage and are category F0. The same story with the rest of them. Usually just a few people injured so I guess they never made a memorable splash in the paper.

I wonder if the two Ventura county events were really waterspouts instead of tornados. I have heard of waterspouts spotted off the coast. I still have no recollection of these two tornados in Ventura county. Maybe someone can find a news article on them.

In any event I only recollect one or two reports of tornados in California in the past so the charts were an eye opener as to the number of them.

Steve just likes to taunt the Trolls. Calling Canada a fascist state in the same light as the Trolls calling people in the Bush administration a Nazi. Get real.

The knowledge is the important thing. The diploma is just a piece of paper.

Yes, and it has a precise definition. Puffery involves making broad, generalizing and unsustainable statements about a product or service in advertising. A good example would be "the richest taste." Since "rich taste" is indefinable, but still a positive, this is puffery.

Things that can be defined, proven or quantified are not, generally, the subject of puffery.

As usual, your tangential approach, based on casting doubt by changing the argument, is not working.

Other than an occasional "Nibi Nibi Islands ATC active this morning on 6069" you ware a waste of bandwidth.

I never said that, 'tard boy... get your story straight!

Bottom line in this little arguement is... I graduated, and you didn't. Then you try to make light of that. Oh well, make your excuses... I've probably heard them all.

Thanks. No, I missed that one although I heard about it. After that lady sold that grilled cheese sandwich, there were tons of people peddling fakes like that on e-bay.

Whatever stormy weather that shows up in Texas and Louisiana,usually some of it heads on over to here in Mississippi.I can pull up that NOAA weather map thingy on the internet with the radar loop and see what is heading this way.It is just like looking at the weather reports on tv news.The weather here right now is warm,partly cloudy and somewhat rainy.Flowers are growing in my yard and most of my front yard is green.

Sorry, the reference to the notorious 60's hoax was lost on you. You are not even a very knowledgable DXer.

No, the point is that I do not need a degree, did not need one and was studying for personal satisfaction. Someone who already has a career does not benefit from an undergraduate degree if they are already in a top management position. As Telamon (with whom I sometimes disagree) stated, it is just a piece of paper. And, to me, irrelevant... or I would have done a couple of night classes and gotten the degree.

Skiing holiday.  The avalanche guys were communicating on a FRS hearable channel.  They had about 3 feet of snow, rain then another 2 feet.  Top layer shears off the rain layer.  Lots of fun to ride up the chairlift, hear the talk, hear the thud as they fired into the snow pack than the low thump as the avalanche is brought down.  This was in the east Kootenay mountains of B.C. (which is all I'll report after talking to them, their preference.  May I suggest those of you who go to ski areas in the mountains take along your scanners and FRS.  You just never know what you'll hear.  SW reception with an ATS 404 was quite poor except for Australia and the BBC.

I've got "the Ace(hole)" killfiled, so you won't see any replies to that waste of a human brain from me.  But this thread, considering that it raises the question as to whether free radio will be hard to find in the new United States, is (or was) on-topic for alt.radio.broadcasting, amazingly.  It's actually rather intriguing that, in large measure, this is actually happening, with the disconnect between the U-S's implementation of IBOC and the Canadian's selection of Eureka, that access to unfiltered news sources will diminish for U-S residents, even those situated close to the Canadian border.  If I were a paranoid, I'd be getting the hell out of the U-S.  (Wait...I am getting the hell out of the U-S.)

| Because you broke the law.

Copyright law requires the owner of copyright to file a complaint.  Copyrights are, in large measure, the responsibility of the copyright owner to protect.
And, considering that the use of copyrighted material could be considered "fair use", there's room for argument.  Still, to assure that "fair use" is indeed fair, I would suggest that the poster of copyrighted material copy only the salient parts of the article in the newsgroup, and link the full article so as to preserve the owner's ability to maintain control over their property.

We now return you to your orginally-scheduled squabble....

This is from a chat on a chair lift while skiing. Clearly OT, but perhaps topical for this ever present liberal-conservative issue in the NG.

Does conservatism mean gov't should not interfere as much as is possible in the lives of citizens?  If so, how do those who want less gov't interference - perhaps we could call them "fiscal conservatives" - find themselves allied with "social conservatives" re issues like gay marriage, abortion rights, public prayer, etc.  Freedom from gov't interference should mean freedom to live your life as you so choose? How does it offend my lifestyle is someone wants to live contrary to the way I do?  Is the alliance between the fiscal and social conservative a thinly disguised religious agenda? Can't say as I know the answers, but there sure are alot of people prepared to boss others around, and they come from all levels between socialist and conservative.  Frankly, fiscal responsibility but with non-interference in others' lives sounds more conservative than the current social policies I see stated by conservatives.  Maybe this is just trying to appeal to voters and ideals be damned.

Your turn. Name me one single benefit that having a degree would have given me. Otherwise, move on to calling Canadians 'tards like you usually do.

I've made two trips with my daughters this winter into the Cascade Mountain foothills (near Mt. Rainier) trying to find snow for sledding, but both times found no snow. The papers around here are saying that we only have 28% of the normal snowpack in the Cascades.

Meanwhile, it's been sunny all week and my lawn was overgrown. So Tuesday I hauled out the lawnmower, which growled to life slowly, seemingly upset at being woken early out of a winter hibernation.

They are calling this another "El Nino" winter up here, but I think we'll likely have water shortages in the summer and an early fire danger season.

Republishing an entire article is never considered "fair use" under copyright law.

Sorry, I missed the OP of the article. However, you should learn how to reply to a post so you don't quote the entire previous post.

No, I'm just kiddin you. Try to relax. And I may not like your opinion but I'd hate for anybody to keep you from having it. Just don't get pissed when I express mine. Daves another story. He never post shit about radio.

I was 12 years old. The Family had an old non-working Zenith 6s222 black dial. By some miracle I was able to get it going again. I remember late nights tuning that beautiful dial searcing for stories from around the world. Sure wish I had that old radio again. What a wonderful experience!

I've had much better receivers since but none has provided the enjoyment of that old Zenith.

Ask Pete KE9OA on this group to send you the schematic and PC board picture for his sync' detector. It's a good design.

My guess is that it was simply someone getting "in touch" with their emotions.

Actually,that other shooting,,, not too far back,,,, was at the Lockheed Martin manufacturing plant facility near Meridian,Mississippi.Meridian is about 70 something miles East of me.A "disgruntled" emoloyee killed six Lockheed Martin employees,that was back in July of 2003.The Lockheed Martin plant near Meridian manufactures wing parts for the U.S.Air Force Raptor Aircraft and some other parts,I forget what other kinds of parts though.Loughead,long ago it was spelled sort of like that.Loughead in Britain.

I looked for one as well, but largely because I overestimated the amount of front end overload I'd encounter on the standard 150. I live in NYC and hardly ever experience overload problems on my 150. I can't see spending more for a heartier front end.

Hello SWL'ers

Selling my R8B with VHF converter and MS-8 speaker. All equipment looks very good, operates even better. Cosmetically 9.5 out of 10 and operationally 10 out of 10. I have the original R8B manual and copy of VHF converter info, no original drake box. Selling to supplement my digital photography hobby. Questions direct to nmar@earthlink.net.

New price from Universal Radio is $1817 for this combo. I will ship it to your door in the continental U.S. for $1175 which includes professional packing and insured shipping. Will only consider trades for Nikon D70 body in same condition or Nikon digital camera accessories to reach the value of this equipment.

Goes to ebay on 2/26 if no one responds here. 73 and thanks for reading.

Nick

''Hatred'' is some kind of buzz word?

The Executive Branch (and much of the other two)  is (are) totally corrupt but rather than being motivated by my dislike for them I am compelled to act by my love for the United Statesn and its Constitution, and my faith that once decent people find out what's really going on they'll behave like courageous patriots, rather than like ostriches unable to admit they've been conned.

There should be a Menu function for Surround Level.

Also, try aiming them straight up.

WPFB AM & FM  in Middletown, Ohio was owned by Paul F Bradeon, and another station he owned was WPBF so it is rather obvious he used his initials.

Thanks Dan.
I looked at a couple of microphone amps online.
They had inputs for mics... but not for wires or RCA connectors.
I'll check out the RS one.

The US House of Representatives in America more than interestingly passed a bill on Wednesday which will certainly make broadcasters in America take note.

The bill, if approved by the Senate and then the President, will impose unprecedented fines on those broadcasting material that could be described as indecent.

The bill has been criticised as stifling free speech.

But the supporters of it are saying that stiff fines are needed to give deep-pocketed broadcasters more incentive to clean up their programmes and to help assure parents that their children won't be exposed to inappropriate material.

The measure was passed 389 to 98.

Perhaps that's why we haven't read about it.

The maximum fine will rise from 32,500 dollars to half a million for a company, and from 11,000 to half a million for an individual broadcaster.

The Republican from Texas who sent the bill to the house said "This is a penalty that makes broadcasters sit up and take notice ... this legislation makes great strides in making it safe for families to come back into their living room."

The White House said it strongly supported the legislation that "will make broadcast television and radio more suitable for family viewing".

Now the Senate is considering a similar bill.

It's said that when the differences are worked out, it will all go to President Bush for signature.

Opponents of the legislation say that they are unclear about the definition of "indecent".

Mention was made of Saving Private Ryan, the World War II drama, which several ABC affiliates in America last year did not air because of worries that violence and profanity would lead to fines.

I should say there are already mechanisms in America to fine people for a breach of broadcasting standards.

The Federal Communications Commission already has wide latitude to impose fines.

It can fine an individual company, a group of stations, an individual broadcaster.

Apparently last year fines totalled over 7 million dollars.

But all five members of the Federal Communications Commission, three Republicans and two Democrats, are in favour of greatly increasing the fines.

And this legislation allows the Commission to fine someone like, for example, a disc jockey, without first issuing a warning.

Now I'm sure there are many Australians who feel that we've got something to learn from this legislation.

Already under American law radio stations and television channels can't air obscene material at any time.

And can't air indecent material between 6am and 10pm.

The Senate bill varies from the House of Representatives bill by seeking to raise the maximum fine on broadcasters to 325,000 dollars with a cap of 3 million dollars a day.

Now people watching/listening to us often wonder how violence in language and action, physical, verbal and sexual, can parade at any time as entertainment.

And certainly is allowed under the umbrella of free speech.

The legislation seems to be telling people like us to tidy up our act.

Many who watch television and listen to radio would argue that the call is long overdue.

Alan Jones

AIH also airs on NPR radio stations in the U.S.

No, I don't listen to it.  but it invalidates the statement that it isn't available on U.S. radio.

Ask "tianli". He seems to think that requesting a QSL from China Radio International equates to approval of the Chinese Communist Party.
Furthermore, he thinks that buying Chinese made radios and other products equates to same.

I think you're mistaken, as usual. I don't think that was the point Tianli was

But then how will Bush tell us about the next invasion of a sovereign foreign country? THOSE acts are REALLY indecent. Will the taxpayer have to pay the penalty incurred by the warmongers? Perhaps they'll invent a new word for what he does..like NeoIndecent in order to circumvent the law.

You hate the 'crap' on your voluntarily paid subscription television, but you force yourself to pay AND watch it until next December...Do you also force yourself to watch all those pay per view channels too?
You must really have strong will power to keep watching all the stuff that offends you so much.

I could never be that strong, I don't watch TV any more. It's a wasteland. Over three years and counting.

You might look for Emulation software for the Commodore 128 and see if your software will work on your computer in emulation mode. If you don't have the software you may need to search for both. HTH mm

Why, yes, they did. Please send me more of the illegal drugs you make your living with, Ace. The money will, as always, arrive via the Wells Fargo fund transfer service located in Holland, Michigan.

Thank you for the pipeline to the underworld drug culture, Ace. You make it a pleasure to be addicted. Will you be sending me the ammunition for the three dozen AK 47s you shipped last week?

I'm still amazed that the radio newsgroup hasn't figured out our little 'importation' scheme. Keep up the good work, Colonel. Victory is in sight.

I feel for you guys down in California; I am sorry for all the people hurt or who have lost homes, loved ones and lives. We need the rain here in Washington State, and would be glad to have it, but unfortunately I think God is trying to make a point at this time.

I think even if the USA signed on to the Kyoto agreement, and started immediately enforcing curbs on greenhouse gas emissions, it would be too little too late for the immediate future- it would be for our posterity. On the other hand, if this is only a temporary condition of climate change, there still isn't much that can be done. Just be glad you don't live on a flat Pacific atoll because global warming may test your swimming skills .

Actually, it hasn't rained all that much up here in northern California. All the rain has been in LA. And it's because of a persistent low pressure area parked off the LA coast-there's been no systems coming in from the Pacific, so the Pacific NW has been low on rain.

As for Kyoto, it would be a good idea if the US signed it, but the majority of the pollution comes from developing nations which aren't covered. China burns coal for nearly all its electricity, but China isn't covered by Kyoto. And weather isn't an isolated phenomenon-what happens in one place may affect climate on the other side of the world. For Kyoto to really be effective, it would need to cover the entire planet. That's still no reason not to sign it, though.

I read that if the sea level rose three feet, that the Florida Keys and most of South Florida would be drowned, leaving Miami perched on a small strip of land jutting into the ocean. That would also drown most of the islands in the Pacific, leaving the residents with the unenviable task of swimming to Australia. Already Eskimo fishing villages in Alaska are disappearing beneath the waves. And we don't know what will happen next, since we don't fully understand the planet's climate yet.

I would never tell you to watch anything on TV.  TV News is all crap.
To say that this one is good and that one is bad is like sorting cow patties.

I tried making a foxhole radio when I was a kid from plans I found in a 1950s book. I never could get it to work, though. Probably because I had a modern razor blade, the book didn't mention anything about the specific brand of blade.

You might look for Emulation software for the Commodore 128 and see if your software will work on your computer in emulation mode. If you don't have the software you may need to search for both. HTH mm

~~~~~ God gives Peace not war + hope you tried a google search. the commodores are still vary popular in europe. i have a feeling Volker will have something for you. i had a ton of software for my old commo's years ago. ham and shortwave, even a DX-edge map, as i remember. commo's and good software still show up at the hamfest

i go to each summer.  good luck...

Must be excellent to mint condition. Original box and manual would be nice, but not necessary. Please state price and condition.

Hi Tianli,

Yes, there's DX you can catch within a short distance of the coast that is virtually impossible inland. On mediumwave, you can catch some countries that are no longer on shortwave, such as Fiji, Tonga, Tahiti, the Marshall Islands, and the Cook Islands, to name a few.

Which reminds me... if you'd like a taste of the broadcasting of Radio Cook Islands, you can listen to two MP3 recordings I made when I was in Rarotonga in 1993. Check out the files on Chris Mackerell's (NZ) Web site:

http://www.owdjim.gen.nz/chris/radio/DXSoundBites/R_Cook_Islands/

Guy

I had a really small basic program for the Vic-20 and C-64 that would do a respectable job of Decoding Morse. It couldn't have been more than twenty lines long. There were also rtty decoders available.

http://www.mods.dk/view.php?ArticleId=1038

A really blurred schematic for an interface is here:

http://www.mfjenterprises.com/man/pdf/MFJ-1225.pdf

A mention of two CW programs are made here:

http://64.233.167.104/search?q=cache:8UalN6740J0J:www.schmarder.com/dave/+%22vic-20%22+morse+%2Bcw+download&hl=en

OR:

http://tinyurl.com/5736e

The above site is being worked on, so I posted the cached version.
A huge list of sites, referred to by the previous page:
http://www.geocities.com/CapeCanaveral/Hall/8701/hamlynx/hammisc2.htm

This site has a morse/Telex decoder program forthe Vic.

Blame it on El Nino.Mankind is not to blame for global warming.Every single Volcano that spouts off and blows it's top puts out much more carbon dioxide than mankind ever has since the dawn of (and Dawn was a good old gal too.I can weld anything but the "crack" of Dawn) mankind and womankind on this Earth.Earth heats up and cools off,it has been doing that for millions of years.What goes up,comes down and so does carbon dioxie.The biggest problem is those democrats and liberals spouting off with all of their hot air bullshit.That is what is happening right now.

Foxhole radio used a razor blade for the rectifier, a safety pin and a #2 pencel led for cat whisker. The Gillette Blue Blade brand got their color from factory fire hardening which made the surface a semiconductor. Old stock blades are always available very cheaply on EBAY, I don't know where in the world else???.  Authentic WWII era are Back in the WW II years,some of the Swiss people used transmitters and to get the antennas up high enough in the air because of the mountains they used some big baloons filled with hydrogen or helium gas and the antenna wire was which was attatched to a baloon and the other end of the long wire was attatched to a home made reel which was usually made of  wood,sort of like a big fishing reel.When they was through transmitting untill next time,they would use the reel to haul down the antenna.I read about that in a Saga magazine way back in the 1950's.

The radio police can relax as far as concerning me.I wasn't interested in actually making a transmitter and useing it,only reading about such things is all I am interested in.I bet a car or truck or motorcycle engine or most any old one lunger back in those WW II years could have supplied some parts to make a radio or transmitter too.Ingenuity is the name of the game.

"Foxhole radio" are search engine keywords. Complete kits are available, the one I have was sold by Cornell radio, eham has reviews.

Rectifier hints:

Vintage Gillette Blue Blades got their color from factory fire hardening which also made them semiconductors.

Ebay always has cheap packs of wwii era single edge blades.

The best pencel lead size is widely rumoured to be #2, for some odd reason.

Here, the VOA can't send a QSL card to Dubuque, because it might promote a propaganda service to Americans. But Federal agencies are busy feeding "news" videos to TV, as if TV news doesn't already have sufficient credibility problems.

Administration Is Warned About Its 'News' Videos
By ANNE E. KORNBLUT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 - The comptroller general has issued a blanket warning that reminds federal agencies they may not produce newscasts promoting administration policies without clearly stating that the government itself is the source.

Twice in the last two years, agencies of the federal government have been caught distributing prepackaged television programs that used paid spokesmen acting as newscasters and, in violation of federal law, failed to disclose the administration's role in developing and financing them.

And those were not isolated incidents, David M. Walker, the comptroller general, said in a letter dated Thursday that put all agency heads on notice about the practice.

In fact, it has become increasingly common for federal agencies to adopt the public relations tactic of producing "video news releases" that look indistinguishable from authentic newscasts and, as ready-made and cost-free reports, are sometimes picked up by local news programs. It is illegal for the government to produce or distribute such publicity material domestically without disclosing its own role.

Mr. Walker, who as comptroller general is chief of the Government Accountability Office, Congress's investigative arm, said in his letter: "While agencies generally have the right to disseminate information about their policies and activities, agencies may not use appropriated funds to produce or distribute prepackaged news stories intended to be viewed by television audiences that conceal or do not clearly identify for the television viewing audience that the agency was the source of those materials."

"It is not enough," he added, "that the contents of an agency's communication may be unobjectionable."

Mr. Walker's letter was made available late Friday afternoon by Democrats on Capitol Hill. Asked for a response Friday night, the White House had no immediate comment.

The two best-known cases of such video news releases - one concerning the new Medicare law, the other an antidrug campaign by the Bush administration - drew sharp rebukes from the G.A.O. after separate investigations last year found that the agencies involved had violated the law.

Those cases were followed by disclosures that the government had paid at least one conservative commentator, Armstrong Williams, to promote the administration's No Child Left Behind education measure and had put two other conservative writers on the federal payroll to help develop programs. These episodes have prompted calls from Democrats for stricter oversight of the administration's publicity practices, which have cost millions of dollars of federal revenue.

In the Medicare case, a video made in the style of a newscast featured a spokeswoman named Karen Ryan who claimed to be reporting from Washington on Medicare law changes strongly backed by the administration but opposed by many Democrats, who consider them a windfall for the pharmaceutical and insurance industries. In part of one script, she said that "all people with Medicare will be able to get coverage that will lower their prescription drug spending."

Often there is an intermediary in the process: a public relations firm hired by a government agency to produce a polished video and direct other aspects of a publicity drive.

One centrally involved firm is Ketchum, a giant in the public relations industry whose representatives arranged for both the Medicare video and the contract with Mr. Williams, a pact that is now under investigation by three government agencies. Ketchum has received $97 million in government public relations contracts since 2001.

The G.A.O. letter did not caution agencies to curtail their publicity practices, telling them simply to adhere to disclosure requirements.

"Prepackaged news stories," Mr. Walker wrote, "can be utilized without violating the law, so long as there is clear disclosure to the television viewing audience that this material was prepared by or in cooperation with the government department or agency."

But Democrats said they hoped the letter would lead to tougher scrutiny of what they describe as an aggressive publicity machine within the administration.

"The G.A.O. is sending a clear message to the Bush administration: shut down the propaganda mill," Senator Frank R. Lautenberg of New Jersey said in a statement on Friday. "The G.A.O. is simply telling the White House to stop manipulating media, stop paying journalists and be straight with the American people."

"I provide shipping costs to the winning bidder only."

Oh yeah that's good.

Buyer: How much for shipping?

Seller: $200

Buyer: !)@#$*(!!

Seller: Want negative feedback?

Buyer: No.... (whimper)

Seller: pay up.  It's $250 now.

Undoubtedly the buyer has been looking for a 150e for a while.

When a collector or someone who is looking for a specific item puts a value on something, they tend to include the value of time they've spent or are likely to spend looking for another one that's as nice as the one at hand.

It's possible this sale will bring more out of the woodwork, but I spent a couple years looking for an HF-150e before giving up and going for the larger 7030+ for my camping and vacation radio.

I wouldn't have gone as high as this one closed, but I'd have paid a premium to get one.

Video is here: http://www.radio-canada.ca/Medianet/RDI2/LeJournalRDI200502151759_1.asx

Unfortunately it is in French.  My french is rusty but the video is pretty explanatory.

- no guards
- unlocked doors
- no alarms
- easy access including to control rooms
- power plants sell power to the USA and Canada

Of course! After all, you folks do have some oil, and you do have some hydro power. Why waste our time over in the middle-east when we could better expend our efforts nearer to home by attacking CanaDuh.

Well, moron, the Seidman School of Business at Grand Valley State University is a very respected institution.

Shove it up your ass, 'tard.

Perhaps, 'tard boy... but I was responding to Mr. Rubins assertion that it was somehow illegal  or a promotion of propaganda to send someone in the USA a QSL card.

You however jumped in with your typical 'tard boy shit... and that is indeed what most everything you spew is... shit.

Please, take your meds, seek some therapy, or do whatever you must to avoid your little 'episodes'.

Leave the SWL'ing and the DX'ing to the big boys.

You can complain to eBay if you get scammed like this.  The seller agrees to charge "reasonable" shipping costs, and you are not expected to pay obviously inflated shipping costs even if you win the auction.

Anyway, negative feedback works both ways.

The problem (for me) is that I often don't know where the buyer lives until the bidding is done.  Since I send stuff by post, the cost can vary greatly depending on the destination.  I feel it's fairer to not charge a flat rate to the farthest destination when I might be selling to someone just up the street.

Does the U.S. have it's house all in order then? No large facilities storing extremely dangerous material that recently failed multiple security checks? Any problems with civilians getting secret access to passenger jets during airport security tests? Do you need Canada to assist with that?

The point of terrorism is that it attacks so-called soft targets that most of us (in North America, anyway) have never had to consider before. Everyone will catch up eventually. The U.S. and Canada have always worked hard to keep the worlds longest undefended border open for trade and culture. We have a long, shared history of cooperating on mutually beneficial cross-border activities, including the sharing of intelligence information and security duties. Seeing that Canada is America's largest trading partner (and vice-versa) it makes sense for this trend to continue.

Dams and research facilities are big chunks of infrastructure that are incredibly hard to maintain. Changing any kind of process for these facilities can test the patience of Job (those of you in the military probably know exactly what I'm talking about!) and it can take a few revisions to work the kinks out.

However, the first rule of security is to make sure you know what you really want to accomplish with a new security system. Step one is to survey the existing process and determine all the weak spots you can.

Then you publish this information amongst a team of security experts and draw up an implementation. And then you survey the process /again/. Usually this plan is in stages, so you can test and revise within a schedule, making sure you reach your milestones. There is nothing more dangerous than a half-baked security process that a.) may not actually do what you expect it to do, and b.) makes you think you are safe when you really aren't.

Case in point: <http://www.syslog.com/~jwilson/pics-i-like/kurios119.jpg>

In fact, we want to see more reports like this made public. This is what democracy and free access to information give us. The time to worry is when our watchdog organizations start reporting that nothing is wrong at all.

To segue skillfully back onto a relevant topic, I wonder if RCI has repeated the CBC report that (I think) broke this story originally? Ok, that was a lame segue, but I did my best to stay on topic.

Damn it's raining, I have to head towards LA area because of work tomorrow but I am taking my big 4 wheeler.

One nice thing is, I did get 5 hours work on my scanner file yesterday. I am going to work on a file system for DXing on the Sat 800 next time I am home, maybe I should just say DXing because I will be able to use it on all there radios at home office or in the motor home.

The lord gave us all these wonderful blessings BUT, if it keeps raining he is going to take them back!!!

Hi all I am helping a friend promote a web site. You see a childhood friend of hers lost her husband at the World Trade Center on Sept. 11, 2001. She has run into some hard times and my freind wants to help her. So she came up with the idea to market Just say NO to Bin Ladin dartboards and punching bag covers. Not only is she going to donate part of the proceeds to her freind but an additional part of the proceeds will go to the Firemans Fund. If you could take the time to check out the web site it would be much appreciated!! The web site addy is:

I'd like just a touch more volume from the surround speakers for my old Kenwood Dolby Pro-Logic system. Because of the way I have to situate the speakers part of the sound is muffled by furniture between me and them (a high back sofa I sit on).

Is there a small (ac powered) amp I can get to place between the receiver and the surround speakers to boost their volume just a bit? They're only 40watt speakers so I don't need something monstrous.

front speakers ------ receiver -- amp ------------- rear speakers

Though my question is not SW related, I'm asking here because you guys and gals know tons about lots of stuff... maybe a few of you can give me a lead on this.

Thanks all.

We may never know what caused this outburst.  Could have been withdrawal from some drugs, legal or otherwise.  Could have been the two fellow employees "had it coming" to them for some past action that will never be revealed.

Notice the wounded employees have their names withheld but the shooter is identified.

If there had been harassment in the work place the employer will cover it up, especially if it had been reported and nothing was done about it.  It's called CYA - Cover Your A.

It seems like people other than government employees can "go postal" as evidenced by this article.

Oh, Detective Sgt. Jeff Barnes said, "Lett had arrived at work and was disgruntled for some reason."  No kidding!

That's because the local boosters down there didn't want to scare off the folks moving in from Kansas back during the boom years, so the local media called them "Microbursts".  There's a chapter on this in _Ecology of Fear_ by Mike Davis, an L.A. area writer.

>That is a first in California I think.

As I remember the book, it's more like two a year in the L.A. area.
Interesting things happen when the local newspaper company is also a big real estate developer.

I don't know about the cabbage bit (or who The Socket Puppet is, for that matter), but that description of meiosis seems right, based on my dimly remembered high school biology. Human beings do, in fact, share a good amount of our DNA with most every life-form on this planet. That includes things like yeasts and molds.

Put in computer science terms, there is a lot of redundancy in DNA. This is handy because the environment that DNA is required to work within is pretty "noisy", and redundant information allows for errors/mutations without sacrificing overall intelligence/stability.

The 98% for chimps (most apes, actually) is a pretty accurate number based on well-established research. That 2% makes all the difference in the world in terms of morphology. Heck, the amount of genetic variation between individuals (of the same species) is often measured in fractions of a fraction of a percent.

I got my initial experience just experimenting with different designs from the ARRL Handbook, hobby radios in some of the electronics magazines, etc. I had 20 years experience as an electronics repair technician. In 1992, I decided to get an Associates degree in Electronics Technology at Triton College, in River Grove, Illinois. One of the classes I took over there was a speech class, so I decided to give a dissertation about radio systems. The first radio was nothing but an elaborate version of a crystal radio, except I used an op-amp with diodes in the feedback loop to have a low level precision rectifier.

It worked well, but I wanted more, so I gave my friend Dean Woodman, NB9Z a call. I can't tell you how many 2:00 in the morning phone calls I had with him concerning design problems. He was my greatest mentor, but unfortunately, he died in a fire about 4 years ago when some gang bangers burned his house down. Very sad story.

Anyway, I asked him how hard it would be to design a receiver that would have the system gain like a Collins 651S-1. He said "it's easy............just use a couple of MC1350 I.F. ampliers, with a good mixer ahead of the system".

After that, I designed my first I.F. subsystem with these devices, but still, I had to devise and AGC system. After trying numerous designs, I eventually came up with one of my own, using a couple of op-amps.

Next, came the mixer..........my first mixer used a single diode with a resistive summing network. I never saw this design published, but I thought I would give it a try. I worked out pretty well, but I decided to give Mini-Circuits a try. I discovered that company in a Nuts and Volts advertisement. The SRA-3 mixer worked out pretty well, so well, in fact, that I decided to make a dual conversion receiver. I used ceramic filters from old broken CB radios, along with their crystal filters.

At this time, I didn't know how to design synthesizers, so I used a good signal generator as the 1st LO. I used a conventional Colpitts design as the 2nd LO, running it a 5mW into another diode ring mixer. The results were encouraging. A year went by, and I graduated with my degree.

As luck would have it, Rockwell-Collins had an advertisement in the Chicago Tribune for circuit board designers. It is pretty funny..........a week before that ad showed up I was telling my wife that Collins Radio Company would be a place for my dream job.

This turned out to be a very good move; there were extensive training classes on printed circuit board design, not only for signal integrity but also from the EMC standpoint. An example is when routing digital lines, using microstrip of the characteristic impedance of the digital devices. For instance, CMOS families have a typical impedance of 70 to 90 ohms. By following these guidelines, it is possible to design a radio that doesn't have digital hash getting into the RF portion of the system. Another thing I discovered when working over there was the concept of "filament growth", whereby if two PCB traces are too close together and there is a certain potential, a filiment of metal can grow between the traces and short them out. This mechanism can also occur throught layers of FR4 material because the substrate has a certain amount of porosity.

Continuing on, Mini-Circuits came out with the POS-XX series of VCOs, so I thought why not give them a try.

I still didn't know anything about synthesizers yet, so I devised a circuit that used a 10-turn pot as the tuning element. I used three op-amps to develop the V_Tune for the low end of the pot and the V+X_Tune voltage for the high end of the pot.

By using a string of metal film resistors and switching them at different points along the voltage divider for the V_Tune voltage I was able to have a bandswitched tuning system that tuned in 3MHz sub-bands to cover from 0 to 30MHz.

After this design was completed, I met Gary Pershin, also of Rockwell-Collins. You may have seen his homebrew designs mentioned on rec.radio.homebrew. He said "Pete, why don't we design a synthesizer?" I told him that I didn't know how to do that, so he came up with a design that used an MC145152 parallel programmable system. I didn't want to use DIP switches to tune the radio, so I came up with a sequencer design that used an optical encoder to send a string of pulses to an array of 74190 counter chips. Gary came up with a good implementation to set the Asynchrous inputs of the counters to have a default startup frequency of 10MHz. Using an XOR gate, he came up with a good way to eliminate the tuning error when changing tuning directions with the Quadrature optical encoder.

He called me one evening and said "Pete, I have acquired synthesis!" We had our first synthesized receiver!

After I was at Rockwell-Collins for 2 years, I transferred to the Synthesizer Group, where I took extensive in-house classes about filter design, receiver design, and synthesizer design. These were graduate level classes given by some of the best folks in the industry, so I am grateful for this. When I was in the Synthesizer Group, I worked with some of the noted experts in the industry, so once again, I had the benefit of their years of experience.

The next design I came up with was a unit that used a Philips TDA1572 chip as the I.F. subsystem. This is the design that I had up on my website for awhile, after getting clearance from Rockwell-Collins to make the design public.

In the year 2000, my wife really got homesick for Chicago, so we moved back to our hometown and I took a job with Motorola, working with spread spectrum technology. I knew this wasn't the job for me, so I left Motorola and took a job driving a cab for several months; this allowed me to regroup. In June of 2003, I took a job with my present employer, and have been there ever since.

I do want to branch out and start my own company............this seems the way to go. I have so many products that I would like to market that would be beneficial to the SWL community. The reason that I got interested in receiver design in the first place was because I got tired of the overpriced, compromised design offerings that were on the market. That is the biggest reason I set up my radio design website...........I wanted to share my designs for the world so they wouldn't have to go through all the years of "paying the dues" and doing all of the research. It was a fun thing.

So, on a final note............................I only have a 2-year degree in Electronics, and 90% of my knowledge comes from on the job training, in-house design classes, and experience. When I finished my education at Triton College, I gave my favorite professor, Niel Volk, a super-duper MW receiver that had a tracking front end and a Mechanical Filter in the I.F. strip. When he said "Pete, I just don't know what to say", I said "oh, just tell me that this is a cool radio and that you will enjoy it".
Anyway, I hope this gives you a little bit of an idea of who I am and what I am about!

Pete

I don't watch crap on my tv set.I like to watch old,old movies and Westerns and War movies and Musical movies,a few comedys such as the Little Rascals,the Three Stooges,old,old adventure and action movies and hunting and fishing and auto racing tv programs.Just because I subscribe to DirecTV does not mean I have to watch those crap shows.I never have paid for or watched any pay per view programs and I never will.

You guys really need to dispose of those WebTV units. Cuhulin's post was -not- the first in the thread. That's evidenced by the fact that the thread title mentions left leaning political views and sobriety, and cuhulin's post talks about how much Budweiser he drinks and that he's a confirmed Republican.

"I drink a six pack of Budweiser each week.I am and I always have been and I will always be a,REPUBLICAN."

Wow, he was on radio for a hundred years or more wasn't he? Wonder how old he really was. I saw him on TV about 6 months ago and he looked a little feeble. Was he ill? I wouldn't really know cuz I don't keep up with him.

I was aware that he was quite ill recently, as I viewed him on the net 15 days ago, and he was obviously very ill then. For the time being,
Ms. Scott said that the broadcasts will continue, and that next Sunday,February 27, a farewell servie will be held for the 75 year-old pastor.

Those old simple computers like the Comodore, Radio Shack Color Computer, etc., will work fine as a dumb terminal along with a radio modem or other decoding device.  They just need a serial port, enough processing power to load some kind of comm software and display basic text.  I used a Coco 16 that had been bumped to 64k and a faster clock along with a tape drive, home brew RF modulator and a 40 character screen.  The CoCo worked great along with an AEA PK232MBX for several RTTY modes and cw.

I'm not surprised. You should give heterosexuality a try, sex doesn't Turning you 'on' would be a cheap tease. I won't do it, having standards and all. Others with your affliction have been know to turn towards Jelly. It quivers, as you probably know all too well.

Looks like the fucking idiots in the crook house of rep once again are tryingh to dictate what is "family viewing" Screw them, if you don't like what you see on TV you have the option of hitting the "off" button, but most people are too fucking fat, lazy and stupid to even hit the off button on the remote.

It is the responsibility of the parent to tell there child about what they may happen to see on TV, all of a sudden the gov't now has to raise someones kids. Welcome to the new nanny state.

All those 'politicans who voted "yay" can kiss my American arse and die. They are scum and do not truly represent the true American ways, but more or less a highly corrupt agenda based on control and not freedom.

He was diagnosed with prostrate cancer about 4 years ago. Doctors told him it was the worst kind one could have and he needed an operation and chemo right away. He instead went on a herbal / vitamin diet and insisted he had been healed. He actually was doing fine up until about 6 months ago when he started having severe nausea spells. In the last month he tried medical procedures in Mexico, but everything failed. He finally suffered a stroke last week and never regained consciousness. I believe the doctors only gave him 5 years even if he went ahead with the operation and chemo. He didn't and lived almost 4, so he beat the odds.

His wife, Melissa, is to take over the church as pastor, but the consensus seems to be she's not strong enough to hold it together. If anyone is really interested in what's happening, go to the newsgroup alt.fan.gene-scott. Lots of activity there right now.

My prayers go out to Dr Scott's family and followers and may they find peace.

James,

What is the meaning of the post below?  What does it have to do with shortwave radio?  We all know Canada is the best friend America has.

I feel sorry for you, a 65 year old Vietnam war vet should know better than that.  For those of you that wish to question James in person please contact him directly at:

When he was on a local channel on Sun night, I always cracked up when he would lecture the viewers when they didn't cough up the cash, and then say, "I'm disgusted with you, play the damn music!!" Then there would be a half hour of his Jack Russell Terriers playing, or his wife riding her horse. Then he would come back on and look at the camera for a while, and mutter a few words, and then, the dogs would be playing again.

Yes. Why don't you quote from the posts that you're replying to, like most other people do? It really makes it hard to follow you when you don't.

I can't seem to find a good detailed review of the Sony AN-LP1.  If anyone owns one could you please comment on it's performance especially compared to a random wire.  Is it more of a noise amplifier or does it do a good job of keeping the floor low?  Also, if you know of reviews I cannot find I would be happy for the links.

Thanks very much.

This is EXCELLENT NEWS if it can be confirmed.
Yes folks, another charlatan TV/Radio 'mercan preacher assumes room temp because he allegedly didn't want prostrate treatment cause it may have crimped his style and as a result the cancer ate him starting from the balls upward....????

Well folks, now the real fun starts!!!

Who will be his Successor designate ?
Has there been any hints of a pending Jonestown or a Heaven's Gate type mass-apeshit in La yet....?

But most important of all ---->  Where did all the MONEY GO BEFORE HE CROAKED?

And now, if Y'all will excuse me, I'm goin over to alt.fan.gene-scott to enjoy all the wailing and gnashing of teeth over lost financial gifts.....

WMAL - Washington, DC - for the M A Lease Optical Company  They sold the station to NBC in the 1930s, but the call persists to this day.

I used to watch him on UHF in the early 80's for purely entertainment purposes.  He had a suit that looked like he bought it at Col.
Sanders' estate auction  Until a few months ago I didn't even know he was still around.

It's still coming in loud and clear in eastern NC at 05:00 UTC.  Lots of music and an announcement.  At 4:30 today Dr. Scott when home to be with the Lord. (didn't say 4:30 where -- assumed Pacific time)

Going to give a "send off celebration for Dr. Scott" . . . .

Will continue to broadcast the program with Dr. Scott's messages.
Sounds a bit like Oliver B. Green's, Katherine Koulman's (? sp) and a few others' ministries.

I expect it will continue for a couple years or more with gradual dwindling of the income and thus the broadcast outlets.  This is the way some others seem to have gone.

Same situation when Bro. Stair passes.  Expect it to continue for years.

Point:  Don't expect too much air time to be "freed up" right away!  :-)

There is a VAST difference between the death of a Christian and that of a non-Christian.  The Christian's family CAN actually rejoice in his or her passing on to be with Christ - FOREVER!

I bet he keeps going strong on 6090 for some time.

That transmitter belongs to him.

By now all of you know that Dr. Gene Scott has passed, but guess what? All of US are going to pass away also.  It is appointed unto man once to die AND AFTER THAT THE JUDGMENT!  Heb. 9:27

The righteous are REQUIRED to tell the wicked they are going to die. Eze. 3:18

The Christian is better off dead because he is with Christ and no longer concerned about possibly failing and denying Christ here on earth. Phillipians 1:23.

The non-Christian needs to be greatly concerned about dying before accepting Christ for there is NO OTHER WAY to the Father in heaven. John 14:6, KJV, "Jesus saith unto him, I am THE way, THE truth, and THE life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Some of you rejoice at the death of Dr. Gene Scott.  Many Christians rejoice with you for, if he was truly a Christian (only God knows the heart), he is far better off than he ever was here.  ... Even before he got prostate cancer.  See Phil. 1:23.

Ah, the Commodore. Those little guys were fun to tinker with, and some of the things they could do were years ahead of what the PCs of the day were capable of. I had software that would decode Morse and rtty but dumped it all a long, long time ago.

Commodore BBSes were always the coolest ones to log onto - great BBS software like ImageBBS looked better than the stodgy interfaces you saw on PC boards, and all the really cool "doors" came out for the C= boards first.

There are still too many unhandled threat situations in the US so I don't think we have the time or resources for taking care of foreign problems.

I'll keep my big mouth shut for a few days.

Man we are getting the rain in the LA area. I just got down here about 3pm and it has rained in belts all afternoon and so far tonight.

I have seen rain when I lived in the Houston area but it's the run off from the hills and mountains that is tearing everything up. I was sure glad I was in my old four wheeler, I drove through 6 inches of water many times on the way down here on 395.

I'd go with the 7600GR because of it's sync' detector. The 909 is a close second because it has a tuning knob, but no sync'.

I returned the R8 that I bought from Grove in 1991 for $950 because the sync' was so finicky. I wait about seven years for the R8B, which has a superb sync' detector. I also have an SW8 with selectable sync'. It works great.

Thanks for the great reply Pete. You are doing some extraordinary work considering that you started with a two year degree. It shows that good mentoring and job training are just as important as formal education. I went to a four year college for electrical engineering but you obviously know more about receiver design than I do. Of course when I was in college integrated circuits were almost a new technology. :-)

Yes Al....I am sure that Christ, if he does exist, will welcome Dr euGene Scott (the guy who lived on a multi-million dollar horse farm, owned a small CA winery and lived like Hugh Heffner while he ordered his follows to "get on the telephone") into the pearly gates......

NOT!!!

"But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of. And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not."
  - 2 Peter 2:1-3

(If that passage above don't describe the late Dr. euGene Scott to a tee...then I don't know what does!!!!!)

"...and he looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury, and he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites, and of her he said, 'Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all, for all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God, but she of her penury (poverty) hath cast in all the living that she had"
  - Luke 21

...a rich man asked Jesus, "What is required for eternal life?" Jesus replied, "Follow the commandments." The man told Jesus that he had always kept the commandments and wanted to know what else was required. Jesus then told him, "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me" (Mat. 19:21). The man walked away very sad because he was wealthy. Jesus told His disciples, "And again I say unto you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God" (Mat. 19:24).

I still have my Commodore 64 and the floppy drive for it. I just recently threw out the first computer I ever built the Sinclair ZX81. I remember taking like 20 min to type in a software program for a game. I was also on the internet way back then using a company called Q-Link which was later bought out by a company called AOL. Those were the days...

Same here. I get the same overloading on *one particular frequency as I do on my other radios so that's the extent of my OL problems. Aside from that station, all is well. Now I would have liked the backlit display on the 150E, but so far I enjoy the rig without it.

I have also read some of these 150e's have quality control problems. I've read about noises appearing on the E that did not reproduce on the original. I also read they are not as sensitive and the knob doesn't feel or turn like the old one either. In fact, one guy wrote the knob actually moved down on it own it was so lose. I'm glad I have a good condidtion original that was built by Lowe for sure.

The one reason I haven't bought a remote control for my 150 yet is that I love the way the dial feels and rotates. It's a pleasure to use it to lock in a station. I do have the keypad for it to jump around but I find the "Fast" button on the 150 is just splendid. You can go where you want in a flash. In all the reviews for the 150 {whch are not many} I have read, not one mentioned this fast feature but gave the impression you would have to turn from one end of the radio to the last all day long.

Funny that if Steve didn't write Frank about the radio not having the name

Europa across it, he wouldn't have taken it off Ebay and relisted it without a Buy It Now option for $595. Next look for frank to list the keypad separately for it.

I remember a "preacher" with a bushy beard on UHF about the same time.
He would sit right in front of the camera smoking a huge stogie and rant about how the broadcast would stay in his face until someone called in and donated $10,000.  Is this the same kook?

Hunter S. Thompson

in the same month the planet gets to know the 'journalist' James/Jeff Guckert/Gannon, Hunter S. Thompson decides to make The Big Bit-Spit and eject from the planet. This could be sacrilege, and I hope his family will forgive me, but there is something wretchedly fitting in the confluence.

Hunter was a drunk and a drug-sucker. He would go to cover an event and slather himself with LSD. He went to the '72 GOP convention as a wild-eyed liberal and elbowed his way into the activist bullpen, grabbing a sign reading 'Garbage Men Demand Equal Pay' before charging the floor with the Nixon-shouters to howl "Four More Years!" at John Chancellor.

He wanted to write about motorcycle gangs, so he went out and joined the worst of them, and got his ass stomped in. And wrote about it.

Amusing, then, that Hunter decides to cash his check in the same week we learn about James or Jeff Gannon or Guckert or whatever. What would Thompson have made of this feeble wretch? Of a man who reports on the White House with a fake name? Who was so clearly the go-to guy for McClellan or Bush when the questions got too hot? Who copied and pasted his 'news reports' from boilerplate GOP press releases? Who somehow got within 20 feet of the President of the United States using a false name while peddling his wares online as a male prostitute for $200 an hour?

Hunter once wrote in 'The Great Shark Hunt' about walking in on two Secret Service agents sharing a joint back and forth in a hotel room. Maybe that's how Gannon/Guckert/Whoever got within pistol range of the leader of the free world. No other explanation seems to satisfy.

It comes down to this. The Bush crew has been caught in bed with the proverbial 'live boy.'

Someone in that White House either eased Gannon/Guckert/Whoever through the 'hard pass' application process, which requires a thorough background check, or else smoothed the way for him to get day pass after day pass after day pass.

Some complain that Gannon/Guckert/Whoever is being victimized for his political views. This misses the point. Someone let a working, advertising whore into the White House, and then was stupid enough to let him walk around alive and free after he blew his own cover. That's the point.

I think the real point is that your therapy didn't 'take'.

The other point is that you conveniently used the death of Hunter S. Thompson to segue into a little rant about something totally different.

You are truly a 'tard boy and a shining example of what is wrong with liberals.

Next time you're sucking cock I really hope you choke on it!

I know that the scripture quoted is true.  I DON'T know Dr. Gene Scott.
  As many times as I ran across him on the dial I very seldom stopped to listen to him.  I do know that a few on this group would rejoice at the thoughts of the death of any true Christian.

Again, I can't tell you if "that" described Dr. Scott or not.  I suspect it describes a number of radio and tv preachers! ....as well as a number of them who are NOT on radio or tv!  :-(

Thanks, Mr. Starman.....................anytime you have any questions about receiver design, synthesizer design, etc...........feel free to give me a shout. That's the cool thing about knowledge.............it's free to share.
I have a philosophy.......it's not "look what I can do", but it is "look what you can do too!" Keep tuned!

Matthew 19:25 When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?
Matthew 19:26 But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.

You seem to have issues with linear thought.

Once again: propaganda is illegal, immoral, and ultimately harmful to we the people.  Bush, nonetheless, insists on employing it.  He is a traitor.  His supporters would be traitors too if they weren't so far removed from reality as to have an insanity defense.

The fires of Hell have been stoked to their highest and Satan's minions are dancing with glee as a major religious fraud of the century and vile polluter of Shortwave Radio, Gene Scott, goes to his infernal reward.
Can "Brother Stare" be far behind?

I know they'll be playing his drivel on shortwave for some time yet, but without the shepherd, the sheep will soon disperse.
I'll bet a couple of SW broadcasters are sweating over their balance sheets today.
GoodBye, Gene Scott- swindler of the fearful and weak- master huckster for Jesus.
And good riddance....

Dave S.

That's really too bad. I found Dr Scott to be an excellent entertainer.

For some reason, 6.090 is the strongest signal on SW most nights for me, and his show usually catches my ear with his killer bumper music.

Dr Scott was a lot like Rush. A consummate radio professional, who charmed you into loving him, no matter what his message happened to be.

I do hope his followers didn't actually send him all that money he kept demanding. Hopefully they had enough sense to see through his insane pleas.

I will miss the Good Doctor.

I'd imagine that they thought that way once the big online services started getting access in the early-mid 90's.  I remember the crap hitting the fan when AOL (and there was another one before them) came on board the newsfeeds.
At the same time, several people on a couple of the other ng's I've read in the past wouldn't have been there without the blanket access of an AOL or MSN, so you take the good with the bad.

MacArthur once said,I Shall Return! MacArthur,,,,,,,, y'all go and do a search for,MacArthur and the Bonus Marchers.The prez at that time asked them to leave D.C.They didn't,the prez asked the cops to make them leave D.C.the cops didn't and neither did the Firemen,some of them were Veterans too.Yeah,y'all go and  do a search for that.Nawww,Burr,don't do

So you claim..proof.

The bible is not proof Al! A book can say anything.

So you claim, I'm not really worried, I'll just be worm food, like you.
You probably aren't going anywhere...except into the ground.

I thought he was amusing. Most all the other preachers are slimeballs at best, so I'm not rejoicing he's dead, but I don't think there's any reason to be happy about it...and prostate cancer can be a bad way to go...

Mr. Davies reminds us to:
  << Remember that Time Lords rule. >>

Quite incredible that you were able to do this.  You are truly amazing.
 Nashville Joe said so himself a few days ago.

Now go get profit Stair's financial records and turn them over to the IRS.  Should be a small task for a time lord.

Think you can make it over to Mem-Town any time soon?  Tameka will want to pass the word on to "the sistahs" so they can show you a good time.

Yep - and lately the definition of "Christian" is a sliding scale.

HarveyWhiteWhatever listed some scripture passages that address the situation quite well.  I don't think we need to worry about Scott, Stair or any of their kind being Christian.  Just money grubbers
"stealin' in the name of the Lord".

What I'd look for first is to see if the dial pointers haven't shifted on the cord(s). <<

Mark Zenier  mzen...@eskimo.com  Washington State resident <<

Mark and Frank - the frequency aligns correctly near the lower end of each band - for example, on the 4-12 MHz band, WWV shows up at virtually dead-on 5 MHz.  At the upper end of the band, however, WWV is off by about .6 MHz from 10 MHZ (depending on what the radio ate for breakfast), and things are a bit worse on signals near 12 MHz.  The same is proportionally true for each of the other bands.

The bandspread dial, when used, is off by varying degrees from one end to the other, ranging from nil to about 15 or 20 khz.

I have some instructions for fine tuning these ranges using the band-specific coils within, but thus far I simply haven't had the nerve to touch them.  Someday I may, but I am content for now to be primarily a listener rather than a tinkerer.

The Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 Ultra Advanced Version 1.0
The Ultimate in Causal Engineering Technology
www.lifetechnology.org/ultramoneymagnet.htm

Through the aid of spiritual guidance given to us by the higher forces we have discovered a uniquely different and  improved method of creating our well known Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 .The new method was delivered to us through an exceptionally gifted channel and we were astounded by the information that we were privileged to have received. According to the information the new method which we are adopting can raise the subtle energy characteristics and the manifesting capabilities of The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 more than one hundred fold.

According to numerous testimonials this powerful device has certainly proved that it has the power to change one's financial situation for the better in the shortest possible time, and it is without doubt the most powerful and successful money generating talisman of all time. The sole function of The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 is simply to create opportunities for it's owner to gain money and prosper financially. The longer one possesses this unique cosmic money magnet , the stronger it will become, and the more money it will draw to it's owner.

We have been using this device ourselves for some time now and experienced a massive increase in company income and profits just a few days after the first creation of The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 .We have been exceptionally blessed by the higher forces and in particular by the wisdom of The Archangel Mikhail.

Originally Life Technology Research International=AE had listed these devices as Psychotronic Generators=99 designed to be programmed for various different types of archetypal energy (trend) ,but when we became aware of the massive demand for the money and wealth programmed Psychotronic Generator=99 it was decided to being marketing The Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 as a specifically programmed stand alone device. It is only now that we have been given specific information to create a magical tool that will quite simply transform ones life.

Could The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 become the most powerful metaphysical tool ever created? It is our belief that the most significant difference between this device and other forms of magickal talisman or life changing catalyst (eg NLP ,Huna , Hypnosis, Kaballah , Magick etc) is its passive mode of operation, ie no conscious input is required from the user, and unlike many other talismans the device will function optimally without any necessity for a certain belief system on the part of the user. The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 is so powerful in fact that it will override the belief system of the most hardened sceptic, and will reverse the mindset of the most pessimistic belief system.

Life Technology Research International=AE has taken this technology of 'Causal Engineering' and using methods based on the developmental work of Pavlita, Rifat , Fortune and many hours of Russian Psychotronics research we convert quartz crystals to Psychotronic Generators=99. They amplify, produce and direct bioplasmic energy to modify quantum mechanical collapse, changing the course of events in the macroscopic world. This device uses a multiphase set of fields which apart from altering events, inculcate a theta rhythm of around 7 to 8 Hz, the natural theta frequency of the planet being 7.82. This frequency is the Schumann Resonance, the doorway to the world of causal engineering, ie consciously creating and manifesting ones desires.

The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 acts by establishing a new pattern of financial abundance in the subconscious and subtle energy fields of the user by harnessing the lifeforce and wealth enhancing powers of the Hebrew letters of the Kaballah. It is widely recognised in esoteric science and by academics such as James Hurtak and Stan Tenen among others that Hebrew letters through their specific mathematical structural geometry contain information that encodes life force energy, ie it provides an intelligent template for natural creative forces. It is these magical primal creative forces of The Kabbalah that we harness and focus in the preparation of The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99

In the 1920's it was discovered that quartz crystals resonate at 32,768 khz. Seeing that the Great Pyramid of Khufu or Cheops Pyramid, is made mostly of limestone, which stone crystal matrix is mostly quartz, It is proposed that the entire pyramid operates as a conciously programmable cosmic biocomputer or radionics device, a massive Psychotronic Generator=99 originally capable of harnessing and directing the focussed intent of the Egyptian priests who were its engineers .

The fact is that everything in the universe vibrates and oscillates. Therefore the connecting link between all forms of energy is vibration, sympathetic harmony and resonance. By studying and applying the principles of vibration we are enabled to see beyond material matter and into the primary creative forces of nature. Utilising the information from diverse fields such as Radionics, Psionics ,Psychotronics ,Quantum Physics ,Sacred Geometry, Sonics ,music and metaphysics has led to an understanding of how the human mind can interact creatively with the material universe.

Essentially, when the biotronic matrix of The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 interacts with the conscious will of the operator it causes subtle changes to occur in the microcosmic universe which translates to manifestation in the macrocosmic universe (real world).

This device will naturally induce a theta state in the user as it alters reality to make money, wealth, abundance and affluence  etc. more probable. The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 is charged with the specific programming described above ,or may be programmed with your own specific intent. On request, Life Technology Research International=AE creates Psychotronic Generators=99 to generate any operational trend field which will facilitate the materialisation of any wish.

The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 may be used in each of the following ways:
Place on a desk or on a bedside table for passive functionality, no input from the user is required.The device is an ideal size to be carried in a pocket or kept in a handbag. It is better that the device should be kept as close as possible to the user, ideally within 2 meters.

The device may also be kept under a pillow while sleeping where archetypal information will permeate and influence the subconscious mind ,or held in the hands or placed on the body while meditating. While relaxing or meditating it is an excellent idea to hold the crystal in either or both hands and focus positively on areas of ones life where positive financial change could occur, ie ones job ,business practices ,salary level etc. Create a mental movie and visualise achieving a wealthy ,prosperous state of existence. In any form of conscious subtle energy manipulation, results will occur through the artificial enhancement of natural processes. It is therefore important to recognise the new opportunities that you will attract to your life which will direct you towards a new paradigm of wealth and prosperity.

Ordering
The Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 supplied is the highest grade clear rock quartz . Please note that this is the much more powerful version of our other Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 for sale at our site and other auctions for $90. Each Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 comes with instructions for use. Each individually created Ultra Advanced Psychotronic Money Magnet=99 is priced at $180 US dollars. International shipping is priced at $10 US Dollars. Shipping Insurance is optional.

Our 100% customer satisfaction rating at ebay indicates how pleased our customers have been since we began supplying our metaphysical products there. Please visit The Life Technology Ebay Store at http://stores.ebay.com/life-technology

Say it is not so. I liked Dr. Gene. Guy cracked me up. One of the few

The same comment could be made about guys that pay $800.00 for a Sony 6800W, $3,000 for a Sony 320, $5,000 for a Panasonic FR-9000 or $100.00 for a Radio Shack DX160 or $30,000 for a wooden cased floor radio from the 1930's.  Most SWL's looking for a radio to use would pay far less for a used Kenwood R5000, Icom R71 or Japan Radio and get a lot more performance for their money.

The guy may be a collector and as we all know collectors are governed by a whole different set of rules than users. And if the guy is from Japan, they have a propensity to bid the sky to complete a collection.

Hey,not too far back,I read on the internet (y'all know how it goes,If it's on the internet,it must be true) somewhere that one of those "money grubbing Christians" (Baker's?) was thinking about trying to make a comeback? (Maybe it's Tammy Faye Baker? with that fifty tons of painted on fake makeup all over her mug)

Yes, Dr. Scott always struck me as an honest man.

I remember watching him on TV back in the 80's - he'd be showing off his latest gold lighter, or his horses, and he was very up front about the fact it was none of your business what he'd do with the money you had better send if you wanted him to continue.

I suspect many of the folks who listened or watched him did it for a goof - he was entertaining.

Several people have noted that they use the same external supply from Radio Shack that I tried, and without a noise problem. This makes me wonder if the problem is with something other than the power supply itself. Is it possible that the copper wires running from the binding posts of the power supply to the spring clip terminals on the rear panel of the R8B are the real problem? In other words, could they be acting as antennas and picking up the noise I hear? If so, then the problem would persist no matter which external power supply I used.

Your donations will enable me to continue listening to kook radio.

It will also help to tide me over until I get the settlement from the insurance company regarding the driver who was essentially unlicensed that ran the stop sign and broadsided me, totalling out my truck, and sending me to the hospital.

Have you walked your property with a portable radio looking for the noise source?

~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

The AN-LP1 antenna

In January of 2004, I finally obtained a (used) AN-LP1 antenna, a project that had once been terminated after the decision to get an

AR7030. Now the AOR isn't exactly a portable, so... My AN-LP1 (JFTR: S/N 15243) had been modified quite strongly by the previous owner who, among other things, removed the cloth (for better handling, I suppose), wrapping something around the wire and frame - well, a "naked" AN-LP1 doesn't look exactly pretty, but reception is unaltered. So, what about a little review?

Handling: I got the folding twist right virtually on the first try (after use, the antenna has to be folded together again, which had been reported as being a bit tricky until you get the hang of it), though it's quite possible that it would be more difficult with a stock antenna frame. Operation is quite simple: Unfold antenna module and attach it somewhere (that's a bit of an unsolved problem on this antenna, you can clip it somewhere and attach it to windows and such, but that's about it), connect antenna controller to both antenna and receiver (if you were wondering what the somewhat strange-looking longish part is, that's a filter into which you plug in the cable from the antenna controller on one end and connect the thing to the antenna frame with the other end), put in two AA batteries into the antenna controller (I used rechargeables, since I didn't have anything else at hand, and these work pretty well, with the switchoff voltage being roughly 2.3 V) if not already present, and off you go. At least if you have a receiver with a "hot" EXT ANT socket, like the ICF-SW7600G(R), ICF-SW100 or ICF-SW1000T. On others, it's necessary to explicitly turn the antenna controller on with the respective slider switch. While receiving, it's necessary to select the correct frequency range for best reception.

Reception: That's what we bought this thing for, right? And so far, the AN-LP1 has not disappointed me. One must know, of course, that it's only good for the frequency range from about 80 meters to 13 meters, with a preference for the lower frequencies. There the antenna really shines, with signals that are a lot stronger - say, 20 dB - than just with the whip (even when using an antenna tuner, [ADDX-PRE-1]), and usually cleaner than the signals of a tuned whip + AN-71 combo. Also, the preselection helps a lot to minimise IM (like on 80 and 22 meters, where at the time of testing the wire overloaded the receiver on the respective frequencies), and with the apparently rather sharp 5 MHz range, images from 49m on 60m (a nuisance of the 7600G) are considerably attenuated. (19m images on 20m are strong as ever, but you can't have everything.) Minimising interference by rotating the loop is also nice. Performance, while still good on 16m, is no longer stellar on 13m, where the difference to the whip + tuner is no longer that huge.

All in all: Recommended. If you need better reception "on the go", the AN-LP1 makes a good travel companion. (And not only that - it'll also deliver good performance at home and with the receiver used on a wall wart. I've retired the AN-71 for now.) Unfortunately, its availability has never been too great (apparently it's only being made once in a while, in small batches), and the price may also seem a bit deterring, given it costs about half as much as an ICF-SW7600G(R) when new.

P.S. : I own one, very worthwhile purchase..

NOT a noise amplifier; has a noise filter & several other pre selector features.

Goes with me & my Sangean 606A everywhere

Pick up passport to worldband radio, theres a detailed review in there..

I own one and use it with my Grundig YB-400PE. I think it does a good job, but usually only on the signals that are somewhat strong to begin with. I live in a very electrically noisy apartment building, and I find it enhances the listenability of signals that are already coming in somewhat decently. I don't think it does a good job on SSB or DX signals. If I had the ability, I would run a wire outside. I think that would give you a much more listenable signal, as the AN-LP1 tends to amplify RF noise quite a bit. I'm not sure what receiver you have, so your results could be different from mine.

I hope I don't sound like I'm bashing the Sony...I think it is superior to a simple indoor reel antenna (the kind that comes with most portables). But it does have its limitations. If you listen to primarily programs being beamed to the US (or wherever you live), then the Sony will probably do a good job.

You're combining two different things from two different postings.

The point is that the VOA is prohibited from interacting in certain interactions with U.S. citizens and residents because Congress didn't want to create a domestic propaganda agency. (By the way, note the sponsorship scandal in Canada.)

I had thought it included QSL cards but apparently not. But, for example, when they have contests, you always hear that this contest is not open to citizens or residents of the U.S.

On the other hand, the Bush administration has been making "news" segments for local stations and distributing them to U.S. TV stations without disclosing their origin and agenda.

No, but I don't think I need to. The noise is only there when I use the external power supply.

I don't really mind using the Drake's internal power supply, but I suspect an external supply would cut down, at least a bit, on the occasional snaps and pops that come through the AC line.

When I was looking, HF-150's seemed to be easier to find in european on line stores than US ones.

So it's probably worth a shot.

Propaganda is illegal? Someone better go round up Michael Moore, George Soros, MoveOn.org and the rest of their ilk. They already got Dan Rather.

FLASH!!! Dr Gene Scott of the University Network that is heard worldwide via many relay sites has died this day. He started his network on Channel 30 UHF here in California many years ago. He moved to shortwave when he lost his tv license from the FCC. He recently went on various tv stations in the USA by leasing time. I suspect that his radio broadcasts will remain on the air for awhile. Another era of radio broadcasting comes to a close in the USA!

If you can afford to build one, have the space needed, and nonly want to listen in one direction.
If you want a LP that is rotatable, prepare to spend even more money. They are great for VHF TV, scannig, and have some utiltiy for ham radio.
But for say 3~20MHz it would be HUDGE.
There are better choices for HF.

If you go to their web site, one of the antennas shown look a whole like like a spiral antenna. Hardly new or earth shattering. I saw on back in the late 1960s.
The web site shows it under a pop drink cap, I guess for RFID.
It is not unusual  to talk around the world on 10mtrs (28MHz), with one watt. Back in 1985 I talked with a ham in  Papau New Guinea with a modified JC Penny CB converted to the 10mtr ham band. using a fairrly awful antenna, a base loaded converted CB antenna, running about 1.2Watts PEP.

Depends on what you mean by "better".  If you want something that is broadband enough to cover 3-30 and as directional as a yagi, with very good directional gain, then a LP is not a "bad" choice given you have the room.

Right here I could interject the same word you used above. Proof. How do you know its a bad way to go? You gone that way? No. You know someone who has? Maybe yes.  The same could be said for Dr. Scott. If you ever knew any Christians, you would see their serenity in their leaving this world. Ask the doctors.  They can tell you that Christians on the whole have more of a grip on death than those who dont know God. They can tell you the horror on the faces of those who die not knowing what will happen to them after they are gone.  So throwing that word "proof" around shouldnt make you feel as smug as you think you are.

There is a fairly well known DX'er in western Canada who uses a rather large log-periodic antenna mounted on a big tower.

His name escapes me at the moment, but I have seen some pictures of his set up.

Yet another reason why we need to purge the Re-puke-licans. Let the viewer decide what is indecent, and what is not. Not some Bible-thumper with his thumb up his ass. Every TV set comes with a mechanism to change channels, as well as an "off" switch...

....which was used by the RC Church for Hundreds of Years afterwards by their claims that they were the sole "Official Representatives" of G-d's Church on Earth, and for an Indulgence or two anyone could buy their way into Heaven.  What a deal eh?!! You could spend your whole life plundering widow's houses, murdering infidels in the "Holy Lands" for the Pope and the Crusades, Burn people alive as a member of the Holy Inquisition or Convert "heathens" to Catholisim then cut off their heads a few hours after they said their High Holy Mass....and for just the equal of a couple of thousand dollars, you could assure yourself a good place in line at St Peter's Gates!  Of course the Protestants took advantage of this also, in the many divisions they went thru during their history and their insistence in a 10% "G-d Tax" right off the top of everyhing you take home as income. Still being practiced today, I may add, in some denominations. Then of course today you can buy your healing or financial blessing from Robert Tilton, Peter Popoff. Or you can be a good USA Loving Patriot and send a love gift to Pat Robertson or Jerry Falwell or some other

Dominionist fool preacher and spread the gospel of the GOP and GW Bush all arond the world....just like the Priests and Cardinals did to the poor ignorant phesants 1000 years ago to raise money for The Crusades of ethnic cleansing in the "Holy Lands".... (JUST LIKE OUR SHI+STAIN OF A PRESIDENT is now doing in Iraq and shortly in Iran and Syria for the glory of Far Right Christian Dominionism to rid the Holy Lands of Islam and grab some oil reserves in the process.......need I continue?)

There's always an angle of profit motive someplace, you just have to look for it.
And of course as the Bible is interpreted in MANY different ways by just about everyone. Money and Power and be sure to use the local holy books to support your claims and the religious fools of all stripes will beat a path
to your door to fill the collection plate.

Gene Scott knew this principal---> and he died a multi-millionaire.
Just like L Ron Hubbard and many others before him. I give em credit.

So thump that Bible boy....and send you money to Rev. Cleetus Hogjowles to do the Lawds work....it don't matter that he's driving a Lexus and you're driving a 10 year old beat up rusting Pontiac.   ; )

The only angle that ole Doc didn't explore was, if you gave a "love gift" of $1000.00 or more, then he would send you a packet of 100 Viagra tabs.  Now THERE'S a novel incentive for making a donation to the ministry eh...?    :)   :)   :)   :)

A book could be written here, but I'll attempt to keep it to the rough draft of a tract -- which someone else can polish and publish.

Do you play a musical instrument?  If you do you know the first thing you have to do is TUNE it.  If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?  On that little word "if" rests so many of the promises of God to mankind.  IF we keep His laws, THEN He will do certain things for us.  ELSE ....  See, It's a basic computer program statement.  IF...THEN...ELSE...

You have to get "in tune" to hear and understand some of the things in the Bible.

I'll be asking you a few questions along the way.  I'm sure you appreciate the warning.  :-)

Did you know that Jesus Christ occasionally spoke in parables so that men would NOT understand what He was saying?  Let's say He was speaking ESoterically to His disciples instead of EXoterically to some EXterior group - those who were not "in tune" with His program and plans.  He also mentions those who had ears and didn't hear and others having ears TO HEAR.  IF we have ears to hear His Word He'll give us understanding.

Did you know that there are 76 drops to a teaspoon?  Check it out at http://www.elivermore.com/conversions.htm ...and six teaspoons per fluid ounce?  (Bear with me now, I'm going some place, even if I don't know where it is! -- as the Sprint PCS TV commercial used to say before we started talking about the use of cell phones to track us, they'll find you and deliver your phone call to you "even if YOU don't know where you are!")  ...16 ounces per pint, 2 pints per quart, etc.  Therefore, a peck bucket (that's 10 quarts) would contain 10 quarts times 2 pints per quart times 16 ounces per pint times six teaspoons per ounce times 76 drops per teaspoonful.  A formula for drops per bucket could be easily written from the above information.  76 x 6 x 16 x 2 x 10 = Number of drops per 10 quart bucket. That is 145,920 drops per 10 quart bucket -- but God is mighty big and strong and just might be referring, in this allegorical passage, to a VERY LARGE BUCKET. "He's got the whole world in His hands...." POINT: Isaiah 40:15, KJV, "Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing." ALL THE NATIONS, individually or collectively, are as a drop of a bucket in the sight of God. Remember, there are almost 150,000 of them -- IF we're only talking about a 10 quart bucket - one fourth of a bushel!

NOW, let's look at what is going to happen to ALL the armies of ALL those nations when Christ returns. Old Slough Foot, Satan, that wicked one, is now in control of the armies of the world and they SEEM all powerful. He could rightly promise Christ all the kingdoms of the world if He'd only bow down and worship Satan. God / Christ had given him that power. He is the prince of this world - right now. This is why so many worship the devil. Remember "The Devil and Daniel Webster" ? People actually are selling their souls to the devil, and he is actually rewarding many of them very generously with this worlds good which will all be burned up! When Christ returns He is going to destroy Satan, and presumably ALL his allies. It's a really "tough" job! :-) Check out Second Thessalonians 2:8, KJV, "And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming:"

Get that? The Wicked One is going to be DESTROYED -- WITH THE BRIGHTNESS OF CHRIST'S COMING! Nuclear Physics, lasers, etc. won't even compare! ....and all the nations of the world which have gathered to fight against the returning Jesus Christ will be destroyed with him.

Nuclear Physics? Check out Zechariah. Zec 14:12, KJV, "And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth." Now, THAT sounds like a nuclear blast to me. The flesh melting away while the bones yet stand. Remember the shadows of men etched into the steel girders of bridges in Japan? Yep, their bodies "consumed" part of that powerful blast but the blast also consumed their bodies! Wasn't this AFTER Japan had surrendered? Wasn't this one of the Japanese cities with a very high percentage of Christian in it? Didn't the same thing re-occur just a day or two later with the same or very similar circumstances?

Molecular Structure? Colossians, referring to Jesus Christ, says, Col 1:17, "And he is before all things, and by him all things consist." And you probably were thinking electrons, protons, nucleus, etc. held things together. What makes up the nucleus of an atom? Protons and Neutrons? Protons, positively charged, "large" particles. Neutrons - approx. same mass as proton, no charge. So, EVERY ATOM has a nucleus with MANY particles that are positively charged and about the same number of chargeless particles; i.e. the nucleus is POSITIVELY CHARGED. Yes, out in orbit some distance from them are some NEGATIVELY CHARGED particles, but the nucleus is, again, POSITIVELY CHARGED. Like charges repel! WHO do you think is keeping those positively charged particles which are all repelling each other FROM E-X-P-L-O-D-I-N-G-? Colossians 1:17 tells us it is by Jesus Christ that ALL THINGS CONSIST. The Amplified amplifies on this a bit - pun intended. Col. 1:17, "And He Himself existed before all things, and in Him all things consist (cohere, are held together)." It also recommends we read Proverbs 8:22-31. So Jesus Christ is HOLDING TOGETHER -- ALL THINGS! ...And yet stupid men would love to "do away" with Christ entirely! Couldn't do it the first time, just played into His hands! Been trying to do it ever since -- those who realize the first "treatment" didn't take! Yet they don't realize that without Christ THEY ARE NOTHING. HE is holding THEM together! How blind can we be?

The point is: While the Bible may not use the words nuclear or physics it has MUCH to say about both! I have hardly scratched the surface.

SOMEBODY TAKE THIS BALL AND RUN A TOUCHDOWN WITH IT!

So does the Old Testament if you read the right parts selectively.
The problem is fundies, /literalists and people that have an agenda and are using a holy book to justify their ends.  A pox on them.

The popularly quoted phrase from the Koran that says "kill all the infidels" is taken out of context. The rest of the paragraph says
"unless they leave us alone".  Nothing wring with that.

What does your story have to do with either shortwave or the failure of a long time food retailer.  Why would anyone gloat over the potential closing of so many stores that employed and served so many people.

I strongly suggest that you go back and reread everything you wrote.
Ranting like: "Yep, spend yo' money wif us so we can monitor yo' principles and git you arrested!" makes me think you have been reading too much KKK literature.

According to Kiwa's website, their shortwave preamp will make your receiver quieter. They claim that when you turn off your receiver's internal preamp and instead rely upon the Kiwa preamp, you will have fewer noisy circuits operating inside the receiver.

I find myself unmoved by this claim, since it would apply to any external preamp--and most external preamps will do nothing to improve S/N ratio, at least in my (limited) experience.

Of course, the Kiwa preamp also has a BCB rejection filter. I do see how this could improve S/N ratio, but I'd like to hear some first hand reports.

If you've used Kiwa's preamp, can you comment on whether it resulted in a significantly improved signal to noise ratio?

Thanks in advance,

Steve

You have written a lot, but so far none of it makes any sense.

Put down in five coherent sentences how the number eleven, the number of former WTC towers and the bankruptcy of Winn Dixie are tied together.  You seem to have some difficulty creating sentences that tie togwether as complete thoughts.  So, when composing your response take plenty of time and think before writing.

You don't even own yourself.

If she's like her pop she's probably not worth much. Best just give her away. :-)

You aren't supposed to ask, or know about, "most women" !

Have you been by a good steak house about 6 or 7 PM lately? You need to take one of your neighbors out to supper with you. They'll change their minds about the smell of char-broiled steak!

First you need to learn when the Sabbath begins and ends to be sure you aren't following some tradition of men. Are you referring to Lunar Lunacy? The Solar Sabbath? The "legal" day - midnight to midnight? Or are you referring to the Jewish "sabbath" which they claim begins on one day and ends on another; i.e. sundown Friday to sundown Saturday?

There are 'degrees' of 'rewards' for both good and evil deeds.

You're not a priest.  ... At least I surely hope you're not!

Birds of a feather flock together.  Why would YOU kill YOUR friends?  ;-)

These laws don't apply to some people.  They were for GOD'S people to live by!  Eat all the swine you like.  The trichinosis is FREE!

Just as the previous question.  These laws were for a peculiar, separated, chosen, holy people.  I doubt they apply at all to YOU.

However, you might be surprised how much healthier and happier we'd all be if we did NOT eat genetically engineered foods, wear clothing of different materials or have disobedient children!  Think about it!

The nuns and priests might be part of the current problem.

He was ok with it, "Hey, 80 isn't that bad, longer than I ever expected!" He just kind of faded away. Boy, would he have been pissed if he knew his sisters got together and had a minister do a memorial service before the "real" one. The after funeral "wake" was about as tense as I have ever seen, one of the sister's kids blabbed the whole deal as the real service ended. It was entertaining.

Oh now that is just mean.  Next thing you know she'll be contacting the site owner and harrassing him to take the picture down.  Than she'll call the local police department complaining about "internet crime" because she didn't sign a "model release"...

Then she'll go after YOU for "hacking" the site...and contact Sneakmail about your WebTV "internet" postings!

Back then, that stuff made sense. If you got Trichinosis, you had it forever. Now, unless you are just itching to get it, you won't, because we know better, and know how to prevent/cure it. Back then, all they did was know, or suspect the cause.

One of the few really logical things they did back in the olden days..

My granddad ate F1 hybrid tomatoes all his life and it did him no harm. My cycling top is made of man made fibres and is far superior to cotton or wool which just get damp, but what I really want to know is this. One of the ten commandments says thou shall not kill.

Last week, I got an infected elbow joint which had bacteria in it. My doctor gave me some antibiotics. Have I committed a mortal sin by killing the bacteria?

1)  I first heard it on shortwave radio.

2)  They appeared to have a company policy to snoop and spy and report on those who would train up their children to be obedient, mannerly children.

3)  I'm glad something makes you think!  THAT is the intent of most of my messages.  Of course, I can't help WHAT you think.  All of us choose to think what we wish!  You have made your choice.  I appreciate your sharing it with all the rest of us!  ;-)

Strings and the Cosmos....

http://www.shadowpeoplebooks.com

The entire concept of "Strings" fascinates me. The more I learn about this theory the more curious I become. If in fact this radical theory proves to be correct, the 'big bang' theory becomes an event that is a common occurrence. If this is true what implications does it have for man and our sense of reality?  Perhaps the great distances of the cosmos are but micro measurements in a colossal system of some sort. Time when measured in human terms may be an insignificant measure when compared to whatever or whoever this system really is. Perhaps we were never meant to find answers to questions that are beyond the scope of our understanding. Maybe life and in turn intelligent life is simply a parasite that clings to a system ever changing.

Great minds of the past have given us wisdom to reach today's levels of what we refer to as advanced technology. Today the ones that will push the envelope still farther dabble with concepts that defy explanation. Science fiction writers have relied upon imagination to create situations that at the time of their writing seemed impossible. Later we often utilize many of these ideas in everyday life. Tomorrow will bring with it answers to many questions but more importantly it will bring more questions that need answers!

Currently I am writing a new book tentatively titled "Parallel Universes-Man's First Steps Beyond!" Researching the topic of parallel universes has already stretched my imagination and I would suspect that this story will give the reader some thought provoking ideas of what man might expect when the technology is perfected that allows travel between the layers of parallel universes.  Many scientists believe such a layer exists and travel between them possible.

I invite you to share with me any ideas you may have as to 'parallel universes' and the 'string theory' and please do not be shy. It has been said, 'whatever can be will be' so any ideas you may have are equal candidates for discussion. Please take time to visit my website and check out my writings.

Hi Group,

I have a bud who would like a FM transmitter to send his stereo tunes out to his back yard.  I built my own but this chap is a non-builder, needs plug and play.

Can anyone recommend a transmitter that takes RCA line inputs and is plug and play?

Thanks
Tom

Why don't you 'splain for all of us what it means. Put down in five coherent sentences how the number eleven, the number of former WTC towers and the bankruptcy of Winn Dixie are tied together.

If you can't comprehend that how are you going to understand residual magnetism, the relationship between mapping and DNA, the revealing of neural codes, an explanation of how the government can tell us a year or more in advance which flu bug is going to bite next and how many will be killed by it?

    Can't decide for shortwave - there are far too many EXCELLENT choices :>).  But in the world of MW (yesteryear division,) does anyone else here remember "Rev. Ike"?  I'll give Ike this - he had a much higher percentage of sheer entertainment value than some of the nutjobs on SW today.

1) The number eleven, which two tall parallel towers appear to some to represent, is also used in SOME bankruptcy proceedings.

2) If the two/twin towers represented to the 9/11 attackers, whoever they were, the number eleven and they wanted to send us a symbolic message, could that message have been BANKRUPTCY - as in a CHAPTER ELEVEN BANKRUPTCY?

3) Winn-Dixie filed for CHAPTER ELEVEN BANKRUPTCY and this reminded me of the elusive Al Qaeda, one of whose goals is allegedly to BANKRUPT America.

There, I did it in THREE sentences. Do you now understand how they are "tied together" or was this just another attempt at the tying of the knot? :-)

Another link? I just got this weeks HQ Intel-Alert http://www.stevequayle.com which is confidential and for subscribers only but it seems we are not rid of Al Qaeda yet by any means. Yes, ONE of their goals is the bankrupting of America! They boast that even if they put out DISinformation that causes us to beef up our securities, add more cops to the streets, bars on our windows or alarms in our cars and the "treat" does not take place they still are winning because they are forcing us to spend that "almighty" dollar at whose shrine many of us worship all too often.

Time expired! Sentences exceeded! Sit down! Next opponent, please! You have THREE minutes! State you case!

Good day!

"Why has the journalistic community chosen to downplay the latest 9/11 Commission Report? Actually the report substantiated much of what the 9/11 Commission Report states repeatedly. There were many warnings that Osama Bin Laden was going to attack the U.S. on our soil, with strong indications that he would be using aircraft and would target an American icon, be it landmark buildings, bridges etc. It is all in the report, which is very readable. "

Yes, there were also many reports that Osama was going to attack America back when Clinton was the President. In response to these warnings, what radical changes did Clinton make to national security procedures. You know, what very evident hassles and inconveniences which Americans had to then endure for the first time in their history when they board airliners, cross borders, obtain passports, etc.?

Apparently Pres. Clinton did next to nothing. Go figure then, David, how wise you appear when you post criticisms about Bush for being unreasonably negligent or worse, when actually Bush was doing about the same as Clinton, or for that matter about the same as any President would have done before nine eleven.

Sorry David, you don't seem to realize that unlike the exalted Prophet Stair, most world leaders cannot foretell the future. Because down through history all Presidents and Kings have all been bombarded with thousands of warnings concerning the latest news of enemies working to undermine the country. Its hard to sort out which one or two of the avalanche really are very serious. Frankly no President, Republican or Democrat could have predicted anything like nine eleven.

A crackpot like Stair might now shout that he knew an extremely serious attack was about to come. Other folks like David might shout now that Bush should have known.

Do tell.

David is simply out of touch with reality.

It really amazes me just how many we have here just like him running around loose.

"PRESS RELEASE: Ailing T.V. Preacher Dr. Gene Scott's Art on e-bay!"
Thursday February 10, 2005 from: Truth or Consequences, New Mexico
No, this isn't about Elvis, O.J. Simpson or a piece of cheese looking like the Virgin Mary, but rather true art! In an effort to publicize the plight and too often damage that allopathic medicine's cancer treatment can have on a patient, and in believing that Dr. Scott will recover.

a silent seller of an original numbered and autographed print of "The Wrecking Ball Lost" through an intermediary, is up for auction on e-bay, and to demonstrate that love him or hate him. Dr. Scott's art has great value here and now.  Bidding opens at $50,000. Recommended to any King's house or whosoever wanting to acquire this 20 year old work of art by Dr. eu-Gene Scott.
look below for photo of print, then, just go to e-bay and type in search.'Dr. Gene Scott's Art.'"

...HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHa!!!!

Looks more like something that someone from the LOCAL NUT-HOUSE would draw while under a heavy regimine of Prozac and/or Lithium.

In fact if you look carefully at it, you will see that it may suggest...(gasp)...SEX!

Consicer, there's the two balls either side with what looks like a penis in the middle...and what's that circling around the penis you say...?? Why, it looks like a cute single lost little sperm, doing circles around the same lookin for an egg to fertilize. There's some guy ibelow raising what looks to be a whiskey glass in his right hand and he's standin inside what looks to be a map of the Continent of Africa...
...or perhaps is that a mons pubis with an opened labia instead....Hmmmm!! Also has what looks like a tounge like the old Rolling Stones logo right inside the labia majora??  (Mabey like Stan Marsh from The Southpark Movie...he's lookin to find the clitoris?)

"Is finding the clitoris like finding jesus or somehing?"
   - Eric Cartman  (grin)

Who knows....but 50G for that scribbling?

What happened? Is the light bill for the cathederal due and all the cash has dissappeared down to the Cayman Islands???

Gee - why not? It can run almost any CP/M software and any C'64 software as well as native software.

The main problem, I should think, is that it doesn't have the standard ports that are used today so you might need homebrew hardware to connect say the "user port" to something.

One of the best collections of C'64 (and C'128) software was lost when AOL / Quantum Link pulled the plug on their Commodore service without adequate notice.

Clinton did do something.  Bush didn't want to hear about terrorism.
Period.  He ignored Richard Clarke and others pleadings.  The attack was on Bush's watch.

Perhaps if the Republican attack dogs weren't distracting President Clinton all the time he might have been more effective.

Apparently evilsizer3 was very interested in "the spate of apparitions of the Virgin Mary reported in the past decade" and he desparately needed to  raise $4.oo to finance his references.

The 'political correct' Answer is that ONLY White Christian Males
(as a Group) are capable of Bias, Bigotry and Hate.
Women, Non-Whites and Non-Christians are only responding to the Hostile and Hateful Environment caused throughout the World by White Christian Males.
It is NOT 'their' Fault for what 'they' are Forced to Say and Do
- Clearly "The Blame" belongs to White Christian Males.
The Above Message is Brought To You By :
The Democrat Party of the USA

"Clinton did do something."

Yes Clinton was no fool,  therefore when U.S. intelligence had Osama precisely located, Clinton decided to just throw a couple bombs in the general direction of the bad guys' training camps, nothing more. I find no fault with that. Very professional actually, anything more intense at that time would have been seen as over reaction, a little crazy.

Clinton's general common sense allowed him to avoid being perceived as an extremest, which in truth he wasn't, allowing him to be twice elected in a Republican dominated political era, unseating an incumbent Republican President in the process. As did a Sunday School teacher from Georgia who had reduced the size of his State's government with a new "needs based" annual budget process, and who called himself a fiscal conservative. And then there's another who actually received more votes than the Republican, Gore, who was the self proclaimed most conservative Democrat candidate in the year of seven candidates when they foolishly instead nominated Dukakis. Dukakis, very very "progressive", had vetoed a State pledge of allegiance bill, refused to remove convicted murderers from the prison inmate furlough program, opposed capital punishment, no doubt he was somewhat rather near the fringe of the political spectrum.

Perhaps its the moderate Democrats, the kind who probably don't fully agree with your extreme postings, who are the likely to actually win elections nowadays.

So, I have a question...

What, other than her perceived weight problem and poor grooming make this lady deserving of everyone's cruel humor?  Do all of you know her personally?  Do each one of you excel at the niceties to which she is apparently poorly suited?

Just curious.

She entered herself in a online beauty contest (Miss American Rose?). When one places oneself in the limelight in such a manner then criticism is to be expected. Especially since her head looks like an olive loaf.

In addition Loafhead is netKKKopping scum. She emails abuse complaints willy nilly and then refuses to stand up for her own complaints. Most recently she has emailed sneakemail concerning usenet posts in agc. What an email service has to do with usenet posts is unknown to either sneakemail or anyone else. Yet Loafhead sent a notice for them to invoke their email TOS for usenet posts she considered off topic.

Lastly, she fucked with AUK, again.

Got in SWL about forty years ago, then took a long hiatus I renewed my interest and got a general class ham license, then with the advent of computers, I lost interest. Recently I thought about how much I enjoyed SWL.
So I did a little research on the web and bought a very inexpensive receiver, Grundig mini 100, 'cause I sold my old ham gear..the old Kenwood 940 had a really nice general coverage receiver.
Question is where I can find some broadcasts that discuss SWL in general?
If I find this as gratifying as I did all those years ago I have my eye on a Sony 7600.
I enjoyed reading some of the posts here, you guys are really into it and know your stuff. Have always found newsgroups to be fairly tolerant of newbies and their inane questions. Hope to get up to speed with all the info
I am accumulating.
Thanks...
Marc

It's not a beauty contest, you morons!

It's an ACHIEVEMENT contest.  Maryanne is an achiever, something obviously completely alien to you fools.

It's about LEADERSHIP.  Leading others.  Maryanne is a leader, you all are obviously followers.

So what, you're obviously enjoying it.

Didn't your mother teach you not to laugh at people with special challenges???  She has a hump, so what?  A lot of women suffer from osteoporosis, and having large breasts only makes it worse, it affects your spine.

So you always laugh at handicapped persons?

The attack was planned and allowed to happen under Clinton. Clinton bombed an asprin factory, how is that doing anything?

Welcome to our dysfunctional group!  As was mentioned,
Glenn Hauser's World of Radio is on WWCR, and on Saturday Night the half hour before it is the DX Party Line.  The DX Party Line can also be heard on HCJB - Quito, Ecuador.

I believe a long time ago (Net standards-wise), in the mid-90's she sued someone for libel on the ancient history newsgroup.  At first it stood up, but got thrown out later because the person she brought the libel against proved that no one took her (the defendant, not Kehoe) seriously.

Another good radio is a desktop, Icom R75 at $500 from Ham Radio Outlet, complete with UTC 106 option, none other needed to make it comparible to much more expensive radios.

The utes nowadays can  be decoded with freeware software which cables from radio speaker jack into computer soundcard. So, $500, plus an antenna, can be all that's necessary to go first class

And chanches are you allready know Morse code (multimode/RTTY  freeware will provide the narrow bandwidth for listening to CW, not just for decoding it). If not, freeware learning programs are available and very SWL needs to learn copying CW by ear. Was too easy, not difficult like touch typing for me :).

I noticed that Universal shows the Drake MS8 speaker as being discontinued. Drake's website no longer has it available for order, and Grove doesn't have any left either.

It was a pretty crappy speaker for the money, but it looked good next to the R8B.

I'll bet RadioMart will be getting $200 + for them now :-)

Here's all the reason some people need to accuse me of being racist, Jew-hater, anti-semitic, etc.  All you have to do is EXPOSE one "Jew" and some people ACCUSE, though FALSELY, of HATING all Jews.

Let's take a look at some of the court proceedings of some of the Orthodox Jewish communities around Brooklyn, NY!

Only this top part is mine.

Brooklyn Corruption Figure Admits He Arranged Bribes

By MICHAEL BRICK

The central figure in the wide-ranging investigation of judicial and political corruption in Brooklyn, a man accused of arranging bribes in divorce and child custody cases for people in the borough's Orthodox Jewish communities, pleaded guilty yesterday to 13 counts of bribery and conspiracy.

The man, an electronics dealer named Nissim Elmann, admitted passing thousands of dollars to a lawyer to arrange preferential treatment in cases before a State Supreme Court justice, Gerald P. Garson. Justice Garson has been suspended from the bench and is awaiting trial on bribery charges.

The investigation into dealings by Justice Garson, a former treasurer of the Brooklyn Democratic organization, has spilled over into a conspiracy inquiry involving the judicial nominating system and taking aim at, among others, the Brooklyn Democratic Party leader, State Assemblyman Clarence Norman Jr.

Prosecutors portrayed Mr. Elmann as a fixer, a known figure in Orthodox communities who accepted cash through the window of his car or inside a warehouse and passed it to a former lawyer who had an advantage in Justice Garson's courtroom.

The former lawyer, Paul Siminovsky, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of giving unlawful gratuities last year, after wearing a hidden microphone at the direction of the office of Charles J. Hynes, the Brooklyn district attorney.

Jury selection had been scheduled to begin yesterday in the case against Mr. Elmann, and his guilty plea came as a surprise to prosecutors, who had requested electronic gear for the courtroom to play tapes of 110 telephone calls and dozens of other conversations.

"He is not cooperating, nor have we asked him to cooperate with us," Assistant District Attorney Noel Downey said. "The D.A.'s office came to play ball, and he backed down."

In State Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday, Justice Jeffrey C. Berry read through the counts aloud in a meticulous monotone, noting the legal language and asking in plain terms if Mr. Elmann understood the charges. "You knew this conduct was illegal?" Justice Berry asked repeatedly, and repeatedly Mr. Elmann replied that he had.

In all, Mr. Elmann agreed to guilty pleas to seven felonies and six misdemeanors. Justice Berry ordered a presentence investigation and indicated that the sentence would probably amount to between one and a half and seven years in prison.

Mr. Downey, the Brooklyn prosecutor, described the guilty pleas as "a telling event, because it supports the massive investigation undertaken by District Attorney Hynes and the Rackets Division in uncovering the vast corruption scheme that was unleashed on the matrimonial courts of Brooklyn."

Gerald J. McMahon, a lawyer for Mr. Elmann, said that his client chose to plead guilty in part to spare his family the stress of a trial (Mr. Elmann did not appear to have any family members in the courtroom) and in the hope that Justice Berry would hand out sentences "in a proportional way."

His comment was a sidelong reference to the open cases against several other people, including Justice Garson. Justice Berry has set a status hearing for May 26 involving several of the defendants in the intertwined investigations.

Mr. McMahon described Mr. Elmann as someone pressured by his community to gain access to the spoils of corruption.

"He tried to help people, and he was pushed by people in his shul, especially David Cohen," Mr. McMahon said, referring to a rabbi in Midwood. "It was almost a religious obligation, and Mr. Elmann was a seriously religious person."

Reached by telephone, Rabbi Cohen, who Mr. McMahon said had been on his witness list, declined to comment.

In court, Mr. Elmann passed up an opportunity to blame his rabbi or his community. After he finished pleading to the charges, Justice Berry asked him, "Nobody threatened, forced or coerced you to do these acts?"

"No," Mr. Elmann said.

There is a guy in Alabama who builds,or used to build,for sale,some hopped up CB Radios that all one would need to do is aim the Antenna of the CB Radio at whatever vehicle close by that one wished to STOP! and said CB Radios would STOP! those vehicles! All of the stuff we read about on the internet nowdays about law departments and govts getting new technology to stop vehicles,that next door to me (Mississippi) in Alabama was building CB Radios that would STOP! vehicles! at least seven or eight years ago.

I have one more cassette deck to sell (that will leave me with 3 pro level and a few lower class ones) that has use to a DX'er.

this is the VSC vscA-7 speech controller tape deck features:

special circuitry to playback at speeds .6X to 2.5X with intelligibility !
that is 1 1/8 to 4 11/16 ips meter tape counter monitor on/off

jacks include:
MIC/remote AUX in earphone headphone
12V (this unit does not have internal battery capability)

this was an expensive unit when new, but I will let it go for $35 plus shipping or trade for an interesting preselector ot maybe something else I don't know.

I received a Degen 1102 on Saturday and haven't had time to play with it much yet but find it a pretty nice little radio so far.  Didn't see a sleep feature, but it may be there.  One of the things that impresses me is the size.  I can place the radio AND THE OWNER'S MANUAL in the little drawstring bag and it's still probably just a bit smaller than the 7600GR.  Haven't tried to compare selectivity, etc.

Quit whining. You've never exposed -one- Jew; you promote crap like "The Protocols" that damns them all. On top of that, if you're exposing -one- individual, why point out that he's a Jew at all...unless you're trying to make some kind of point. Which of course brings us right back to damning all of them.

I can't see this being practical except in the 10 m band and shorter. For shortwave broadcast listening, which is normally 13 m and longer, this isn't going to be practical. Also, as someone else noted, it's more much more important for transmitting than receiving to have an idea length (1/3 wave monopole?).

Local HAMs around here often have a decent sized flexible antenna, like 10 feet long or so, but they usually just tie it down to another part of the vehicle.

Also, for a WebTV user, I'm surprised you dislike google--it's generally regarded as the best, and has a very simple interface that will load fast on that 56 K modem. If you're having trouble with the amount of stuff it is returning you need to modify your search terms and use things like quotes "", +, -, |

internet | webtv  = internet OR webtv internet + webtv = internet AND webtv internet - webtv = internet but NOT webtv "internet webtv" = exact phrase search for "internet webtv"

Yosemite Sam was apparently busted on 17 February. The transmitter was reportedly west of Albuquerque, New Mexico, just off I-40.

does anyone have an opinion on why yosemite sam would get busted so fast? was he interfering with any licensed service? harassing amateur nets? im just curious that the feds would get off their asses to get him with all the jammers and QRM'ers and linear amped cb'ers swamping the waves. not to mention the bad power poles and transformers that they dont care about, and the abundance of consumer products that broadcast noise across huge swathes of the spectrum. and bpl blanketing their trial cities. why was he such a priority? or did he just fall into their hands somehow?

I listened & recorded to the earlier broadcast. It is a remake. You could make the argument it is better.

Well, he did broadcast on 5000 and 10000 khz over WWV(H) at one point, I believe.  Although, he was a minor annoyance on they are 50 kW stations or something.

I wonder if they got a guy or just a transmitter and a computer playing a sound file in a loop.

Interesting.  I remember that about a month ago, someone was hyping those radios on here.  Suddenly, a guy on E-Bay started selling them for $20 (about $10 too much) as "Sony Long range AM/FM pocket radio" or similar with the model number removed (to make price comparisons difficult).

Possibly. Don't get too excited yet.

The quick answer is that Sam operated for at least two incarnations on 3700 which is located inside an amateur band.

That tends to get folks moving rather rapidly to figure out who is running the operation, and where it is coming from.

I'm planning on purchasing a Sony 7600GR on-line and I'm looking for suggestions as to WHO or WHERE (website) to purchase from.  Amazon.com probably has the lowest price but I'm more concerned about being able to return if I have a problem with the unit.  I'm willing to spend a little more for customer service.  Any suggestions?  Thanks

Check your local libraries or online for Popular Mechanics magazines or Popular Science magazines about a year or so back and read about what fed govt says about they will qurrantine any space aliens from other planets and impound their space ship(s).I don't believe it will ever happen because I don't believe any space aliens from another planet or planets have ever came to Earth before or ever will come to Earth either.I am not saying there are not other planets out there with aliens with advanced technology but if there are,they are so far away we will never know for sure.I don't fall for any phoney baloney stuff.I have to see proof first before I will believe anything like that.I have never seen anything yet that looked space alien to me and I am sixty three years old.That Roswell stuff was a big Balloon that had spy cameras on it and it was sent up to spy on the rooskies atomic bomb making facilities in Russia and it crashed.That is why fed govt brought in the Troops and hauled that stuff away to wherever they took it to.

It may be an improvement and reminiscent of the WKRP (radio content) episode where Doctor Johnny Fever was involved in an on air demonstration of the evils of alcoholic impairment. The more he drank, the more normal and intelligent he became. It was a fun show, but not as good as the episode with the toilets and the mascot outfits. The pig and the carp are with me to this day.

9/11 Report Cites Many Warnings about Hijackings

By Eric Lichtblau

The New York Times

Thursday 10 February 2005

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 - In the months before the Sept. 11 attacks, federal aviation officials reviewed dozens of intelligence reports that warned about Osama bin Laden and Al Qaeda, some of which specifically discussed airline hijackings and suicide operations, according to a previously undisclosed report from the 9/11 commission.

But aviation officials were "lulled into a false sense of security," and "intelligence that indicated a real and growing threat leading up to 9/11 did not stimulate significant increases in security procedures," the commission report concluded.

The report discloses that the Federal Aviation Administration, despite being focused on risks of hijackings overseas, warned airports in the spring of 2001 that if "the intent of the hijacker is not to exchange hostages for prisoners, but to commit suicide in a spectacular explosion, a domestic hijacking would probably be preferable."

The report takes the F.A.A. to task for failing to pursue domestic security measures that could conceivably have altered the events of Sept. 11, 2001, like toughening airport screening procedures for weapons or expanding the use of on-flight air marshals. The report, completed last August, said officials appeared more concerned with reducing airline congestion, lessening delays, and easing airlines' financial woes than deterring a terrorist attack.

The Bush administration has blocked the public release of the full, classified version of the report for more than five months, officials said, much to the frustration of former commission members who say it provides a critical understanding of the failures of the civil aviation system. The administration provided both the classified report and a declassified, 120-page version to the National Archives two weeks ago and, even with heavy redactions in some areas, the declassified version provides the firmest evidence to date about the warnings that aviation officials received concerning the threat of an attack on airliners and the failure to take steps to deter it.

Among other things, the report says that leaders of the F.A.A. received 52 intelligence reports from their security branch that mentioned Mr. bin Laden or Al Qaeda from April to Sept. 10, 2001. That represented half of all the intelligence summaries in that time.

Five of the intelligence reports specifically mentioned Al Qaeda's training or capability to conduct hijackings, the report said. Two mentioned suicide operations, although not connected to aviation, the report said.

A spokeswoman for the F.A.A., the agency that bears the brunt of the commission's criticism, said Wednesday that the agency was well aware of the threat posed by terrorists before Sept. 11 and took substantive steps to counter it, including the expanded use of explosives detection units.

"We had a lot of information about threats," said the spokeswoman, Laura J. Brown. "But we didn't have specific information about means or methods that would have enabled us to tailor any countermeasures."

She added: "After 9/11, the F.A..A. and the entire aviation community took bold steps to improve aviation security, such as fortifying cockpit doors on 6,000 airplanes, and those steps took hundreds of millions of dollars to implement."

The report, like previous commission documents, finds no evidence that the government had specific warning of a domestic attack and says that the aviation industry considered the hijacking threat to be more worrisome overseas.

"The fact that the civil aviation system seems to have been lulled into a false sense of security is striking not only because of what happened on 9/11 but also in light of the intelligence assessments, including those conducted by the F.A.A.'s own security branch, that raised alarms about the growing terrorist threat to civil aviation throughout the 1990's and into the new century," the report said.

In its previous findings, including a final report last July that became a best-selling book, the 9/11 commission detailed the harrowing events aboard the four hijacked flights that crashed on Sept. 11 and the communications problems between civil aviation and military officials that hampered the response. But the new report goes further in revealing the scope and depth of intelligence collected by federal aviation officials about the threat of a terrorist attack.

The F.A.A. "had indeed considered the possibility that terrorists would hijack a plane and use it as a weapon," and in 2001 it distributed a CD-ROM presentation to airlines and airports that cited the possibility of a suicide hijacking, the report said. Previous commission documents have quoted the CD's reassurance that "fortunately, we have no indication that any group is currently thinking in that direction."

Aviation officials amassed so much information about the growing threat posed by terrorists that they conducted classified briefings in mid-2001 for security officials at 19 of the nation's busiest airports to warn of the threat posed in particular by Mr. bin Laden, the report said.

Still, the 9/11 commission concluded that aviation officials did not direct adequate resources or attention to the problem.

"Throughout 2001, the senior leadership of the F.A.A. was focused on congestion and delays within the system and the ever-present issue of safety, but they were not as focused on security," the report said.

The F.A.A. did not see a need to increase the air marshal ranks because hijackings were seen as an overseas threat, and one aviation official told the commission said that airlines did not want to give up revenues by providing free seats to marshals.

The F.A.A. also made no concerted effort to expand their list of terror suspects, which included a dozen names on Sept. 11, the report said. The former head of the F.A.A.'s civil aviation security branch said he was not aware of the government's main watch list, called Tipoff, which included the names of two hijackers who were living in the San Diego area, the report said.

Nor was there evidence that a senior F.A.A. working group on security had ever met in 2001 to discuss "the high threat period that summer," the report said.

Jane F. Garvey, the F.A.A. administrator at the time, told the commission "that she was aware of the heightened threat during the summer of 2001," the report said. But several other senior agency officials "were basically unaware of the threat," as were senior airline operations officials and veteran pilots, the report said.

The classified version of the commission report quotes extensively from circulars prepared by the F.A.A. about the threat of terrorism, but many of those references have been blacked out in the declassified version, officials said.

Several former commissioners and staff members said they were upset and disappointed by the administration's refusal to release the full report publicly.

"Our intention was to make as much information available to the public as soon as possible," said Richard Ben-Veniste, a former Sept. 11 commission member.''

I'm not a liberal.  NPR receives federal matching grants which are contingent on local community support.   All civilized countries subsidize a form of public broadcasting as it is essential to democracy.

When you say you vote with your pocketbook, what you are really saying is that you are a whore and that you carry a purse.

The Anti-Conservatives

Who convinced the president that our democracy depends on a worldwide crusade?

by Patrick J. Buchanan

That George W. Bush would seek to embed the Iraq War in the higher cause of global democracy was to be expected. That is the way of wartime presidents.

By late 1863, Lincoln�s war to crush Southern secession was about whether �government of the people, by the people, for the people shall ... perish from the earth.� By 1917, the European war whose causes Wilson professed not to understand in 1916 had become �the war to end all wars� and to �make the world safe for democracy.�

Leaders alchemize wars begun over lesser interests into epochal struggles for universal principles because only thus can they justify demands for greater sacrifices in blood and treasure. But Bush has gone Wilson one better. He is not only going to make the world safe for democracy, he is going to make the world democratic. Where Lincoln abolished slavery in the South, Bush is going to abolish tyranny from the earth: �So it is the policy of the United States to seek and support the growth of democratic movements and institutions in every nation and culture, with the ultimate goal of ending tyranny in our world.�

A conservative knows not whether to laugh or weep, for Mr. Bush has just asserted a right to interfere in the internal affairs of every nation on earth. Why? Because the �survival of liberty in our land increasingly depends on the success of liberty in other lands.� But this is utterly ahistorical. The world has always been afflicted with despots. Yet America has always been free. And we have remained free by following the counsel of Washington, Jefferson, and Adams and staying out of foreign quarrels and foreign wars.

Who is feeding the president this interventionist nonsense?

The president now plans to hector and badger foreign leaders on the progress each is making toward attaining U.S. standards of democracy. �We will persistently clarify the choice before every ruler and nation�the moral choice between oppression, which is always wrong, and freedom, which is eternally right.� This is a formula for �Bring-it-on!� collisions with every autocratic regime on earth, including virtually every African and Arab ruler, all the �outposts of tyranny� named by Secretary Rice, most of the nations of Central Asia, China, and Russia. This is a prescription for endless war. Yet as Madison warned, �No nation can preserve its freedom in the midst of continual warfare.�

Who and what converted a president who came to office with no knowledge of the world to the idea that only a global crusade for democracy could keep us secure? Answer: 9/11�and the neoconservatives.

In his inaugural address, Mr. Bush calls 9/11 the day �when freedom came under attack.� This is sophomoric. Osama did not send fanatics to ram planes into the World Trade Center because he hates the Bill of Rights. He sent the terrorists here because he hates our presence and policies in the Middle East. He did it for the same reason FLN rebels blew up cafes in Paris and Hamas suicide bombers blow up pizza parlors in Jerusalem.

From the Battle of Algiers to the bombing of the Beirut Marine barracks, from the expulsion of the Red Army by the mujahideen of Afghanistan to the expulsion of Israel from Lebanon by Hezbollah, guerrilla war and terror tactics have been the means Muslims have used to expel armies they could not defeat in conventional war.

The 9/11 killers were over here because we are over there. We were not attacked because of who we are but because of what we do. It is not our principles they hate. It is our policies. U.S. intervention in the Middle East was the cause of the 9/11 terror. Bush believes it is the cure. Has he learned nothing from Iraq?

In 2003, we invaded a nation that had not attacked us, did not threaten us, and did not want war with us to disarm it of weapons it did not have. Now, after plunging $200 billion and the lives of 1,400 of our best and bravest into this war and killing tens of thousands of Iraqis, we have reaped a harvest of hatred in the Arab world and, according to officials in our own government, have created a new nesting place and training ground for terrorists to replace the one we lately eradicated in Afghanistan.

Among those who have converted President Bush to the notion that without Arab democracy there can be no Mideast peace is Natan Sharansky, and much of what the famed Soviet dissident writes is undeniably true. Even inside the darkest despotism, people yearn for freedom. They hate tyranny and love liberty. They wish to live in lands that allow them to choose their own leaders. And as democratic rulers must return to the people for renewal of their mandates in free elections, they are more likely to seek the peace and prosperity their people desire. Thus, only democracy can pave the way to true peace and security. This is the message of Sharansky�s Case for Democracy, which the president has embraced and encouraged all to read.

But what is often true is not always true, and U.S. foreign policy, which is to protect U.S. vital interests and the peace and freedom of Americans, cannot be rooted in the idealism of an ex-Soviet dissident or the ideology of neoconservatives who promised us a �cakewalk� in Iraq and assured us we would be welcomed with flowers. Sharansky notwithstanding, democracy is neither a necessary nor sufficient condition of America�s peace and security, nor even of Israel�s.

In 1967, David Ben-Gurion told Richard Nixon and this writer he hoped Nasser would survive Egypt�s humiliation in the Six-Day War because only Nasser had the prestige to lead the Arabs to accept peace with Israel. Sadat was no democrat when Israel gave him back the Sinai and signed a peace. Arafat was no democrat when Rabin and Peres agreed to the Oslo Accords and shared a Nobel Prize with him. Assad was no democrat when Israel negotiated a truce with him on the Golan Heights. That truce has held. Nor was Khadafi a democrat when Bush agreed to lift sanctions imposed on Libya for the massacre of Pan Am 103 if Khadafi would surrender his weapons of mass destruction. Khadafi did, and Bush rightly claims this as a diplomatic success of his first term.

While it is true that the dictatorships of Franco, Pinochet, and Marcos gave way to democracies, that was not true of Batista, Somoza, or the Shah. When Carter undermined the Peacock Throne, we got the Ayatollah.

Urging Bush not to press Israel into making peace with the Palestinians until Palestine embraces democracy is a clever way to postpone peace indefinitely and let Israel expand its settlements and consolidate its hold over the West Bank and East Jerusalem. That may be in Israel�s interest. But it is not in America�s interest. Sharansky�s idealism just happens to coincide with Sharon�s agenda. Can President Bush not see this?

America has old friendships and important interests in the Middle East that cannot await the dawn of democracy in the 22 Arab states where it currently does not exist. We cannot make the best the enemy of the good. And if democracy means rule by the people, how enthusiastic should we be about its introduction into the Middle East? In 1991, Algerians were given a democratic vote�and elected an Islamist regime. The army intervened, igniting a civil war that left 100,000 dead. President Bush might ask his father why he did not speak up for Algerian democracy then.

Unlike Eastern Europe, where communism was imposed on Christian countries with traditions of self-rule, democracy never took root in the Arab lands of the caliphate. Thus King Farouk�s ouster gave us Nasser. King Idris�s ouster gave us Khadafi. And King Feisal�s ouster gave us Saddam Hussein. How certain are we that if the kings of Morocco, Jordan, and Saudi Arabia fall, democracies will arise?

Given that the neocons were wrong on every count about Iraq, does Bush truly wish to gamble the Middle East on their confident predictions that, once the Arab monarchies fall, Western democracy will flourish among people who seem to revile Bush and revere Osama bin Laden?

After the shocked reaction in many quarters to the president�s inaugural address, the White House, George H.W. Bush, and later the president himself hastened to explain that there was nothing new or radical in the speech. Perhaps a sense of reality has already begun to manifest itself.

We are simply not going to stop buying Saudi oil or cut off our $2 billion in annual aid to Egypt or sever relations with Musharraf or sanction a China that could sink the dollar because these regimes refuse to make the reforms Bush demands. It is not going to happen. President Bush will either wind up eating his overblown rhetoric or following it over the cliff and taking us with him.

America �goes not abroad, in search of monsters to destroy,� said John Quincy Adams, �She is the well-wisher to the freedom and independence of all. She is the champion and vindicator only of her own.� Under the tutelage of Jacobins who call themselves idealists, Bush has repudiated this wise core doctrine of U.S. foreign policy to embrace Wilsonian interventionism in the internal affairs of every autocratic regime on earth. We are going to democratize the world and abolish tyranny.

Giddy with excitement, the neocons are falling all over one another to hail the president. They are not conservatives at all. They are anti-conservatives, and their crusade for democracy will end as did Wilson�s, in disillusionment for the president and tragedy for this country.

Mechanical fulfillment for the undateable Aryan loser. Seriously, is there a SANE woman who would date Al and listen to his antisemitic fundie bible spew all the time? I think most women would go insane having to listen to somebody spewing random bible verses and fundie shortwave radio kookiness all the time!

Is that all it says?  Get another dictionary.

The second defination of forgery at dictionary.com reads:

Something counterfeit, forged, or fraudulent.

It can't be worse than the Grundig G1000a.

http://www.goinginstyle.com/gis/body_individual_new.asp?dept_id=5&pf_id=2365

Mine drifts off frequency so badly, you have to reset it every fifteen minutes. The clock can't keep time either and that is directly related to the frequency generation/stability of the set.

Grundig..another fine old name driven into the mud by the money men in search of fast profits. "Screw the future, let's make money TODAY". These people probably pimp their own grandmothers  for a quick Dollar.

The point is that EVERYONE would do it, silly.  And they keep doing it every time they don't help the hungry, poor and suffering.  And the instruction to help others does not end at the borders of your own community or country.  I hear so much said in the name of religion, and then it's back to exploit, not caring, justifying hate and making lotsa money.  It just takes human beings regardless of dogma or religious belief to either help fix or help screw it up.

A Critical requirement for a SkyWire Loop Antenna is "LAND" & Space.
SkyWire Loop Antenna Size per Square Side:
160 Meter Band = 529 Feet Loop = 132 Feet per Side = "SPACE"
80 Meter Band = 268 Feet Loop = 67 Feet per Side = 'Space'
40 Meter Band = 141 Feet Loop = 35 Feet per Side = space
20 Meter Band = 71 Feet Loop = 18 Feet per Side
10 Meter Band = 35 Feet Loop = 9 Feet per Side

well, if you did, it would definitely tuen into a thread about O.J.

And then after that, it's likely it would turn into a thread about Jackson's trial, the very subject of this thread.

Could we stop the insults and get back to radio? Thanks.

(But that would mean Al would have to stop posting bible thumper stuff that he thinks is relevant because he happened to hear it on shortwave, and tianli would have to stop blaming Kerry for 9-11--hint, the election's over, Kerry lost.)

Might as well. Call it "Orange juice, the Talmud and Michael Jackson" and mention that one of the bible thumper kooks had a program on shortwave about the connection between the three, and the hidden evils of drinking orange juice while reading the Talmud and watching the Jackson trial on TV to make SURE it's as relevant to rec.radio.shortwave as Al's "I heard it on the last half of the last hour of (insert bible thumper here)'s shortwave show on the upper part of the 31m band" posts. By the way, I haven't heard any commercials on shortwave lately, except for the BBC's relentless self promotion.

The post said that the bids would start at $1250. How did they get this amount? I don't know, probably pulled it out of their ass. What a

I haven't heard them yet. 6930 seems to have a lot of noise at my location. I don't know whether the noise is coming from somewhere around me or is just general interference.

O. J. Simpson has his own shortwave program? Wow. Who will buy airtime on WWCR next?

I listened to the sound clip... it's actually the TLR beacon out of Tulare, California.

The Morse "K" and "R" are often mistaken for one another.

I don't know if intolerance is the word. Christianity in general though, has been practiced by people who don't actually practice what they preach. They lie, cheat, steal and murder when they want something others have. Much like what the zionists are doing in Palestine now.

If you are going to convert someone to your way of thinking, the best way is to LIVE and DO what you believe. Set an example. Don't steal anything, including resources and land. Don't pretend to believe in some commandments and live up to them only when it suits you. That is just so much crap that doesn't go unnoticed by others..they say "Christian? Jewish? Their word is meaningless"

Not trying to get off of the subject of Shortwave Radio too much,but a few years ago I bought a CB radio at a pawn shop and I was sitting here one night listening to some 18 wheelers out on I-20 (Jackson,Mississippi) and one of those 18 wheeler guys who was useing his CB radio told another 18 wheeler guy he just got through talking to a guy in New Zealand.It was an 800 Watt amplifier he had connected to his CB radio.

He just has to find a woman who:

1. Is already pre brainwashed by her parents.

Or

2. One who can be convinced of almost any crazy conspiracy, who has no "kook" filtering whatsoever. In other words, a female version of himself.

There is an inverse ratio between illegal CB amplifier wattage and the IQ of the operator. As an example, The 'Ace' was using 1200 watts before the Feds visited him.

I bought a mint Sears FRG-7 for $200 and I mean mint. That's the only reason
I paid $200 for it. But, some bidders have no idea what some items go for.
They want a FRG-7 and don't check on past prices. Now, I always thought these FRG-7's were worth more then were going for on Ebay. I saw many in great condition going for $150 to $175.

They really are excellent old classics. I bought mine to collect and to use.
I waited perhaps 6-8 months till I saw the one I wanted. It was worth the wait.

But it does seem to me people mainly in the US have more money then they know what to do with.

Through no fault of my own, I cannot get a password from ILG. My ISP, pacbell.net has connections with Yahoo and as a result ILG will not give me a password.
Does anyone know a work-around for this. I tried contacting ILG but they would not respond.
Or,would someone be willing to foreward the ILG files or share a password with me.
Tnx es 73,
Chuck

Well, he was obviously drunk by then, so I didn't quote that part of it. It also disagreed with my preconceived notions as to what is correct, so it made it completely irrelevant and frivolous to my belief base.
